FLORIST.....

A NEGATIVE PROPOSITION.

A leading Pittsburgh retailer has published the following advertisement in local newspapers:

"PLEASE OMIT FLOWERS."

Why do you so often see this request? Because the so-called "florist" without artistic temperament, without experience, has stereotyped the beautiful into a most hideous creation of repellent formality, instead of making it a comforting expression of real sympathy beautifully stated.

Making it a tender expression of sympathy is our way, and it is the only way.

Perhaps this is good advertising, but it is open to question. It is just possible that this way of putting it possesses more of what Charles Henry Fox calls the negative influence than it does of what we will call the positive influence—that it will do the trade at large more harm than it possibly could do the advertiser good—not through its "knock" on "the other fellow," but through its strong display of three words we want the public to forget. To counteract the occasional notices to "Please omit flowers," we certainly should not put the phrase in big type at the top of our ads.

Let us, just by way of contrast, suggest a different wording:

SWEET SYMPATHY IN FLOWERS.

Flowers are the "messengers of sentiment." Because flowers carry an expression of sympathy more tender than words can convey, the use of flowers at funerals has persisted since the dawn of history. And doubtless will persist so long as hearts are fond.

While flowers speak the language of love, there is a difference in the way it is expressed. Just as the sweetest sentiment is lost in penmanship one cannot read.

Our arrangement of funeral flowers brings out the comforting expression of sympathy in the most beautiful way.

THE ITALIAN WREATH.

The accompanying illustration will be of interest because of the source of the order as much as for the size and excellence of execution of the wreath. The design was the work of Warendorff, New York, and went to the funeral of J. Pierpont Morgan as the token of friendship and esteem of Victor Emanuel III, king of Italy. The colors in the ribbon are those of Italy. The photograph is reproduced by courtesy of the New York American.

Roxbury, Mass.—As a result of a crusade here against Sabbath breaking, says a local newspaper, two florists were fined recently for "selling pinks on Sunday." Israel Quint, 129 Walnut avenue, was fined $10, but appealed the case. Sarah Weis, 703 Dudley street, was fined $10 and paid it.

AN INTERESTING LAW SUIT.

A recent law suit at Duluth, Minn., which ended in victory for Louis Visias, the Superior street florist, is of more than ordinary interest to the trade, on account of the peculiar conditions involved. Before a jury in Judge Ensign's division of the district court, Mr. Visias brought suit against his lessors, John A. Stephenson and the Gregory Co., because the temperature in the greenhouses had been allowed to drop too low, causing damage to the stock. The trial was begun on Monday, May 19, and was not concluded until Tuesday of the following week, May 27, when the jury awarded to Mr. Visias $1,500 damages. He had brought suit for $5,000.

Mr. Visias charged that the tempera-part of the premises at 302 to 306 East Superior street to a dealer in gasoline engines, and that the gas and fumes from his shop also caused considerable damage to the flowers.

GALAX TO BE A SHORT CROP?

According to F. M. Richards, of the North Carolina Evergreen Co., Banners Elk, N. C., forest fires in the galax regions have entirely destroyed at least fifty per cent of the entire galax crop. The serious part of the matter, according to Mr. Richards, is the fact that the crop on this burned section will not be fit for shipping for three years, as it takes this time for the galax to get in a condition for the market after it is burned over. This means a loss of thousands of dollars to the shippers and pickers in western North Carolina, not mentioning the fact that the brokers or jobbers over the world will suffer also to a large extent.

NOW THE SHOWER BOUQUETS.

Now comes the season of shower bouquets, the month of June. It often has been said that of all tests of a florist's artistic ability, and the skill of his hands, that imposed by the shower bouquet is the most severe. It certainly is true that a man who can make a good

He claimed that this took place during the holiday season, when his trade ordinarily was the most brisk. He also showed that his lease bore a clause providing for a temperature of at least 50 degrees.

The plaintiff testified, also, that the defendants, over his objection, sublet a shower bouquet is pretty sure to be able to make anything else that is likely to be called for, while it is not at all certain that a man who can make a good wreath or pillow will be as successful with shower bouquets.

In this connection bouquet-makers will be interested in the illustration on page 11, showing a large shower bouquet made by H. H. Kuhlmann, of Houston, Tex. The materials were orchids

ATTRACTIVE FUNERAL SPRAY.

The accompanying illustration shows an attractive spray of Easter lilies and cattleyas from the greenhouses of Henry Hansen, at Catskill, N. Y. It was designed by Mr. Hansen for a recent funeral.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Holland, Mich.—Alfred Mitting filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy May 28 and his case was referred to Referee Kirk E. Wicks. The bankrupt scheduled liabilities amounting to about $10,000, with no assets other than those which are exempt. Mr. Mitting is widely known in the trade. Some years ago he was engaged in the greenhouse business at Morris, Ill. From there he went to Santa Cruz, Cal., where he at one time had an extensive business, especially in calla bulbs. Since removing to Holland he has been engaged in the nursery business.

SUMMER CARE OF HYDRANGEAS.

Kindly advise me as to the proper care in the summer of hydrangeas that have ceased to bloom. R. F. C.

Cut back the plants tolerably hard and either plant them outdoors in rich soil, where they can be watered in dry weather, or pot them over and plunge them in a bed of coal ashes. I should prefer planting out, as that would ensure stronger plants. Lift and pot the plants about the end of September, or before they are subjected to any sharp frosts. C. W.

Shelton, Neb.—Edward Oliver has stocked his new greenhouse, which he built recently.

TROUBLE WITH GERANIUMS.

I am sending several leaves of S. A. Nutt geranium. Can you tell me what the trouble is? This disease is spreading rapidly through about 7,000 of these plants. The leaves turn yellow and then dry up. I have been using sulphur lately, as you can see by the leaves. I can not discern insects of any kind. Syringing with water has no effect. Any information you can give me will be greatly appreciated. G. A.

The leaves were much dried up when received and it is not easy to tell what your trouble is. Possible causes are unsuitable soil, injudicious watering and feeding, starvation at the roots and the excessive use of sulphur on heating pipes, either painted on or dry. The last named will quickly cause a lot of foliage to turn yellow. Feeding with heavy stimulants, such as nitrate of soda, unless carefully done, at fairly long intervals, also is harmful. The use of soil deficient in plant food would give the plants a starved look and the foliage would naturally soon turn yellow. Sprinkling sulphur on the foliage will be of no avail. All you can do is to keep the plants growing along. Do not allow them to become too much pot-bound before giving a shift. Use a soil containing three-fourths loam and one-fourth well decomposed cow manure, hotbed manure or mushroom manure. Add a 4-inch pot of fine bone to each wheelbarrow-load of loam.

Never keep the plants really wet at the root. Allow them to dry out fairly well between waterings. Do not spray overhead. Grow in a house with a winter and spring minimum temperature of 45 to 50 degrees. Ventilate freely and give them all possible sunshine and they should do well. Pick over your worst plants and feed judiciously where they may be needing it. You should soon note an improvement. C. W.

THE WORK OF CATERPILLAR?

The leaves on some of my geraniums are diseased, especially on Vaud. The under side of the leaves looks as though they had been eaten by some insect, there being little spots all over them, as though they had been touched with a pen point. The outer edges of the leaves begin to turn yellow and finally the leaves die. I have never been able to find any insects on them.

V. R. F.

Perhaps you have some insects or worms on your geraniums. A small, hairy caterpillar is sometimes bad on the foliage. Keep badly affected leaves picked off. Give the plants plenty of sun and air and if all your plants are not salable, do not be afraid to plant them out for stock, as they will probably grow strong and healthy in the field and give you excellent cuttings. C. W.

FOR A BEGINNER.

Being a subscriber to The Review and a beginner in the business, I should like to get an answer to the following inquiries through the paper. I want to grow a lot of perennials and hardy flowers for next year. Please name any varieties that I could begin to grow this fall, also those of which I could plant the seed in the fall and have them come up next spring and bloom. With us, in our central Louisiana location, the common larkspur, sunflower, bluet and some others, if undisturbed, seed themselves and bloom early the next spring. Will such be the case with the fine delphiniums? I wish to make a specialty of them. Please tell me the best. Are they Belladonna and formosum? Can I plant snapdragons the same way in the open? If I plant the rooted cuttings now, when will they bloom? Will they stand our hot sun, or does intense cold kill them? Please name for me the hardiest of the white lilies. I note few seedsmen advertise the candidum, which is hardy with us and blooms year after year, if left in the ground.

I am building a greenhouse, not heated, to be filled with blooming plants in order to have them for November and December. Please tell me what to plant, and when, and whether I must use seed or plants. How about petunias? I wanted to plant a few roses in order to have blooms for Christmas. What is the best sort for forcing? I note you recently advised a reader not to use old stock for forcing, but if I buy young stock I am afraid it would not bloom. I set out some Killarney, Kaiserin and Carnot in January and in April and even now they are luxuriant with blooms. They were 2 years old. Please give me as much information as you can and I shall be under obligations to you. L. A. S.

Some of the most desirable hardy herbaceous perennials which you can easily raise from seed are the following: Alyssum saxatile compactum; Aquilegia eærulea, A. chrysantha, and mixed hybrids; Aster Novæ-Angliæ and mixed hybrids; Campanula persicifolia, blue and white, and C. Medium, or Canterbury bells (the last named are biennials and the single and cup and saucer varieties are the best to grow); Chrysanthemum King Edward VII, Coreopsis grandiflora, Delphinium Belladonna, D. formosum, D. formosum celestinum and D. Chinense; Digitalis gloxiniaeflora, or foxgloves; Gaillardia grandiflora; Gypsophila paniculata, Hibiscus Crimson Eye, Lupinus polyphyllus, blue, white and pink; Lychnis Haageana and L. Viscaria splendens, Malva moschata alba, Papaver bracteatum, or oriental poppy; Pyrethrum roseum, Scabiosa Caucasica, Dianthus barbatus, or sweet william; and Tritoma grandiflora. All the foregoing can be sown between now and the end of August in your latitude. Most of them sown in August would make strong plants before winter and a large proportion would flower the following year. In sowing them, if you have a small coldframe and can give the seeds a lath shade protection until they germinate, they will do much better. Hollyhocks are useful perennials which you can also include in your list, but antirrhinums, I am afraid, would be a failure with you. They are good under glass in the northern states, but only do well outdoors near the seaside.

In your greenhouse you can grow quite a variety of plants which will flower in November and December. These include Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias, cyclamens, chrysanthemums, Roman hyacinths, Paper White narcissi, carnations, such early azaleas as Hexe and Mme. Petrick and Primula Sinensis and P. obconica. You could also have poinsettias, but I doubt whether you would have sufficient heat for them.

In regard to roses, 2-year-old plants of Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond and Mrs. Aaron Ward would be all right to use. Carnot and Kaiserin are better summer than winter bloomers. Of course, while you have a fairly wide choice of plants, you should not attempt to grow too many kinds; better restrict yourself to one or two kinds. Petunias are not satisfactory bloomers in November and December.

In the way of white lilies, L. candidum is satisfactory, particularly when north-of-France-grown bulbs are planted. These produce strong spikes of broad-petaled flowers, vastly superior to the type usually seen. These should be planted four inches deep, late in August or early in September. L. speciosum album, which blooms later than L. candidum, is another good white lily. It does best when the bulbs are covered ten to twelve inches. The new lilies, myriophyllum and Sargentia, will some day be popular garden plants. Their present prices are beyond the means of most growers. C. W.

Shower Bouquet by H. H. Kuhlmann, Houston, Tex.

Zanesville, O.—C. L. Humphrey says business has been the heaviest ever known, both wholesale and retail. He attributes the heavy increase largely to the spring flood, saying that the inundation made everything look so dingy that people were unusually anxious to fix up.

Muncie, Ind.—N. V. Cooper, who purchased the Hillman lot near Riverside cemetery, is erecting a greenhouse, which he hopes to have stocked within a short time. He had started work on the greenhouse when the recent flood wiped out all of the progress he had made.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Bedding Out.

For some time bedding out will occupy considerable of the time of the average country florist. Much of this work is already done in some sections, but north of New York a good deal is not completed until the middle of June. In fact, it is better to defer the planting out of such tender subjects as coleus, alternantheras, acalyphas, achyranthes, Salvia splendens, Vinca rosea and other tender subjects until something approaching warm, settled weather arrives, for even if the plants are not exposed to actual freezing they may get a chill which will severely cripple them, and frosts are not uncommon north of New York in the first week of June.

Geraniums continue the leaders among bedding plants, and no other plant approaches them in popularity. The planting of these should be completed as soon as possible. It is an advantage to have a spell of cool, moist weather in which to set these and other bedding stock out, as it gives the plants a nice start and there is less danger of the roots being dried out. It is of supreme importance to have the roots of all bedding plants—or, for that matter, all plants—moist when set out. Never mind how damp the soil is; be sure the balls of all plants are moist before they go into the open ground.

As the stocks of bedding plants become thinned out, take advantage of any spare time to get the batches left over bunched up so as not to spread over a needlessly large bench space. This simplifies watering and is a decided advantage when it comes to filling late orders. Be quite sure that in the zeal to fill all your customers' orders you have not allowed your own stock plants to be encroached upon. It pays to reserve strong plants for stock purposes, and these should be planted out at the earliest possible moment if they are not yet in the ground.

Bouvardias.

If bouvardias have not yet been planted out, they can now safely go into the field. Give them rich soil and an open, sunny exposure, and pinch back any shoots which have a runaway tendency. Bouvardias will make a much stronger growth if planted out than in pots, but if some of that beautiful, sweet-scented, pure white variety, Humboldtii, which is always appreciated in the flower markets, is wanted in flower as early as August, some of the plants can be kept in pots, which should be plunged to their brims in coal ashes and kept well supplied with water, liquid manure being applied as the pots become filled with roots.

Poinsettias.

A good crop of cuttings should now be obtainable on the poinsettias, and these should be rubbed off with a heel and placed in the propagating bench as soon as of sufficient length. Cut the leaves off either entirely or in part; there is then less liability of their damping. Many people find trouble in rooting poinsettias. Given porous sand, good drainage below it and a tolerably close atmosphere, they should propagate easily. On dark, damp days no water may be needed; on clear days a good soaking is necessary. Protect from sun and air currents and, even if you have no bottom heat, nearly all the cuttings will root.

Primulas.

The early sown batches of Primula obconica, Kewensis and Sinensis should now be ready to go into 3-inch pots. Use a light, fairly rich compost for them, but do not add any chemical fertilizer to it. Keep them in a cool house, shielded from direct sunshine. About the middle of June move them into a coldframe, where they can be partly plunged in a bed of coal ashes. They will grow much stockier there in the summer months than in a greenhouse. Late sowings that are intended to produce plants for early spring or even Easter trade should be transplanted as soon as they can be handled, in flats containing equal parts of loam and leaf-mold, with some sand added. In the case of the new P. malacoides, it is not yet too late to sow seeds and get nice plants in 6-inch pots next winter. Early sowings of this variety are not to be recommended. The plant is a strong grower, and large plants are much more liable to damp off than small ones.

Propagating Ficus Elastica.

Summer is the time par excellence for rooting tops of Ficus elastica by the so-called ringing process, which simply consists of cutting the stem partly through, at any desired length, preferably below a leaf. Stick a couple of toothpicks or any small pieces of wood into the incision to keep it open. Then bind sphagnum moss tightly over, above and below the cut made. Keep it constantly moist, and to ensure this keep the stock plants in a warm, moist and shaded house, where they can be freely syringed. Just as soon as roots are seen peeping through the moss, cut the tops off and pot them. Crotons, dracaenas, dieffenbachias and other species of ficus are among those which can be readily propagated in this way, especially during the summer months.

SOME SEASONABLE NOTES.

The season for peonies in some sections will already have passed before these notes appear in print. In other localities the plants will be in bloom, while in still others the opening of the flowers will be eagerly looked for. Be careful not to cut too many long-stemmed flowers. If sufficient foliage is not left on each flowering stem when the flowers are cut, the plants will flower but poorly the next year. If you want to prove the accuracy of this, cut all the flowers from any clump with long stems and carefully note the effect on the plant the next year. It pays to disbud peonies where fine flowers are wanted, but late flowers often are needed, and in such cases it is best to pinch out the terminal bud and leave two at the side to mature. The flowers will not be so large as those produced from the central bud, but will be later, which is sometimes a decided advantage.

Queries are still common on how to clean ants from peonies. Some aver that the ants are eating the flower buds. This is all nonsense. The ants do not eat either buds or foliage of peonies.

Though they are often seen on the buds, they are not there for the purpose of eating them, but rather to suck the exudations found outside the buds and not infrequently to make prisoners of any green aphids found there. Ants are sometimes a nuisance, but all this talk about their damaging peonies is an absurdity.

As the peonies flower, take note of and mark all that are specially good and of attractive colors. As a rule white, pink and rose are the favorite colors, in the order mentioned. Except it may be for Memorial day trade, the red and crimson shades are not in much request. If you have varieties which no one wants, get rid of them and get sorts which have some commercial value. There are plenty of good varieties obtainable, and there is no excuse for growing antiquated sorts. It is well to order any peonies you need while they are in flower, and remember that they should be planted early, September being probably the best month in the year for this work.

The peony is still gaining rapidly in importance as a cutflower, particularly for Memorial day.

AMERICAN PEONY SOCIETY.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society will be held in Gray's Armory, Cleveland, June 12 to 14, in conjunction with the spring exhibition of the Ohio Horticultural Society.

There will be no separate premium list offered by the Peony Society. Copies of the Horticultural Society's premium list have been sent to all members of the Peony Society. Further copies may be had by writing to John N. Stockwell, Room 218, City Hall, Cleveland, O. All entries should be addressed to Mr. Stockwell as above. Shipments of blooms should be addressed to the chairman of the exhibitions committee at the exhibition hall, Gray's Armory. Express charges must be prepaid. Cut flowers cannot be received earlier than one day before the opening of the exhibition. Label cards not to exceed 2x4 inches must be furnished by the exhibitor, but vases for cut blooms will be provided at the hall. Entries must be in the secretary's hands at least forty-eight hours before the beginning of the exhibition, and a fee of $1 must accompany the entry in each class. See the premium list for further particulars. All intending exhibitors are advised to read the regulations carefully, as they are not exactly like those which usually govern the exhibitions of the Peony Society. The following is a list of the prizes:

It is hoped that there will be a good attendance of the members of the Peony Society. The plants in the northern section, which were for a time very forward, have been checked by the cool weather of the last few weeks, and it looks now as if the dates of the exhibition would fall about right for the growers in the latitude of Cleveland and farther north. PEONIES FOR LANDSCAPING.

The peony is one of many old-time flowers which have experienced a decided modern improvement and revival of popularity. This is shown by the recent rapid growth of its culture and by the larger number of varieties that are being originated and propagated by the trade. The American Peony Society has for several years been cooperating with the Cornell Experiment Station in the study of the nomenclature and classification of the peony and has issued several bulky volumes on the subject. In one of the bulletins lists of recommended varieties are given. There is at present a rapid increase in the use of the peony for landscape effect and the varieties approved by the society for this purpose are:

White.—Octave Demay, Marie Jacquin, Baroness Schroeder, Albatre, Duchesse de Nemours, Ailee de Julvecourt, Madame de Verneville, Festiva, Marie Lemoine, Couronne d'Or, Madame Breon, La Rosiere, Albiflora the Bride, Avalanche and Festiva Maxima.

Pale Pink.—Achille, Eugene Verdier, Eugenie Verdier, Dorchester, Floral Treasure, Marie d'Hour, Triomphe de l'Exposition de Lille, Venus, La Perle, Marie Crousse and James Kelway.

Pink and White.—Umbellata Rosea, Golden Harvest, Madame Coste, Madame de Vetry, Therese, Princess Beatrice, Beaute Francaise and Philomele.

Deep Pink.—Madame Ducel, Livingstone, Monsieur Boucharlatine, Souvenir de l'Exposition Universelle, Madame Lebon, General Bertrand, Modeste Guerin, Edulis Superba, Madame Muysart, Alexandre Dumas and Modele de Perfection.

Red.—Fulgida, Felix Crousse, Augustin d'Hour, Louis Van Houtte, De Candolle, Henry Demay and Dr. Caillot.

Deep Red.—Delachei, Monsieur Martin Cahuzac, Stanley (Kelway), Raphael, Madame Bocquet and Adolphe Rousseau.

HARRISON'S SUCCESS.

Walter Harrison recently became the sole owner of the business established last year by the firm of Harrison & Hutcheon, of Dayton, Wash. The volume of sales has far exceeded expectations. All the florists on the Pacific coast are having boom business, for this is a section of the country in which real demand is just awakening and in which production is behind, just as it was in the older sections eight or ten years ago. Mr. Harrison started with one greenhouse, but in his first year he found it considerably short of his needs. He now plans to erect an extension of forty feet, using it for lettuce and pot plants, and will build a new house 25x120 for carnations. The accompanying illustration will give an idea of his success as a plantsman, as it shows a specimen of the Hydrangea Otaksa that has been selling well in his store. The lady in the picture is Miss Marion F. Herndon, bookkeeper, saleslady and designer in the store.

Where Some Of Us Stumble

THE SQUARE DEAL.

[A paper by S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, Pa., read before the Philadelphia Florists' Club, June 3, 1913.]

I question whether there is a man present tonight who will not concede that our march of progress along all lines in which we are engaged has been steady and uninterrupted, and that it will well compare with that of any other body of progressive business men in this country.

I need hardly dwell on details or draw comparisons between the men and methods of a generation ago and those of today. It is within the range of memory, I venture to say, of the youngest man present, how the florist of the late eighties or the early nineties conducted his affairs; how he struggled along in his antiquated greenhouse, growing everything in general and nothing well in particular; how he worked and slaved and often deprived himself of the barest necessities, in order to make ends meet, and how often he failed to accomplish even this simple object. But things have changed since then—and for the better, of course.

The Society of American Florists, be it said to the credit of the leading spirits in that body, has done much to bring order out of chaos. Its annual conventions, extending over a period of three decades, are unquestionably responsible to a large extent for the progress achieved in horticulture.

The Trade Societies.

Who will question the tremendous advance made by the American carnation?

May we not assert without a moment's hesitation that the American Carnation Society, composed, as it is for the most part, of earnest, conscientious, hard-working and painstaking members, is directly responsible for the improvement and popularization of this truly magnificent American product?

The Rose Society, although much younger in point of years, has already accomplished enough to win the applause and admiration of every rose lover everywhere, both amateur and professional.

The Chrysanthemum Society may well point with pride to its own record.

The Sweet Pea Society is doing its share, and is doing it most admirably, toward the sum total of the general good in floriculture.

I may mention in brief the Gladiolous, the Dahlia and the Peony Societies, all of which are engaged in splendid work, well worthy of our financial and moral support.

A Sign of Progress.

The recent National Flower Show, held in New York city, conceded by all those present to have surpassed the most sanguine expectations of its most ardent promoters and supporters, is but another proof that the American horticulturist has not only not stood still, but, on the contrary, has kept his pace well to the front in the general procession of progressive business men. If the National Flower Show, held two months ago in New York city, has surpassed that of Boston, held two years previously, it is but a matter of simple logic to deduce that we have advanced during the intervening two years to the extent at least of the improvement in the later affair over the earlier one.

And may we not, basing our calculations, hopes and expectations on the selfsame principle—may we not, I ask, reasonably expect that two years hence Philadelphia may show even more wonderful results?

On the whole, I think, we may well congratulate ourselves upon our success and point with pardonable pride to our advance along all lines in horticulture.

The Need of Readjustment.

If I have digressed considerably from the subject proper I have chosen, namely, "Are We Giving Each Other the Square Deal?" it was my object primarily to present the subject to you, not from the standpoint of the fault-finder or muck-raker, but rather in the light of absolute impartiality, touching upon the good and the objectionable features in our inner circles, in the hope that some public-spirited men in our midst may find a means and a way of adjusting matters for the benefit and welfare of every man in the trade.

I must confess at the outset, however, that it is with a feeling of trepidation, although by no means akin to that of a guilty conscience, that I am approaching a subject which may touch many a sore spot and, for aught I know, bring me into disfavor with some of my friends in the trade.

Nevertheless, I will undertake the task.

It is high time, it seems to me, that we pause for a moment—long enough to take a general survey of ourselves, to look into our own shortcomings, to scrutinize our business integrity and our business methods with relation to each other, to take account of things that require improvement and adjustment.

Each for Himself.

It may prove something of a jolt to many of us when we discover that, much as we have progressed in our business, much as we have modernized our business methods with regard to the flower-buying public, much as we have improved things about our stores and our greenhouses, we have made but little, if any, progress with reference to the improvement of our relations with each other.

My observations during a period of years, among all sorts and conditions of men engaged in the trade, have led me to but one conclusion, and that is, that "Each for himself and the devil take the hindmost" is the prevailing sentiment. It is a fact beyond question, that often men, possessing unbounded energy, perseverance and business acumen—all the qualifications necessary to insure one's own success—are at the same time exceedingly selfish and narrow-minded.

Carried away by the current of their own sordid interests, they fail to recognize the fundamental principle of "live and let live," forming the corner stone, the very foundation of true prosperity.

Grower and Retailer.

Let us take a casual glance at the business relations existing today between the average grower and the average storekeeper, retailing the grower's product.

What do we see? Are they working hand in hand for their mutual benefit? Do we find them in true brotherly accord, each considering the interest of the other and both striving to advance the general good of all?

Hardly.

When the much dreaded glut is on and stock of all sorts becomes plentiful—a veritable eyesore to the commission man—what is the result?

The average retail man buys no more than he actually needs to supply his immediate demand. The fact that he pays but 1 cent for a carnation well worth 3 cents does not in the least disturb his conscience. On the contrary, he seems rather glad to get bargains. Nor does he concern himself with the economic law of supply and demand. If he can get 70 cents or $1 for a dozen carnations costing him 12 cents, why, so much the better. It seldom occurs to him that in times of an oversupply it might be good business policy to take a "flyer" at 1,000 instead of 100 carnations, to reduce the price, in order to insure quick sales and thereby relieve an overcrowded market and benefit himself in the end.

The Bargain Counter Policy.

To be sure, there are exceptions. There are men in the trade, be it said to their credit, who have long since recognized the expediency of facing circumstances and making the best of business conditions as they arise. I know several prominent retail men who are not at all averse to the idea of the bargain counter policy in times of oversupply. These men reason thus: "When stock has accumulated and business is dull, it is the policy of department stores and progressive business houses in general to move staple commodities at reduced prices, rather than suffer business stagnation and financial loss. Applying the same principle to our own business, it is most desirable that we, florists, with an accumulation of perishable stock in our ice-boxes and on our counters, adopt the same policy. Let the rank and file, the working man and the working woman, buy flowers when flowers are plentiful, rather than stock our waste barrels with them. Both the growers and the retail men would be sure to benefit by such business methods in the end."

Unfortunately, such men still constitute the exception and are in the small minority. In the majority of cases the grower is still looked upon as a source to be exploited, as a means to a selfish end.

The Street Faker.

And when the grower finally rebels and his agent, the commission man, is forced to enter into a business transaction with the street merchant, or faker, in order to unload his surplus—oh, what a wail is raised!

"The faker is a detriment to the business," we hear on all sides. "He is a nuisance; he is no good; he should be swept off the street along with other rubbish."

It seems to be the unqualified opinion of some retail men that it is the duty of the grower to protect the interests of what they call "the legitimate trade," regardless of all other considerations.

If the stock which he, the retail man, refuses to buy, finds an outlet on the street, the grower, in his opinion, has committed an unpardonable sin and should be tabooed.

Granted that the street faker is a nuisance, granted that he is a detriment to the business and that the less we see of him the better for the "legitimate trade"—granted all this and much more, if you please—the question arises, who is responsible for such a condition of affairs?

Has not the retailer the first chance to take up the surplus? Is it not up to him to devise means and ways of moving stock when stock is plentiful? We hear much of publicity these days. What does publicity mean, anyway? Is it an academic question, to be discussed and debated upon in our club rooms, or does it mean advertising, pure and simple, in the manner in which any other business man advertises merchandise?

Are Bargain Sales Undignified?

There are some retail men, and these among the leaders in the business, who seem to be under the erroneous impression that their dignity and their standing in the community would become jeopardized if they were to hold special sales in times of an overproduction. "Why," these men reason, "Madam So and So, of the exclusive smart set, could not bear to mingle with the common herd who might be attracted to our stores by a plentiful display of cut flowers in our windows at special prices. It might harm our standing with our best trade."

Would it?

As well may a John Wanamaker or a Marshall Field dispense with their sales of the $1.99 woman's headgear during a dull season lest their $50 bonnets might suffer in consequence in the right season.

What holds true of bonnets and other merchandise holds equally true of cut flowers and plants. There is nothing gained by disregarding the law of supply and demand; nor is it possible to create and maintain inflated values on merchandise, the supply of which exceeds the demand, or at a time when business conditions in general fully warrant reductions in prices. The successful business man, we all know, is he who creates the demand and keeps things moving in and out of season, and not he who simply waits for better times without bestirring himself to hasten them.

The Wholesaler and the Holidays.

There is, however, another side to the story.

S. S. Skidelsky.

The grower, in his turn, is not at all slow to reciprocate or to retaliate when his opportunity presents itself.

The holiday seasons invariably offer these opportunities—to hit back, to hit hard and often in a way that makes the retailer wince with pain and wish that he were engaged in some other line. At such times not only do prices rise to inordinate proportions, making flowers a sort of prohibitive luxury which the rich only dare indulge in, but the average quality of the stock thrown on the market is often of an inferior grade, by no means worth the price asked for it.

Need I mention pickled stock or flowers kept too long on the plants in order to bring them in just in the "nick of time" and thus make them yield better returns?

How often do we hear about ordinary Beacon carnations bringing as high as $15 per hundred at Christmas time! What sort of a margin can the retailer make on such stock, especially when a lot happens to go to the bad and when his customer absolutely refuses to pay for such flowers at the time of settlement? Nor need I add that under such circumstances the retail men in general, and the small fellows in particular, have not the ghost of a chance to make their salt.

An Undercurrent of Enmity.

Thus we see that an atmosphere of antagonism and an undercurrent of enmity, as it were, exist between two progressive bodies of men, to the detriment of the interests of both. Instead of working side by side with the sole aim and object of giving each other the square deal at all times and under all circumstances, we find that the contrary is the case. Instead of regarding the splendid work that each one is doing as a contribution to the general good, we hear on the one side, that if it were not for the retailer who educated the public and created the demand for all that is best in floriculture, there would be no growers, such as we see today, and on the other side, that if it were not for the grower who is enterprising enough to risk his capital and all, the retailer of today could not possibly exist.

I am reminded of an argument between two boys. Said one to the other, "If it were not for the cow, we would have no milk." "If it were not for the milk, we would have no use for the cow," replied the other youngster.

SWEET PEA EXHIBITION.

The annual exhibition and convention of the American Sweet Pea Society will be held July 5 and 6 at Boston, according to the announcement made June 3 by Secretary Harry A. Bunyard. The premium list will amount to $2,000, of which $500 is supplied by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the show being held in the hall of that organization in conjunction with its own exhibition. The schedule of premiums will be ready within a fortnight.

McPherson, Kan.—Chas. A. Simonson will erect another greenhouse this summer.

FOR THE NEW YORK MARKET.

I wish to begin the growing of carnations. What varieties, not considering price, are the best for the New York market? What kind of soil is the best to use in a ground bed and how deep should the soil be? What kind of fertilizer should be used with heavy soil, such as we have in northern New Jersey? When should rooted cuttings be planted to begin flowering about October 1, or should I use field plants? How far apart should they be planted?

W. S. Z.

Almost any good soil will grow carnations, providing it is prepared with one-fourth or one-sixth of well decomposed fertilizer. I presume, from what you say, that you intend to grow your carnations in solid beds. Five inches of soil is plenty for a raised bed and I do not think a ground bed needs any more. Most growers in making solid beds use six inches of ashes, to insure good drainage in the bed.

The plants at this time of the year should be nice stock in the field, preparing for their winter's work. Rooted cuttings at this season of the year would be entirely too late. I would suggest that you procure field-grown plants in July or the first part of August and these will begin to flower fairly well by October 1. The distance apart to plant depends somewhat on the variety grown and the size of the plants, but 8x10 inches is a fairly good average to work on. Among the varieties largely grown for the New York market are: Beacon and Bonfire for scarlet; Rose-pink Enchantress, Mrs. C. W. Ward and Winsor for pink; White Enchantress and White Perfection for white.

WELLS PASSES JUDGMENT.

English Grower Talks on Novelties.

At a meeting of a committee of the English carnation growers, whose organization is called the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society, May 14, W. Wells, who had just returned from a trip to America, read some of his notes on new carnations. Mr. Wells made his trip specially to inspect the American carnation novelties with a view to purchasing, and his judgment will be of interest and probably of value to many of those who would not have to go so far as Mr. Wells did to see these new candidates for themselves. Mr. Wells indicated his approval by a string of marks (X) after the variety. Here are his observations:

Mr. Wells Scores Claimants.

"My first visit was to the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., where Mr. Brown courteously showed us the carnations. No. 222 (XXX) is a crimson somewhat like the British Triumph, but I prefer Triumph. Vivid (XXXX) was similar in color to Northport, and should be a popular variety when on the market. The great thing from here is Matchless, a marvel for freedom and good in every way; there was a shade of blush in a few flowers until half-opened, when they came pure white (XXXX). My remarks on this variety are, 'The growth is like Mrs. C. W. Ward, and if it will come pure white in England, XXXXX.'

"We then visited Dailedouze Bros., Flatbush, where we saw Enchantress Supreme in thousands. I walked around bench after bench to find a split flower, but without success. I suggested the color was identical with Pink Delight, but the boys wouldn't have that as a true description. The calyx is a trifle narrower and a bit longer than Enchantress as we know it, and although the flowers on the plants were not at the usual Dailedouze standard, I give the variety XXXX. My next carnation feast was at Wm. Nicholson's, of Framingham, Mass., near Boston. In the lesser known varieties here I saw fine flowers of Pocahontas (XXX), a dead crimson, also a good batch of Golden Ray, the color of which was good, but the petals were inclined to curl (XX).

"Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass., was the next grower visited. Here Gorgeous was a fine big flower, but as Mr. Stuart Low was previously on the spot, and is interested in the variety, I will not comment further on it except to say that the flowers are well worth XXXX. I also saw a nice batch of Benora here (its birthplace) and Mr. Fisher had a batch of the variety with all the white taken out, leaving a fine deep scarlet. This batch is now at Merstham, but unfortunately the packer was not top-notch.

"At C. H. Totty's, Madison, and at E. G. Hill's, at Richmond, I saw good batches of Commodore (XXXX), a crimson scarlet with a stiff, erect stem, also Northport (XXXX), and a large rose-pink seedling.

"The carnation show was a feast in every sense of the word. Plenty to see, especially for one on the lookout for novelties. Those that appealed most were Princess Dagmar (XXX½), a 4-inch deep crimson flower, immensely double, but not much scent; Mrs. B. P. Cheney, a coarse-looking Benora, but perhaps the largest flower in the show (XXX); Mrs. C. W. Barron (XXXX), a miniature Marmion, one of Messrs. Dailedouze's seedlings; Electra, a nice scarlet, not so large as some we know, but for its lovely scent I have given it full marks. Wm. Eccles reminded me as being like Scarlet Glow, but it looks as if it was not grown to perfection for the exhibition, so I will not point it. Enchantress Supreme and Salmon Beauty are the same in color, and which will stand longer of the two is a query. Personally, Mrs. Coombes was my favorite, a lovely shrimp pink. It has a suspicion of Malmaison by the look of the foliage, but it is sweetly scented. I am sorry to have missed seeing this growing. Gorgeous in the show is a real big thing, and will certainly be in the prize lists at home in the near future. Majestic is a monster white, but has faint shades of deep pink (XXXX).

W. Wells.

Floor Plan for the Trade's Display at the Minneapolis Convention of the Society of American Florists.

"In the 100 classes of the English as well as the American Society's medals, Matchless is the bold medal winner with 90 points out of a possible 100; Gorgeous takes the silver-gilt of the former with 88 points; Princess Dagmar the third with 86. For the American silver-gilt, Mrs. Coombes scores 88 points, and is followed by Princess Dagmar with 86 points, winning the silver medal again.

"Another visit I made after the show was to the famous Messrs. Dorner, at Lafayette. Here are seedlings galore, of one, two, and three years' trial and testing out. As one could easily speak for several hours on this home of carnations, I will single out just one as an example of the work and studious hybridizing of the late founder of the firm. This one is Champion by name and nature (XXXXX), a lovely glowing scarlet, predicted to be in scarlets what White Wonder is in whites. Now, to point out that things are done right and proper on the Dorner establishment, of a shipment of nearly 1,500 carnations, in two cases, which included 1,000 Champion, only four plants will die; the rest look as if they had been taken from the pots but an hour or two, instead of sixteen days. These cases came to Merstham!

Some Other Good Things.

"The Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., has a lovely scarlet named Aviator; while a good thing, it will not quite reach the variety mentioned above for points. Another good thing is a seedling pink which is well worth watching.

"Bassett & Washburn have three or four promising seedlings, one of which was named after the new Mrs. Washburn, a pretty shade of pink, and is sweet (quite natural). Another unnamed pink looks promising, and they also have a good thing in Belle Washburn, a scarlet.

"Another good thing still, at Fred Breitmeyer's, Michigan, was Philadelphia, described as baby pink, but Gloriosa pink will be better understood by the home grower. Much like Gloriosa, except that the new variety will carry three flowers to the other's one.

"Now I have told you what I saw in the new carnation line, and I must tell you that to see the new carnations and make arrangements to distribute them on the same lines as the Wells-Pocket-Totty arrangement with mums, which has worked so satisfactorily, was my desire. I must say that in almost every instance the raisers are thoroughly agreeable, and from this time forward Mr. Hill and Mr. Totty are my guaranties. The new carnations will be open to inspection in the nurseries of W. Wells & Co., of Merstham. At the present time some are home, and others are on the way."

THE CONVENTION EXHIBITION.

Secretary John Young, who also is superintendent of the S. A. F. trade's exhibition, feels that the show will gain rather than lose by going this year into new territory—the great northwest, tributary to Minneapolis, is full of florists who have not attended previous conventions. The S. A. F. as a society is going to them, since they will not come to it, and the exhibitors will go along, being also anxious to make new personal acquaintances.

Mr. Young has prepared a floor plan of the National Guards' Armory, in which the trade's display will be staged during the Minneapolis convention, and is busy at his office, 58 West Twenty-eighth street, booking reservations of space. The executive board of the society has put the rate this year at 40 cents per square foot, regardless of the quantity taken, except that a minimum charge of $20 will be made. As usual, the exhibitor will be required to meet the cost of cartage, tables, signs and all other accessories. In laying out the floor space a plan was adopted that would best conform to the character of the exhibits and the character of the space. The disposition of the exhibits by classes is shown on the plan as follows:

- A.—Plants.
- B.—Cut blooms.
- C.—Boilers and heating apparatus.
- D.—Greenhouse appliances, including flower pots.
- E.—Florists' supplies, including fancy earthenware.
- F.—Bulbs, seeds and garden requisites.
- G.—Miscellaneous.
- H.—Competitive exhibits.

One of the important features for trade exhibitors is that this year the business sessions occupy four days, instead of three as in the past. It is aimed to hold the crowd at the hall, and it is an important point for those who have goods to sell.

New Hamburg, N. Y.—Alexander Laub was severely injured recently by the explosion of a can of naphtha while he was engaged in spraying plants.

Scranton, Pa.—Baldwin the Florist has opened his new show house and salesroom at 526 Spruce street. The establishment is one of the handsomest in town.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The American Rose Society has been invited to have as full a representation as possible of its membership attend the final exhibition and judging of the Hartford Rose Gardens. It will be held sometime in June. The judges named by President Farenwald for the service are as follows: Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; Eber Holmes, Montrose, Mass., and John Huss, Hartford, Conn. The Rose Gardens at Hartford were adopted last year and encouraged as far as possible by the executive committee, and a summer meeting of the society. The reports that come from the Hartford park department are most encouraging for the work there done. The garden is in Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn.

The new officers chosen at the annual meeting, held in April, will assume their duties July 1, and are as follows: President, Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; vice-president, Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.; treasurer, Harry O. May, Summit, N. J. The executive committee will comprise the following: J. H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont.; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.; August F. Poehlmann, Morton Grove, Ill.; Eber Holmes, Montrose, Mass.; Frank R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J. The secretary holds over.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market woke up early last week and prices advanced considerably from the early quotations, especially for carnations, which rose to 4 cents and 5 cents before the week closed, with even more asked for the novelties. The weather was abominable until Thursday. Rain was continuous. Shipments were light and prices indicated the large shipping demand for Memorial day. With the exception of carnations, however, there was no abnormal rise and of orchids and roses there were enough and to spare. Valley was up to 4 cents.

Every day the peony flood grows and some fine stock of the red and pink varieties is seen. The present week is expected to show high tide. There is no shortage of sweet peas, stocks, daisies or any of the seasonable flowers.

June 3 the cut flower market began to show signs of demoralization and prices were sharply reduced. There was every indication that the market was to be badly glutted within a few hours.

Various Notes.

At the Florists' Club's meeting next Monday, June 9, there will be an address by Adolph Farenwald, music by the Edison Co., and discussion of "Affiliation" after Mr. Farenwald's introduction. Exhibits are promised and a turkey lunch, as a fitting close to the club's indoor activities for the season. The club's annual outdoor demonstration is July 1.

Harry A. Bunyard returned June 2 from a visit in Boston, where all arrangements have been consummated for the sweet pea convention.

Wm. J. Sheehan, who has been managing Thomas Young's wholesale store on West Twenty-eighth street, now closed, and who has been in Mr.

Young's service for eleven years, has resigned his position. He has been a tireless worker. The entire shipments from Mr. Young's greenhouse plant at Bound Brook, including gardenias and orchids, will now be handled by Paul Meconi.

As a forecast of the June weddings, Saturday, May 31, 265 marriage licenses were granted. Conference with the retailers indicates a large booking of orders for church and house decorations during June.

C. C. Trepel, in his big store at Bloomingdale's, has devoted a large window to wedding suggestions, including the bride, with examples of bridal bouquets. A young lady, clad in bridal array, has posed and walked for hours daily, and so potent has been the novel attraction that the street at times has been crowded and impassable. Mr. Trepel now has charge of the flower departments in four of the largest department stores in the city. He certainly understands the secret of publicity and is even threatening to invade Fifth avenue with his enterprise.

June 2 an ordinance was introduced at the meeting of the board of aldermen, setting aside the wide asphalt space north of Union Square for a permanent flower market. No appropriation is required. The Flower and Plant Growers' Association has endorsed the plans, as well as the borough president, comptroller, and park commissioner.

Arthur T. Boddington took time by the forelock and commenced the Saturday half holiday privilege for his employees May 31. Doubtless all the seedsmen will unite in this concession after the most strenuous and profitable season on record.

P. H. Goodsell has removed his office to the nursery grounds at 1905 West Farms road, where large plantings have been made this spring and where shipping facilities are unexcelled. W. E. Maynard is at the helm of this department.

Charles Millang has shelved his auto department and is devoting his entire time to his wholesale cut flower interests.

Joseph Millang has moved into his fine new office in the Coogan building, second floor, rear.

Walter Siebrecht is spending his week ends at Glen Falls, where his family is located for the summer.

To the florists in the city little profit came in enlarged sales for Memorial day, but the cemetery florists reaped a rich harvest and were practically sold out of everything that could be used in loving memory of the departed.

The florists' supply houses report the best Memorial day business in their history. Shipments to the towns and smaller cities were away ahead of former years.

Alex. McConnell reports the best nursery business of any season and is still busy with some large landscape contracts. In fact, it has been a banner year with all the nurserymen in this vicinity.

J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, president of the S. A. F., was a recent visitor. The Minneapolis convention is awakening interest and New York promises to send quite a delegation, notwithstanding the 1,500 miles.

The Thomas A. Galvin building, opposite Thorley's, is going up rapidly. The greenhouse on the roof, six stories up, will be an attractive novelty. Various are the retail opinions as to this invasion from Boston, but the general opinion is that New York can never be overcrowded with anything that has merit.

Messrs. Bunyard, Armstrong and Smythe anticipate a busy summer with the millionaires at Newport and are preparing to open there soon.

J. A. Newsham, of New Orleans, sailed May 29 from New York on the steamer Baltic for a trip to Europe.

A contract has been signed for a flower show March 21 to 28, 1914, at the Grand Central Palace, under the auspices of the New York Florists' Club and the Horticultural Society of New York.

The son of Charles Brown, the Broadway florist, died June 3, following an operation.

Mrs. H. H. Berger and Miss Berger sailed May 31 on the steamer Lapland to spend the summer in Europe.

C. W. Scott and A. Kakuda, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., returned June 3 by boat from Galveston, having spent three weeks on a business trip in the southwest.

The New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association will hold its annual outing this month at Delaware Water Gap, remaining over night at the Kittening hotel.

J. Austin Shaw.

H. Frank Darrow has received an interesting letter from the Haerens Co., which he represents in America, with regard to its success in exhibiting azaleas at the Ghent show. It appears that on seventeen entries ten first and seven second prizes were secured. The novelties attracted special interest. Four of the best are said to be Haerewill's Pink Pearl, light rose, a new color; Mme. Jean Haerens, rose; Haerewill's Alba, double white, and President Wilson, double red.

June 3, at Sherry's, on Fifth avenue, Sydney B. Wertheimer, of the firm of Wertheimer Bros., was united in marriage to Miss Edna Leimdorfer. Mr. Wertheimer and his bride sailed June 5 for Europe on the S. S. France. It is their intention to tour the continent and to return early in the autumn, when they will reside in Brooklyn. Mr. and Mrs. Wertheimer probably will visit Minneapolis to attend the convention of the S. A. F.

The Horticultural Society of New York will hold a show at Bronx park June 7 and 8, premiums being offered for peonies, hardy roses, shrub bloom, herbaceous flowers and orchids. Wm. Becker will have charge.

SEDALIA, MO.

Sedalia is soon to have extensive greenhouses, to be located at Sixteenth street and Limit avenue, and on which work will be started in the immediate future. Dr. J. E. Cannaday is the promoter of the enterprise, which will be known as the State Fair Floral Co., and which intends to do an extensive business in a wholesale way to retailers throughout the state. Although no announcement has officially been made as to the cost of the proposed greenhouses, it is said that when they are completed expenditures of approximately $100,000 will have been made. Dr. Cannaday, who returned May 22 from Chicago, visited several of the large greenhouses in that city, and secured valuable ideas for the Sedalia range of houses, which will occupy a tract of ten acres, recently purchased by Dr. Cannaday from the Porter Real Estate Co. It will be impossible to complete the greenhouses this summer, but the contract for the greenhouses and the preparing of the plans is in the hands of the J. C. Moninger Co., of Chicago, and the first shipment of material, consisting of about three carloads, will arrive in about ten days or two weeks. The plans call for the erection of eight greenhouses, which will be 30x200 feet, but only four of these will be constructed this summer, and the others will be put up in time for use during the coming spring.

Carl A. Claeson, who formerly was foreman for the Archias Floral Co., will be manager of the new establishment. He states that a mail order and catalogue plant trade will be built up, in addition to a local and wholesale cut flower trade. The company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Memorial day made a record far above any previous year. So far as many of the stores are concerned, there was no reason for opening at all May 30, as they had nothing to sell, neither potted plants, cut flowers, made-up pieces nor artificials. It was the most complete clean-up ever experienced here. This was not through lack of stock, either; the demand was simply overwhelming. A few years ago there was a feeling that with the passing on of the veterans interest in Memorial day would gradually die out, but it proves that instead of diminishing the practice of decorating graves generally is greatly increasing.

One of the interesting features in connection with the business done in this city was the immense demand for magnolia leaf wreaths. They sold readily at from $1.50 to $3, either plain or with artificial flowers, real blooms not being so much in demand. Many thousands were disposed of. In cut flowers, made-up bouquets had the greatest vogue and sold at from $1 up to $5. One of the best selling flowers for the day was the peony.

Memorial Day Reports.

E. D. Tucker, Central Falls: "Had to go home early; there was nothing to sell."

Charles H. Hunt: "Biggest business I ever did. Had to stop taking orders. I had 100 bouquets for one Grand Army post and 200 pans of geraniums."

J. H. Cushing, Quidnick: "I shipped 20,000 carnations to Welch Bros. Co., Boston, May 28 and could have sold five times as many if I had had them."

J. Koppelman: "Ice boxes all cleaned out hours before closing time on Thursday and nothing in sight for opening on Friday."

M. Sweeney: "They just swamped us with orders. It beat anything I ever saw."

Ed. Brookes, of T. J. Johnston & Co.: "Too tired to talk. We sold out everything and still people were willing to pay any price. We were heavily stocked, but didn't have a quarter enough."

William Crompton, of Crompton:

"Never had such a time in my life getting flowers. Seemed as if everybody in my town wanted bouquets. I'm glad it's over."

M. Maenair: "It kept us on the jump and I had more than a dozen extra help. It wasn't only for the soldier dead, but for general decoration, and everybody hustled."

From all sections of the state came similar reports and a visit to the cemeteries emphasized the fact that the decoration of graves was the most general ever known. The passing of lilacs and wild flowers, as well as the perfect weather conditions, of course, contributed to the situation.

Various Notes.

George W. Fraser is preparing to close his retail store at Arctic Centre, as he is contemplating opening a store in this city.

E. D. Tucker is making extensive alterations and improvements in his store at Central Falls.

John C. Caswell, with W. E. Barrett & Co., who has been on the sick list, is out again.

William Hay, of Oaklawn, is making large shipments of roses to Boston and New York.

Charles Smith, with J. Koppelman, was in Boston last week on business.

A hearing on the appeal of W. E. Barrett & Co., from the award of $8,000 by the commission on the laying out of a street which demolished the building occupied by the concern for more than half a century, will be held in the Superior Court June 7.

OBITUARY.

Thomas J. O'Hara.

Thomas J. O'Hara died Sunday morning, May 25, at his home on East Clinton street, Huntsville, Ala. He was general manager of the Huntsville Wholesale Nurseries, and had been ill for many weeks.

Frederick W. Thielmann.

Frederick W. Thielmann, one of the leading retail florists in Brooklyn, and one of the best known business men in that city, died May 26 at his home, 189 Graham avenue, after a long illness.

Mr. Thielmann was born in Chicago, and removed to Brooklyn with his parents when he was a child. He was in his forty-seventh year. After a public school and business college education, he entered the employ of his mother, Mrs. Marie Thielmann, who established the florists' business at the Graham avenue address thirty-seven years ago. When Mrs. Thielmann decided to move west, twenty-eight years ago, her son assumed charge of the business, which was one of the largest of its kind in the eastern section of Brooklyn. Mr. Thielmann was a member of the Arion of Brooklyn and the Evergreen Bowling Club. Besides the Graham avenue home he had a beautiful summer residence at Hollands, Rockaway Beach. Mr. Thielmann was one of the most popular men in the eastern district, not only in business, but in social circles. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Rose, and two sons, Alfred and William; also by his mother, a sister, Mrs. Rose Hammes, and a brother, Charles Thielmann, all of whom live in Los Angeles, Cal., and another brother, John Thielmann, who lives in Brooklyn. Interment was in the Thielmann family plot in St. John's cemetery, May 29. Mr. Thielmann recently returned from an extended trip to Los Angeles, where he visited his mother, sister and brother.

David R. Nugent.

David Russell Nugent died in St. Luke's hospital, Newburgh, N. Y., May 21, and was buried in St. Patrick's cemetery May 24. Mr. Nugent spent a considerable portion of his life as a salesman in the art department of Tiffany & Co., the widely known New York jewelers, but failing health caused him to remove to Saranac Lake, where he went into the florists' business. He was well known and at the funeral there was an exceptionally large display of flowers.

John E. Harrison.

John Edmund Harrison, aged 66, died recently at his home on Lock street, Tarentum, Pa. He was born in Pittsburgh in 1845, and when a young man removed to Tarentum, where for many years he engaged in the nursery business. In 1883 he married Miss Willis Garver, of Leechburg, Pa. He was a member of the First Presbyterian church of Tarentum. Two sons, William G. Harrison and J. L. Harrison, both of Tarentum, survive.

APPRECIATION.

I had an awful shock last evening after a quiet day at Fordhook, when Earl, returning from the city, came into my den and I, in talking to him of my intended trip to California, said that I was in hopes to have our mutual friend, G. L. Grant, motor down to Floradale, to have him say, "Why, Mr. Grant died last Sunday." Today I have read the obituary in The Review and feel all the worse at seeing that fine, lifelike portrait of him. He was a year younger than myself, and never have I seen a man more in enjoyment of a rational life than was he, with his charming family in his beautiful home, so exceptionally ideal in location. I know my friends Hugh Dickson and Lester Morse, both of whom were with me when Mr. Grant called for us at Santa Cruz and took us up to his canyon retreat one Sunday last June, will feel equally saddened. I sympathize sincerely with you and your associates, as well as with his widow and children.

Fordhook.

W. Atlee Burpee.

I want to extend my deep sympathy in the inestimable loss of my worthy friend, G. L. Grant. He was one of my oldest and best friends. We worked together, ate together and slept together in the early days, and he always had a smile and a good word for everyone, no matter how trying the situation. I offer my most sincere condolences to his family and his business associates.

Warren G. Matthews.

Dayton, O.

Sterling, Ill. — Extensive improvements are being made at the Swartley Greenhouses, on East Fifth street. Some of the older greenhouses are being removed to make room for up-to-date structures, and the family residence, which has been occupied for fifty years, is being moved to make room for the new residence for the son, Ernest, who has now taken hold in the business.

The Review brings results.

WESLEY GREENE, of Davenport, has issued a monograph entitled "A Preliminary List of Hardy Herbaceous Plants for the Gardens of Iowa."

THE Federal Horticultural Board has issued revised regulations for the enforcement of the plant quarantine act. They are printed on page 62 of this issue of The Review.

THIS is the month in which the florist, and especially the retail florist, should look after his collections. Next month the real vacation season begins and bills not collected in June are likely to go unpaid till September.

It was a splendid Memorial day, without a doubt the best yet. At the recent rate of increase Memorial day, from a cut-flower point of view, soon will be as important as Easter and not far behind Christmas.

WHILE it is late, those who have surplus bedding stock no doubt can move it if offered in the classified columns of The Review. The season is by no means over in all the odd corners of the country to which The Review penetrates.

OUR good friend, Peter Bisset, is no longer a member of the Federal Horticultural Board. The board now consists of C. L. Marlatt, chairman; W. A. Orton, Geo. B. Sudworth, W. D. Hunter, and A. V. Stubenrauch, with R. C. Alt-house as secretary.

THE directors of the Coliseum Co., St. Louis, are considering the feasibility of holding a flower show during the first week in November, on the same scale and plan as the successful show held in Kansas City in 1901. Frank M. Robinson is the manager of the Coliseum Co.

THE New York Florists' Club and the Horticultural Society of New York have signed a contract with the Grand Central Palace for a flower show March 21 to 28, 1914, and will undertake to repeat the artistic and financial success achieved there by the Third National Flower Show.

THAT'S WHY SO MANY DO IT.

The reason why each issue of The Review carries upwards of 600 display advertisements, and why recent issues have carried over 1,000 separate classified ads, is shown by the following letter:

You may discontinue our advertisement of geraniums, as we are sold out. It pays to advertise in The Review.—C. W. Espy & Son, Brookville, Pa., May 26, 1913.

From the publisher's standpoint there is only one trouble with the classified ads—it is impossible to solicit them directly. Nobody knows who has the surplus to offer, so that these ads must all come practically unsolicited, from those who have the stock and have learned that this is the way to sell it.

REVIEW WORTH $1 PER COPY.

The Review is constantly in receipt of commendatory letters setting forth its worth to the writers, and it is always gratifying to know just how much of a help it is to the trade, but probably two of the strongest testimonials of its actual cash value came in one mail from sources that show just how far-reaching is its influence.

One letter is from the manager of a large establishment in Washington state, growers of cut flowers, fruit and ornamental trees, plants, seeds, small fruits and hothouse vegetables, and the other comes from an employee of a leading grower and nurseryman in West Virginia. One places a cash value in excess of $1 a copy on his collection of eight years, while the other says he would have to have it if the subscription price was $4 a year.

Following are the two letters:

Find enclosed my renewal of subscription for another year, and let me say that I would almost rather do without my meals than miss getting The Review. I have every copy for the last seven or eight years, and would not take $1 for any of them. Yours, with best wishes.—Colville Nursery and Greenhouses, by H. C. Smith, Manager, Colville, Wash., May 8, 1913.

Please find enclosed $1 for The Review for one year. Would not be without The Review for four times its cost.—F. W. Mathews, care John Dieckmann & Co., Elm Grove, W. Va., May 10, 1913.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Memorial day trade in this market was probably the best the local wholesale houses have experienced, and almost without exception the wholesalers report it as considerably ahead of last year. Not only was the demand heavier than in previous years, but the stock, with few exceptions, was of better quality than usual for this holiday; also, supply and demand were unusually well balanced, so that all good stock brought satisfactory prices and cleaned up in good shape.

The principal interest no doubt centered in carnations, of which a pronounced shortage was predicted a few days before the holiday. Bright, warm weather arrived May 27, and no doubt did considerable to increase the supply; at any rate, the shortage did not prove to be nearly so great as had been anticipated. Some houses were able to fill their orders practically in full, though a considerable number of orders going out May 27 and 28 had to be cut. After the shipping orders were out there was an abundant supply for local demands, and prices declined from twenty to thirty per cent. The unfavorable weather in the week preceding Memorial day resulted in considerable of the stock being soft, and this week the wholesalers have had to adjust more or less complaints of carnations being asleep on arrival.

Next to the carnation the peony was

IN CROP ONCE MORE—THOSE FAMOUS SUMMER BEAUTIES

NEVER ANY BEAUTIES TO COMPARE WITH THESE

BEAUTY buyers know our Summer crop, and will welcome the announcement that we are again ready to fill orders with the same stock that has made such a hit in other years. These flowers are cut from plants that were run cool in the winter, specially to produce this crop—quite a different article from the Beauties cut from old plants, and just as different from the undersized buds from recently planted stock. Once you try these no other Beauties will be good enough for you. Present prices:
$10.00, $12.50, $15.00 and $20.00 per 100.

ORCHIDS

The Cattleyas we offer are western-grown, shipped fresh—nothing finer in the country and sure to reflect credit on the florist using them.

SWEET PEAS

There are no sweet peas to compare with our Butterflies. All colors. Use these for your Bride's bouquet and make a hit.

FANCY VALLEY

Those who know Chicago market conditions recognize that Amling's can be depended on at all times to supply the highest grade of Valley.

ROSES

Never Any Roses to Compare with These

We have fine crops of Roses in all varieties and can furnish any length in quantity, but are specially strong on the medium and long grades. The quality of our Roses is unequalled. If you have not tried them, you will find the size of bud is larger than ordinarily is found on stems of equal length. Our special long Roses are the ones you want when your customer demands the best money will buy. A full line. Headquarters for Mrs. Ward.

PEONIES

We wish every buyer of Peonies could see with his own eyes the various grades of Peonies this market offers—of a truth, there are as many qualities of stock as there are shippers. We can supply the 50-cent Peonies for all who want them, but we also can furnish a grade that is beyond comparison with any other peonies we have seen, and that naturally commands the highest price of any peonies on the market.

CARNATIONS

No scarcity of Carnations any more this season—plenty of them everywhere. But this is the time of year when Carnations not well grown are soft and sleepy. Now, even more than in cold weather, "it is what you get, not what you pay, that determines value." And that means that nowhere can you get so much for your money, in Carnations, as you get at Amling's.

EASTER LILIES

We can supply fine Easter Lilies in large quantity every day in the year.

EXTRA FINE KILLARNEYS

As a general run Killarneys on this market are failing to hold up. As we have told you before this season, we have the best roses in the west and they won first at the Chicago spring flower show. Again we say our Killarneys are worthy of your attention, and being free from mildew and other defects, they still lead this field. We have a big crop and can handle your order promptly. You cannot afford to be without the best.

CHOICE PEONIES--BEST VARIETIES

There are peonies and good peonies—we only handle stock that will be to our credit. Enough said. Likewise our Sweet Peas, Orchids, Valley and all other seasonable stock, including greens.

the important flower. Extremely large quantities were offered, it being stated by some that the supply in storage was greater than ever before. However, the cold storage warehouse was empty on the morning of May 29, and practically everything sold. The cuts being at the heaviest with a number of the nearby growers, the receipts after shipping trade was over were so heavy that the storing of peonies was begun again May 30. There was a sharp stiffening of prices at midday May 29, when it was seen how well the storage stock had cleaned up, and a break that night, when it was seen how much the daily receipts were in advance of local requirements. There was much difference in the quality of the stock. A few special peonies sold as high as $1.50 per dozen, but many were well sold at 50 cents per dozen. Some of the storage stock shook badly, and, if sold at all, had to be made good.

There was an abundant supply of roses, the principal difficulty in this department being that so much of the stock was long-stemmed, while the demand was for roses at moderate prices. Beauties are not a Memorial day flower, but sold well because offered at rather moderate prices. Most of the cape jasmine was just on time this year and averaged better prices than for a number of seasons. There was little special call for lilies, valley, daisies and the numerous other flowers in considerable supply, but in the end most of the miscellaneous stock cleaned up in a thoroughly satisfactory manner. Nearly every wholesaler says that it was the best Memorial day in years, except for sweet peas, for which most of the wholesalers report practically no special call.

This week the market is abundantly supplied with everything. Crops were just getting under way for Memorial day and are this week about at the top. Roses are in full crop and Beauties are in much better supply than at any time in many months. Carnations are plentiful, and local peonies are just coming in, though there are reports that the crop will prove to have been hard hit by frost. Butterfly sweet peas are in full crop, splendid cattleyas are available in quantity, and provision for meeting the June wedding demand has been made by the valley growers, so that this specialty also is plentiful. The only thing that is on the scarce side is common ferns, which have shortened up unexpectedly.

Various Notes.

A new structure is being erected at the Morton Grove establishment of Poehlmann Bros. Co. in the way of a cold house for the storage of stock for Easter blooming. The new house is just at the north of the first houses in Plant A and is 28x200 feet.

A display of the pitcher plant has been attracting attention this week at the store of the A. L. Randall Co. The specimens shown were forms of Sarracenia flava, oddly colored, and Frank Johnson says so many retailers were interested that he hopes to be able to arrange for a regular supply. He thinks there is a possibility of selling in considerable quantity as a novelty.

There is no doubt that the local crop of peonies has been considerably reduced as a result of the frost following the few hot days in early May. It is not thought, however, that this will adversely affect the peony show of the Horticultural Society of Chicago, to be held at the Art Institute June 12 and 13. All the local growers will cut enough stock of excellent quality for exhibition purposes.

O. W. Frese says that a customer left a twenty-dollar gold piece on the cashier's ledge in the store of Poehlmann Bros. Co. during the Memorial day rush. It was found by an employee and returned to the customer.

The Batavia Greenhouse Co. cut the first peonies of the season May 30. In common with other growers, this concern reports that the crop will be light this year.

Tim Matchen says that Peter Reinberg's big motor truck proved its value for Memorial day. The quantity of stock hauled to the store May 28 broke all previous records, consisting of 120 boxes and calling for three trips of the big motor truck.

C. W. McKellar comments on the quantity of wreaths of prepared oak sold this year. He says the demand for this class of goods doubles up each Memorial day.

Miss Nettie Parker, who has charge of the books of the Chicago Carnation Co., has been ill since May 27 with a severe attack of tonsillitis, and A. T. Pyfer has had his hands full in consequence.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., asserts that this was the most generally satisfactory Memorial day in the history of the Chicago market, and gives credit to the peony for it. He says that but for the peony there would have been a pronounced shortage of flowers, and he adds that peonies cleaned up much better than he had supposed would be possible, in view of the unprecedentedly large supply.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., disagrees with the general report that sweet peas did not sell well for Memorial day. He says his company was so well supplied that it could meet the ideas of every buyer and that a much larger business than ever before was done with sweet peas.

L. H. Winterson says that plant business at Winterson's Seed Store is much heavier than ever before in the first week of June.

N. J. Wiator says that if the month of June is as good as May he, for one, will have no complaint to make of either supply or demand.

Erne & Klingel say that Memorial day business was much better than last year. Mr. Erne said that the shipping orders never were so numerous in all the years of his experience.

Commencements are growing in importance to both the wholesaler and retailer, according to Phil Schupp, of J. A. Budlong's, who has found a decided increase in the demands each year for suitable stock.

With the exception of the new ice box that has been ordered, the new store of Zech & Mann looks complete in every detail. The delivery of the new refrigerator, which will be a great deal larger than the old one, is expected to materialize this week, and for the present the old one is in service. When both are in operation they will afford ample space for keeping stock in good shape.

A. L. Vaughan says some of the best looking peonies this year turned out badly after a short time in storage, and it was necessary to exercise care in selecting stock for shipping.

John Sinner is among those who are wearing a satisfied smile after the Memorial day rush and, outside of the fact that everything went along in good shape, he adds that it was the best week he has had in May since he entered the local market.

John F. Kidwell, president of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, commented on the excellent quality of carnations for the Memorial day trade, and says that while there were none too many on the market, there is no question but what the majority were able to hold up on shipping.

Mrs. W. E. Horton, who seldom misses a day at her work as the head of Bassett & Washburn's office staff, was absent June 2 on account of illness. C. L. Washburn is preparing to depart for Pasadena, Cal., the latter part of this month, in order to spend the month of July with his son, E. B. Washburn, and family.

May was a favorable month for cut flower production. The mean temperature for the month was slightly above normal, but the excess was due to the heat wave in the first four days of the month, the rest of the month being cooler than normal. The rainfall was an inch above normal, but at the same time the percentage of possible sunshine was one per cent above the average for May, there being an average of nine hours and twenty-four minutes of sun each day. The last frost of the season was May 11, about a week earlier than usual.

Ideal Power, a house organ issued by the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co., in its May issue carried an illustration showing a scene in the boiler shop of Kroeschell Bros. Co., with pneumatic riveting, chipping and calking hammers at work on a big greenhouse boiler lying on its back.

P. L. McKee was at Indianapolis May 30 to take in the big motor races.

T. B. Grey, formerly with the Geo. M. Garland Co., is now connected with the Chicago office of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co.

Harry Garland is employed by Frank Garland, his uncle, in his greenhouse establishment at Des Plaines.

The purchase of a 1-ton Universal motor truck has added another unit to the delivery facilities of the Geo. Wittbold Co. This makes the second truck purchased by this concern since the first of the year, the first being a 1½-ton Autocar, which has been giving splendid satisfaction. Louis Wittbold has purchased Geo. Miss Elizabeth Sadler and Miss Agnes McLeash, who conducted the Leland Flower Shop at 1140 Leland avenue, have closed out their stock and dissolved partnership.

When the application of G. E. Whitney, trustee for the George M. Garland Co., bankrupt, for permission to sell the property, came up for hearing before Referee Eastman, May 29, the matter was postponed to June 4, there being no bids. In the meantime the trustee was instructed to consider plans for a sale at auction. When the matter came up June 4 the sale was again postponed until June 12, as a number of prospective bidders desired more time in investigating the property.

Retail business has been exceptionally good, though the weather has been hot all the week. The weather was unfavorable for the wholesalers, however, as it was necessary for the retailers to have only fresh stock. Memorial day exceeded all expectations; everything in the cut flower and plant line sold well. Peonies took the lead, being sold out entirely for the day. Carnations were the next in the race and were cleaned up fast; more of them could have been sold. Roses did not sell as well as expected, though none could be had on Friday at noon. Outdoor Spanish iris just came into bloom for Memorial day and sold well. A great many different kinds of shrubs were in bloom, but seem to have no effect on the flower-buying public on Memorial day. Made-up wreaths were sold heavily at $1 to $5. Everybody had a large increase over last year's shipping business. Bedding stock sold readily, and everyone who planted graves with geraniums got them on Thursday, which made it easier for the general retail florist to get his orders out on Friday.

Various Notes.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports that Memorial day business showed an increase over last year. Peonies and carnations were the best sellers. The firm had thirty-five employees for Memorial day and shipped 498 boxes of cut flowers out of town on Thursday.

fine lot of home-grown peonies for the trade this year—one of the best lots ever seen in this city for Memorial day.

E. A. Humfeld was exceedingly busy with funeral work on Memorial day, which made it hard for him to get out his general orders. His hydrangeas sold especially well.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports that business was a strenuous rush. Carnations sold most rapidly and Beauties were the slowest.

Samuel Murray says business was much heavier than last year. Plants of all kinds, as well as cut flowers, were sold out early.

Arthur Newell was extremely busy all the week. He bought 7,000 peony blooms from a local grower and these proved to be the finest that have been seen in this city for some time. He says peonies went fast, especially on out-of-town orders.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had a heavy week in decorating, and the shipping trade for Memorial day was the largest the firm ever had.

Henry Kusik & Co. cleaned out everything. They received extra heavy consignments from the north and the stock arrived in good shape. They are still behind with the orders in their wire department.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

The Memorial day trade this year was surprisingly good and surpassed all expectations. The flood has seemingly not affected the people's attitude toward flowers, as there was at least as much spent for flowers in Dayton for Memorial day as ever before. Peonies seemed to be the favorite in cut flowers, but on account of the exceedingly cold weather previous to Memorial day the supply was limited. Carnations were in fairly good supply, with quality that would stand for improvement, but the price was good. Roses met the demand well. Lilies and other miscellaneous stock sold briskly. The outdoor market May 29 was crowded with iris, peonies, hardy roses and all kinds of seasonable stock, which was brought in by the farmers. This did not affect the florists' business, however, as they, too, easily disposed of everything.

Various Notes.

Speaking of the recent flood and its effect on our city, while Dayton today is not what it was in appearance, it is rapidly recovering, and business in all lines has increased wonderfully. Everybody seems inspired with the desire to make Dayton bigger and better. The florists were among those who thought their business killed for a long time, but it has not been so. All florists are greatly encouraged with the way things are going.

Fred Lembke, representing the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, was in the city last week.

Jos. I. Schaefer emphatically declares that his Memorial day business this year far exceeded that of any year previous.

That everything in bedding plants was sold out clean for Memorial day is the report of Mrs. Elizabeth Phebus, and her cut flower trade was fine.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The last four days in May saw one of the best markets ever experienced in cut flowers in this city. It is unusual for Memorial day to see supply and demand so evenly balanced that there is practically nothing left each day to carry over to the following morning. The supply was extremely large, yet the business was so brisk that nearly all the good stock was rapidly taken. Prices were excellent, but not excessive, and quality was fair for the season. This happy condition of affairs was partly due to the cool, rainy weather that cut down the supply and partly to the increasing popularity of flowers at this season.

Peonies were the mainstay of the market; they are used in great quantities by many florists who do not use so much stock at any other season of the year. Some of them buy more for Memorial day than they do at Easter. These buyers will often order several thousand peonies at a time. Such buying makes an impression on the market, simply shifting the point of distribution to the cemeteries, or the battlefields, or occasionally to the scene of some social festivity. There were no excessive prices for peonies. The finest Festiva Maxima occasionally brought $8 and even $10 per hundred, but most of the stock brought $6, as did also fine flowers of other choice varieties; $4 per hundred was the general price for ordinary stock. Carnations advanced a little in price. A few fancies brought $5 and a few fancy red $6 per hundred; $3 to $4 per hundred was a general price for good carnations.

There was heavy shipping for social entertainments and the local parties incident to the horse show and other affairs created a demand for choice orchids, valley, sweet peas and roses without any marked increase in their prices. Roses were in heavy supply and sold remarkably well under the circumstances.

The arrival of June has brought more outdoor sweet peas and with it a good demand for them. Prices on peonies and on carnations have declined. The supply of fancy roses is increasing. Excellent Easter lilies are again to be had in quantity.

Outdoor Planting.

The regular season for outdoor planting in suburbs closes with Memorial day. There will still be some planting done by those who move out late, or who postpone the planting for one reason or another, and at the seashore, but the season proper is over. It has not been an entirely satisfactory season in some respects. The ice May 10, the extremely hot weather ten days later, and the cold, wet weather that extended almost to the holiday were disadvantages. Geraniums seemed more difficult to flower than would have been expected after so early an Easter. In fact, geraniums in bloom were awfully scarce during the last ten days. The volume of business was probably a little larger than in previous seasons, but there is so much stock left in the greenhouses that everyone is looking for-

Club Meeting.

At the June meeting of the Philadelphia Florists' Club, S. S. Skidelsky read a characteristic paper that held the close attention of a good audience.

Arrangements were made for the club's picnic, to be held June 19.

A committee was appointed to ask John Wanamaker for the use of one of his floors for the Fourth National Flower Show, to be held in Philadelphia two years hence.

Various Notes.

The rose show of the Germantown Horticultural Society was held June 2, one week earlier than usual, in order to get the crop at its best. The competition among the amateurs and gardeners was for the Jane R. Haines prize for outdoor roses, offered for the first time. The exhibits were varied and interesting.

John W. White, of Morton, Pa., has just completed a new greenhouse for carnations, using King material.

Louis Berger underwent an operation for appendicitis at St. Joseph's hospital May 27. He is doing well.

The outdoor rose and peony show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was held in Horticultural hall June 3.

The annual outing of the Florists' Club is planned for June 19 at Washington park. There will be sports and a baseball game, Seeds vs. Flowers.

Walter M. Yates dropped in on Berger Bros. one day this week after his strenuous work in May. Mr. Yates says the plant business has been excellent. He is much interested in the effect of the new tariff on nursery stock.

John Westcott says that business at Laurel Hill was heavy last week. Blooming plants and outdoor flowers were much used.

Deutzia scabra, Russian iris, mock orange and sweet william were largely used for Memorial day.

Eugene Weiss, of H. M. Weiss & Sons, Hatboro, Pa., says that their two houses of Carnation Gorgeous planted April 15 are growing finely. They have nearly 10,000 plants of this novelty.

MICHELL'S GIANT PANSY SEEDS

To prove quality to myself I have been making tests of various sowings of Pansy seed bought from different firms in this country and in England. Am pleased to be able to say, "Your Giant Exhibition Strain of Pansy is by far the best." They are simply magnificent in color and size and have a good long stem. They are far ahead of any other. Thinking this might interest you, I am penning these lines.
Yours very truly, STEPHEN AGER.

The Market.

Washington florists are well pleased with the volume of business done for Memorial day, which for some of them was a record-breaker. Stock was quite plentiful and there was a heavy run on all varieties.

The price of America Beauty roses has dropped somewhat, as these can be obtained at $2 per dozen and even less. Other roses are worth between $4 and $8 per hundred. The demand for peonies at from $4 to $8 per hundred exceeds the supply. Lily of the valley was scarce after the holiday and is in good demand. Spencer sweet peas are in excellent shape and are moving well at $1 per hundred. Some exceptionally good gladioli are to be had at from $6

The Market.

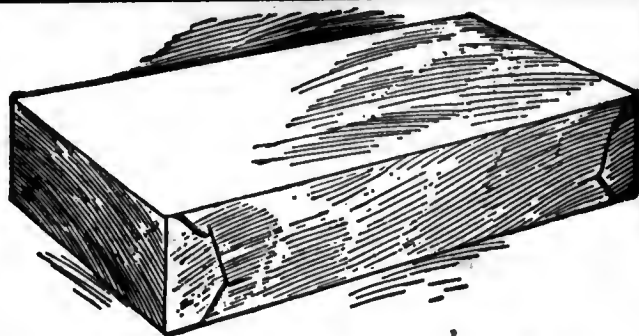

Memorial day business was splendid and everyone says it was the best on record. The unusually cool weather experienced right through May prevented some growers from getting such crops as ten weeks' stocks, feverfew, etc., in on time. Carnations, also, were fewer in numbers than expected. With the exception of a little white spiraea and mignonette, everything was cleaned up at noon May 30. Roses sold quite well. Short and medium stock at $3 to $6 per hundred was mostly in demand. Whites sold almost as well as the colored sorts.

Carnations were in great demand. Growers had little trouble in getting $8 per hundred for all really good flowers, a few going even higher. Other grades went at $4 to $6. Beacon, Pink Delight, Mrs. Ward, Gloriosa, Benora and crimsons were leaders. Carnations never sold so well for Memorial day.

Sweet peas were much sought after and sold out clean at prices varying from 50 cents to $2 per hundred. Outdoor valley competed with the indoor article, but did not have a heavy sale. Lilies made $8 per hundred, and candidums half this price. Large gladioli, such as Augusta, America and Mrs. F. King, went at $2 per dozen, and Peach Blossom at $6 per hundred. Such flowers as stocks, feverfew, candytuft, etc., sold mostly at 50 cents per bunch. Snapdragons sold well, $1 per dozen being a popular price. Marguerites

Choice flowers like cattleyas and gardenias were neglected, and the demand for bedding plants, owing to the cold weather, was less robust than usual. There was an excellent call for greens, Asparagus Sprengeri in the shorter lengths being in great demand. It is the long delayed warm weather. Carnations are in good demand, and so are roses and sweet peas. Considerable overdue stocks, etc., are coming in, but are not wanted at all. Cattleyas are hard to move, even gigas not bringing any more money than is ordinarily secured for Mossia. Peonies, which came mostly from New York and Philadelphia for Memorial day, are now coming in a small way from local growers and will be plentiful toward the end of the week.

Various Notes.

H. M. Robinson & Co. report the finest Memorial day business on record. They sold out of everything and had to do considerable running around to secure sufficient stock to fill their orders. Their business in artificial flowers also was heavy.

May proved to be an unusually cold month, according to the local weather bureau, the coldest in twenty-one years. The rainfall, 3.44 inches, was below the average.

Penn's, on Bromfield street, did heavy advertising for Memorial day, using all the Boston daily papers, and spending over $1,500 in this way. That it paid well is attested by the tremendous number of orders which poured in for their special wreaths from all over New England. They had all the orders for the local Elks and among graves decorated were those of Wilson Barrett, Maurice Barrymore, Neil Burgess and other notables. Many floral tributes were sent away to be dropped at sea and they had quite a few European orders.

Welch Bros. Co. had a banner Memorial day trade, and the only flowers left were some bunches of white spiraea. Large shipments of peonies from New York sold well. A fine shipment of bay trees has just been received.

A. Leuthy, of Roslindale, reports slow sale for bedding geraniums up to date, as owing to the cool weather he has few of his 25,000 plants showing flower, and purchasers demand plants in bloom in nearly every case.

Carnations have never before sold so well in the months of April and May in the Boston market as this year. Prices in these two months have been far in excess of those received in January and February and the demand is still good. Best quality flowers easily made $4 to $5 per hundred the day after Memorial day.

EXTERMINATING RED ANTS.

Can you give me a remedy for red ants? I have a customer whose lawn is overrun with them; they destroy the grass, also bedding stock as soon as planted.

M. R. B. S.

Carbon bisulphide poured in the holes will suffocate the ants, or you can make holes with a pointed stick, pour a teaspoonful in each and then immediately close up the hole. This will suffocate them. Or they can be poisoned by mixing some finely powdered cyanide of potassium with powdered sugar and laying it about their haunts. Use care in handling the cyanide, as it is a deadly poison. White arsenic and sugar mixed into a paste with some lard will also poison ants, but is less effective than the cyanide. Tar water poured about their haunts is distasteful to them and will drive them away.

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

Memorial day business among the wholesalers was much better than in any of the previous years. The market, though, was short of choice stock, but other grades of stock were plentiful and sold well at advanced prices. The weather has been quite hot and the growers say we need a soaking rain.

Flowers that sold well for Memorial day were peonies, cape jasmynes and sweet peas. On these the prices were low enough, but carnations went up to 3 cents and 4 cents, and the stock was not any too choice at these prices.
There were plenty of roses, but because of the hot weather they came in wide open, especially Killarneys, unless they were cut in close bud.

The market opened Monday morning,
June 2, with plenty of stock of all kinds and at somewhat reduced prices.
Sweet peas are a glut and first-class stock can be had at 25 cents per hundred. Carnations were down to 2 cents for choice grades. The market affords large supply in all varieties. The roses are showing the effects of the hot spell.
While there are plenty, the quality is poor in all varieties. Gladioli are coming in heavily and are down to 6 cents and 8 cents. Augusta, America and Francis King are all choice sellers.
Spanish iris in all colors is in good demand. The supply, though, is large.
Valley and lilies hold their own. Early asters hold up to 3 cents to 5 cents.

A lot of outdoor stock, such as daisies, cornflowers, feverfew and iris, has had little call since Memorial day. All greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, Mo., state vice-president of the S. A. F. for eastern Missouri, spent a day last week in the city conferring with several railroad officials as to transportation to the August convention. Mr. Denker made the trip in his touring car.

E. W. Guy, of Belleville, Ill., was in the city buying supplies last week. Mr. Guy reports that the spring plant business with the Belleville florists was extra good this year. He is one of the Florists' Club's committee on the annual picnic, and conferred with the rest of the committee while here. The place for holding the outing will be announced at the next club meeting.

Memorial day business among the leading retailers was reported as better than ever. There was also quite a lot of shipping to small towns. The greenhouse men and those who have stands at Union market say they did a large business, much better than last year. The florists who have places across from the big cemeteries had the biggest trade of any, and were kept busy all day long supplying bouquets, wreaths and plants.

Arthur Ellison, who for the last few years has made his home in Chicago, is back again and he, with his brother Harry, will be taken into the Ellison Floral Co. They have had an excellent run of work for weddings, receptions and dinners this season.

The St. Louis County Plant and Cut Flower Growers' Association has made splendid progress. At its meeting June 4 a number of new members were elected. The meeting comes a week ahead of that of the St. Louis Florists' Club, so as not to conflict with that body, as most of the members are also members of the Florists' Club.

The St. Clair Floral Co., of Belleville, Ill., has given up its city store and all the business will from now on be transacted at the store where the greenhouses are located, on Sycamore street.

The Third street produce commission men are handling quantities of cape jasmine buds from Texas and are selling them as low as 50 cents per hundred in thousand lots.

planting to do. The pleasant weather on Wednesday and Thursday helped somewhat, but on Memorial day there was more rain. The wholesale cut flower houses, however, had a good week, as stock moved nicely at fair prices and most of it was good. The only poor stock, in fact, was southern peonies, which have caused a lot of trouble and the complaints are not all in yet. Local peonies will not be plentiful this year and they did not make Memorial day, so they will not pay for their care this year. Taking it all in all, the month of May was a good one, containing two good holidays, Mothers' day and Memorial day, both of which were better than usual.

The retailers had about their usual Memorial day business, with nothing extraordinary in the way of trade, but with satisfactory totals. The gardeners have fared the worst; on account of the rain and cold, they have not got their planting done and will not be able to catch up in less than a week. The parks are all away behind. The cemeteries do much of the grave planting; in fact, where possible, they try to discourage their patrons from bringing in outside florists to do their work, but, owing to the cold and their forces not being equal to the task, there was

Owing to the change of grade at the Point, the old Fort Duquesne block house will need the services of a landscape architect, and the A. W. Smith Co. will lay out the grounds at this old landmark and do the planting.

Geo. J. Learzaf, of Mount Washington, has had the misfortune to be confined to bed for the last two weeks, when he should have been busiest, for his large stock of bedding plants was waiting to be disposed of.

J. M. Johnston, of McKeesport, Pa., reports a fine Memorial day trade, both in plants and cut flowers, and says his Braddock store did just as well.

William Drewes is another Braddock man who is much alive, both in the plant and cut flower trade.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-first annual convention at Cleveland, June
24 to 26, 1913.

W. ATLEE BURPEE is at Culver, Ind., to see his sons graduate from the well-known military school there.

A BULLETIN on "Vetch Growing in the South Atlantic States," just issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will be of interest to seedsmen having trade in that section.

THE Federal Horticultural Board has issued revised regulations for the enforcement of the plant quarantine act. They are printed on page 62 of this issue of The Review.

THE price of Roman hyacinths continues too stiff to be to the liking of importers, some of whom fear there will be a break that may leave them with purchases that will be difficult to move at a profit.

REPORTS from California continue of a most pessimistic nature. While the lack of rain has hit all crops, sweet peas appear to afford gravest concern. The outlook for sweet peas is the worst on record.

GENERALLY speaking, conditions in European seed growing sections may be said to be good. There always is the story of discouraging outlook for this and that class of seeds, but on the whole the present prospect probably is better than for several years.

THE conviction is growing that the seed trade as a whole is the loser by the present parcel post arrangement—the trade meets most of the obstacles but gets none of the benefits. In the middle west there is a strong demand that seeds, plants and bulbs be included with other merchandise in the parcel post law.

THE Gate City Seed Co., of Keokuk, Ia., has completed its plans for the erection of a three-story brick office building and warehouse and a five-story mill and elevator at Third and Exchange streets. It is expected that the buildings will cost from $25,000 to $30,000 and will be completed by December 1. The site of the proposed structures has a frontage of 100 feet on Exchange street and 140 feet on Third street. The mill will be operated by electricity. The officers of the company are: President, A. M. Davidson; vice-president, E. H. Davidson; secretary-treasurer, J. K. Davidson.

IOWA SEEDSMEN MEET.

The Iowa Seed Dealers' Association, which includes in its membership practically all the seedsmen of the state, held its annual convention at Ames, June 3. An executive session occupied the morning, the afternoon was devoted to the inspection of the agricultural college, with talks by the professors, while the annual banquet was held in the evening. The former officers were reelected, as follows: President, Mel L. Webster, Independence; vice-president, Henry Field, Shenandoah; secretary, B. H. Adams, Decorah; treasurer, J. H. Hamilton, Cedar Rapids. The 1914 meeting will be held at Shenandoah.

THE SEED SEASON.More Orders, But Smaller Total.

A rather backward season and the tendency of seed selling to become an all-the-year-round occupation results in business being rather more active than usual in the first week in June. The former custom of considering the season at an end May 31, and of casting up results, is not so general as it once was, but it still at this time is possible to give a fairly accurate review of the 1913 seed-selling season. There is a rather greater variety of reports than usual; they are not, like last year, all of one tenor. Some houses report increased cash total, but many others, and this includes some of the largest, note an increase in the number of orders, but a falling off in the money value, the latter outcome being attributed not so much to the short supply of some seeds as to the low prices of certain others. Extracts from some of the letters received during the present week are presented herewith:

H. G. Hastings & Co., Atlanta.

The spring season of 1913, in the way of seed sales, has been a satisfactory one, showing practically fifteen per cent increase over the corresponding period of 1912. The season carried no special feature; in fact, if it had any special feature other than increase of business it was the fact that it was such a well-rounded out season, and there seemed to be a well proportioned demand for almost all items of seedsmen's stock.—H. G. Hastings.

Archias' Seed Store, Sedalia, Mo.

The volume of our business to date is greater than in 1912. However, values have been lower and trade has been slower on some field seeds, seed corn and potatoes. The weather is favorable for crops in general in this section, although a little too dry for oats. The farmers are generally jubilant over the prospects.—L. H. Archias.

Ford Seed Co., Ravenna, O.

The volume of garden and flower seed business has been about the same as last year. The fact that we have been obliged to use parcel post stamps on packages going by mail has caused an accumulation of the ordinary stamps, which we are having difficulty to dispose of. This is one of the drawbacks of the parcel post system, which in no way benefits the seedsmen. The season is somewhat late and crops are going into the ground rather later than they should on this account, but with good weather in the future will look for a fair yield of most varieties grown here.—J. H. Ford.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia.

We have had considerable increase in the number of orders this season over 1912 and doubtless the actual quantity of seeds distributed has exceeded even that banner year. The orders have averaged, however, less in amount for two reasons: First, the lower prices on many items; second, the decreased demand for certain important market garden seeds, such as cabbage and onion, owing to the low, almost ruinous prices at which these crops had to be sold last fall and winter.—W. Atlee Burpee.

Wood, Stubbs & Co., Louisville.

From general observation we can say the number of orders is greatly in excess of last year, but the volume of business has not been anything like as heavy. There seemed to be a lack of life about the trade this year. Our customers bought only small quantities and ordered on several different occasions, as they needed the goods.

Stokes' Seed Store, Philadelphia.

Regarding the volume of business this season as compared with previous years, during the months of January, February and March it was exceedingly satisfactory and considerably ahead of previous years. This perhaps was somewhat owing to the weather conditions, as during the month of April business fell off considerably, and the unsatisfactory condition of the seed potato situation still further lessened sales in April and early in May. The volume of business as a whole is considerably ahead of last year. The trade in vegetable plants has been phenomenal and it has been impossible to supply the demand, owing to so many being caught by the freeze.—Walter P. Stokes.

Stumpp & Walter Co., New York.

We are pleased to state that the season has been an exceptionally good one. The outlook for the future has never been better, and we think this is the general feeling throughout the trade.

Barteldes Seed Co., Denver.

The season with us has been somewhat backward. Usually February, March and April are our heaviest months, but this season March, April and May have proved to be our heavy months, with indications that there will be planting of garden seeds until the middle of June. The garden seed

FANCY LEAVED CALADIUMS

A Rare Chance for this Season of the Year

For nearly a month past we have been obliged to turn down all orders for Fancy Leaved Caladiums, our stock being exhausted, although we began the season with 30,000 bulbs, but our grower, when making his plantings, found that he had reserved 5000 more bulbs than he could find room for and we are now offering these in a splendid assortment of varieties, many of them are new or rare sorts, at $2.00 per dozen; $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000.

These bulbs are in prime condition and if potted up now will make splendid plants for summer decorations. You can find nothing superior, or that will stand better in your store window during the summer than these beautifully colored Caladiums.

Speak quick if you want them, as they are not likely to last long.

but it won't take you long to sow a few flats of Silver Pink Snapdragon seed. They will be ready for potting after the rush is over and you soon will have a lot of nice plants for fall and winter blossoms, with little effort and a very small expense.

GROW SNAPDRAGON

grow a good one and grow it well, remembering that my ORIGINAL SILVER PINK is the pioneer commercial variety and heads the list for color and habit of growth. Nothing in sight to equal it. Price of seed, my own growing, $1.00 per pkt. of over 500 seeds; 3 pkts., $2.50, cash. Plenty of potted plants, July and August delivery.

We are pleased to say that our season is by no means at an end; we can hardly say that we see the end approaching. We are much pleased with the season's business, and see no reason why we should not have a fine business in all lines during the months to come.—Russell O. Gardner.

James Vick's Sons, Rochester.

Our trade this winter and spring has been excellent. It has been the most unusual spring in a good many ways that we remember. Practically all our cold weather has occurred since February 1, and it is pretty nearly as cold here today as it was part of the time in January—the mean temperature for the entire month of May is several degrees below the average. It has had its effect on our store trade and has probably affected slightly the general mail orders, but on the whole it has been a most satisfactory season.

The cold weather has greatly hindered operations on our seed farms.

Preparing for just such an eventuality, we sowed a good many more varieties of our aster seed in coldframes this year than ever before and it was fortunate that we did so. Otherwise our stock of aster plants would have been extremely limited. As it is, we have a good supply of early varieties, which we are setting out when the weather will permit. The late varieties are growing slowly and unless favorable conditions occur soon, we anticipate that the yield will be relatively small per plant. On the other hand, we are planning for a larger acreage than ever before, since we expect to have about sixty acres in asters this season.—W. H. Dildine.

Oscar H. Will & Co., Bismarck, N. D.

We have had the best garden seed season on record, the orders being more numerous but not averaging so large. The farm seed trade, however, with the exception of Bromus inermis, has been poor, owing in part to the abundant crops last year, the State Agricultural College acting as a clearing house for the farmers, and the constant shouting to them to grow their own seeds. both the national and state governments going more heavily into the seed business each year, it begins to look as if the American seed trade could take a long vacation and go fishing.—Oscar H. Will.

Livingston Seed Co., Columbus, O.

The season with us has not been so good in a mail order way as last season. We also had a disastrous flood in the midst of our season that caused us some loss of trade, as the papers in general over the country reported conditions much worse than they really were. Our local and counter trade has been up to about the usual standard and perhaps somewhat greater than in any year previous. The demand for our Livingston varieties of tomatoes has probably been greater than in any previous year.

In regard to the outlook for the future, we believe it is rather early to express an opinion, as the success or failure of seed crops in this and in foreign countries has a great influence on the trade. If we are to judge from the shortage in crops that is being reported from California, also unfavorable conditions in many of the European seed growing sections, it would perhaps be safe to estimate that the 1914 demand for seeds will be fairly good. You are no doubt aware that a bountiful season along general lines usually results in a curtailed demand.—James Livingston.

To be sure, both are doing splendid work. The retailer who educates the public, and creates the demand for all that is best in flowers and plants, helps the grower as well as himself. On the other hand, the grower who is enterprising enough to invest his capital, and to assume tremendous responsibilities in order to meet that demand, helps the retailer.

One merely supplements the good work of the other.

A True Protective Association.

It seems to me that the time is ripe when retailer and grower should get together and organize a true protective association, an association that would concern itself with things pertaining to the general good of the trade, one that would aim to promote the interests of both. There is no need for a retail men's protective association and a growers' protective association, as separate and distinct organizations.

Various irregularities and abuses, practiced today as a matter of course, could then be easily corrected and overcome.

The man, for example, who rushes an advertisement into a trade paper, offering all sorts of stock, "the best ever," away below the market price, on condition of "cash with order, please," and sends a lot of rubbish instead, would soon cease such practices if a strong protective association took him to task.

However, this is another phase of the subject, perhaps worthy of special consideration.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

San Francisco, Cal.—E. W. McLellan recently has received a great deal of newspaper publicity because of a charge made against him in Hillsborough of violating some of the laws regulating teaming. The case was heard in the evening, by a jury which some of the papers called a "millionaire jury" and to which others referred as "the full dress jury." Mr. McLellan is the most democratic of men. The jury acquitted him on fifteen minutes' deliberation.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business for the last week was exceptionally good. Memorial day and the days preceding were all that could be wished for. By closing time there was little left. Stock was quite scarce in every line. Carnations sold out early. Peonies were limited, only the red variety being obtainable. All outside stock was scarce and good prices prevailed. The orders from out-of-town florists had to be declined, as there was not enough stock for the local needs. Roses are showing the effect of the warm weather, yet the crop has been heavy to date. Sweet peas are a daily clean-up. Some fine strains are offered. Many June weddings are being booked, with a goodly call for valley and roses.

Various Notes.

Fred Vetter, of Boston, Mass., has charge of the growing end of H. C. Eckenberger's place at Milwaukee, Ore. He is well known here, as he was connected with Clarke Bros. several years ago. E. R. C.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The terrible disaster at Long Beach cast quite a gloom over the city May 24 and was the cause of much funeral work. Large quantities of stock have been handled and the glut is practically over, though there is still need of hustling to get rid of all that comes in. The Matilija poppy, Romneya Coulteri, is among the showiest of flowers and is in great abundance now. Centaureas are plentiful; so, also, are outdoor carnations, though the quality is only fair. Cecile Brunner roses are less plentiful, the climbing form being almost over. Other good outdoor roses coming in are Winnie Davis, Ulrich Brunner, Lady Battersea and Mrs. John Laing. Indoor roses are fair. Peonies are coming from northern points, the local-grown stock being over. Cornflowers were in big demand for Memorial day, for flags and similar work, and were on the short side, as no other blue flowers could quite take their place. There is a good supply of orchids, valley and all classes of greens.

The New Doheny Conservatory.

It has been common knowledge for some time that a magnificent new conservatory was to be built on the Doheny estate, at Chester place. Various amounts, ranging from a million dollars down, have been mentioned as the sum to be spent on it, but G. W. Smith, of Howard & Smith, who has had charge of the matter, has been silent on the question. Hearing that fifteen carloads of greenhouse materials were en route for this city, it seemed to me that it was time to break through his shell, if possible. I have it from Mr. Smith personally that the original contract price for the new house was $355,000. It is to be 300 feet long, 121 feet wide and forty-seven feet to the roof. I have positively no statistics to go by, but I believe the house will be unique in many ways. Notwithstanding its great width, there will not be an inside pillar or support of any kind that will reach the ground. It will be of steel framing throughout and will be the last word in greenhouse construction.

Ed. Howard has made many trips to Mexico and other places, collecting plants for Mr. Doheny, and is in Mexico now. Many carloads of these rarities are ready for shipment and many more will be ready before the house is finished. Large specimen palms, cycads, crotons and similar plants will constitute the bulk of these shipments, and their arrival and subsequent arrangement in this splendid house will be an event of the keenest interest to all local plant lovers. Los Angeles horticulturists should be proud that they have such a magnificent patron as Mr. Doheny in their midst, and he, on the other hand, is mighty lucky in securing such an enthusiastic, energetic and capable collector as Mr. Howard.

Various Notes.

A remarkably attractive window was put up by H. Reeve Darling at the store of the Hayward Floral Co., in Sixth street, May 26, and consisted entirely of white flowers. Romneya Coulteri, white sweet peas, valley and other flowers were most effectively arranged and the window attracted a great deal of attention. Bert Harris, of the store staff here, was run down by an electric brougham recently, when riding his motorcycle, and was injured so seriously as to be taken to the hospital. He is progressing satisfactorily.

George Watson spent a most anxious time May 24, the date of the Long Beach disaster, as his wife and daughter were at the ceremony. Mrs. Watson had a narrow escape from death, being less than a yard from the break in the ill-fated structure, but fortunately escaped without injury, only losing her handbag in the confusion.

Funeral work has been plentiful at the Goldenson store of late, and the business in cut flowers is also picking up considerably. Some of the work for the funerals of the victims of the Long Beach disaster was particularly good.

The Market.

From all accounts, the shipping for Memorial day was even better than it was last year. There was considerable difficulty in some instances in getting sufficient stock of the kinds most popular with the out-of-town florists. There were plenty of roses and carnations, but such items as stocks, candytuft, gaillardias and coreopsis were not in such profusion as they are usually seen. The extreme dryness of the season undoubtedly had much to do with this. Bride gladioli were plentiful enough; the full crop opened more favorably to the growers than it did last year, when it was about one week late. Other varieties of gladioli are not yet in great evidence. Peonies, except for the darker sorts, were also past their prime.

The street hucksters seem to have had the best of the cheaper lines of Memorial day business and many hastily improvised stands in the vicinity of the cemeteries reaped a good harvest. Inside roses, especially the short-stemmed stock, are in heavy supply and the prices are much below their usual level at this time. Green goods are not overabundant and some of the stores had difficulty in getting enough with which to fill country orders. Taking the situation in its entirety, however, the shipping trade was good, while the town business was not quite up to expectations.

Various Notes.

The E. W. McLellan Co. has taken charge of the store of the Hackel Floral Co. and has retained R. Hackel as manager.

Frank Bradford, of the Mayflower Flower Shop, who has been ill for the last two weeks, is able to attend to his duties again.

One of the largest out-of-town shipments made this season for Memorial day was a dray load of mixed flowers from N. Roller & Co., of Oakland, and consigned to the Eddy Floral Co., of Reno, Nev.

The Trumbull Seed Co., on Market street, has added a full line of bee-keepers' supplies to its poultry and seed business.

Emil Serveau is completely renovating his Fillmore street store.

H. Plath has returned from a pleasant trip in the southern part of the state.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

Officers for 1912-1913: Pres., Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Vice-Pres., J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-eighth annual meeting, Portland, Ore., June 18 to 20, 1913.

THE death of Thomas J. O'Hara, manager of the Huntsville Wholesale Nurseries, Huntsville, Ala., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

JOHN HALL, secretary of the A. A. N., had the 1913 badge book out in good season. It was mailed to members May 31. The list shows 463 members at the time the book went to press, but quite a few were connected through the allied trades.

THE Wyoming Nurseries & Orchards Co., Thermopolis, Wyo., is extending its plant on the reserve adjoining that town. It is setting out 20,000 apple and 10,000 ornamental trees. The company operates nurseries in five towns in the Big Horn valley. O. S. Chilcott, the manager at Thermopolis, reports business on the increase.

THE WHITE PINE QUARANTINE.

In accordance with the warning issued by the United States Department of Agriculture May 16, and published in The Review of May 22, with reference to the white pine blister rust, the department has now issued, under date of May 21, the following announcement, prohibiting the importation of all five-leaved pines from any country of Europe or Asia:

"The fact has been determined by the secretary of agriculture that a tree disease known as white pine blister rust (Peridermium strobil Kleb.), new to and not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States, exists in Europe and Asia.

"Now, therefore, I, David F. Houston, secretary of agriculture, under authority conferred by section 7 of the act approved August 20, 1912, known as 'The Plant Quarantine Act,' do hereby declare that it is necessary, in order to prevent the introduction into the United States of the white pine blister rust, to forbid the importation into the United States from each and every country of Europe and Asia of all five-leaved pines.

"Hereafter and until further notice, by virtue of said section 7 of the act of Congress approved August 20, 1912, the importation for all purposes of all five-leaved pines from the countries named is prohibited.

"This notice of quarantine amends and supersedes Notice of Quarantine No. 1, promulgated September 16, 1912,

BAY TREES (Laurus Nobilis)

These grand ornamental trees are "coming into their own" in the middle and western states. For fifty years and more they have been extensively used in the east and there is nothing to be compared with them for beauty and producing an immediate effect. Our stocks have been especially selected by a specialist in Europe. We carry an immense stock of these Bay Trees. Special prices quoted for quantities.

and other seeds of fruit and ornamental trees or shrubs, and other plants and plant products for propagation not otherwise listed, except as noted above.

All woody plants and parts thereof for propagation or planting are included within the term "nursery stock" as used in this act.

"Field-grown florists' stock" is all florists' stock which is usually grown outside of greenhouses for all or part of the year.

"Herbaceous plants" are plants which perish annually down to (sometimes including) the root; that is, soft, succulent plants.

Regulation 3. Applications for Permits.

Persons contemplating the importation of nursery stock shall first make application to the Federal Horticultural Board for a permit, stating in the application the name and address of the exporter, the country and locality where grown, the port of entry, and the name and address of the importer in the United States to whom the permit should be sent.

Applications for permits should be made in advance of the shipment of the nursery stock, but if, through no fault of the importer, stock should arrive before the issue of a permit the stock will be held in customs custody

Regulation 5. Permits for Entry.

On approval by the Secretary of Agriculture of an application for the importation of nursery stock from countries which maintain nursery stock inspection, a permit will be issued in triplicate. One copy of the permit will be furnished to the applicant, to be retained by him for presentation, on the arrival of the imported stock, to the customs officer at the port of entry named in the permit; one copy will be mailed to the collector at the port of entry; and the third filed with the application. MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

For Memorial day, the last flower holiday of the season, while there was a great quantity of stock used, both pot plants and cut flowers, it did not exceed expectations. About May 20 the sun took a back seat; there was almost continual rain and it was cool. Plant buyers did not venture forth and the wholesalers, not being able to get a definite line on the holiday crop, ceased to take orders and only promised those whose orders were taken to do the best they could. May 25 it was cold and the following day it rained; consequently the receipts May 27 were light. Right here the trouble started; the long-distant shipments had to leave Tuesday or Wednesday morning early, but the supply was inadequate. May 28 and 29 the sun made up for lost time and the consequence was that stock came in heavily, so that by the night of May 29 and all day May 30 there was really stock to spare. All through the siege, the supply of red carnations was far behind the demand. Out-of-town peonies that were promised also were retarded by the inclemency of the weather and came in too late.

While many plants were sold for Memorial day, quite a few growers have stock on hand which did not, owing to the cool weather, come into bloom, but as the season still is young there need be no fear of not cleaning them up.

Several growers again opened stands at the cemetery entrances for Memorial day and sold stock below the regular prices.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to look us up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

"NEW GEUM"

Geum Coccineum

Mrs. J. Bradshaw

This is one of the finest plants of recent introduction. It will put quite into the background all the Geums at present found in gardens. This fine variety produces very large flowers, 2 inches or more across, semi-double, and with plenty of substance in them, of the most brilliant scarlet. They are produced on long wiry stems, and continuously from June to October. For cutting and border decoration it is very hard to beat, and no doubt it will figure conspicuously on the show table in future.

GERANIUMS

THE report comes from all sections that Geraniums are more in demand this season than ever and that all good stock will be cleaned up. We have an excellent lot of young stock ready to ship out, if you wish to grow your own stock for another season, but why bother with it, as we make it our business to provide your stock for you, to be shipped any time in the fall or winter you have the room, after Chrysanthemums or other crops have been removed? Our stock houses of Standard sorts alone, as now planted, contain 300,000 plants, as pretty as you ever saw. Then we have Novelty stock, Ivy-leaved sorts, Scented and Variegated varieties to the extent that we are confident we can take care of any order you may place with us. Think it over. Can you afford to bother with the stock yourself for $18.50 per 1000 for 2-inch plants?

SCARLET BEDDER

We have bought of Elmer D. Smith & Co. stock of this superior Scarlet Geranium and offer good, strong plants from 3-inch pots, for immediate shipment, at $1.50 per doz., $10.00 per 100.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Memorial day business proved to be good. Everything salable sold, and sold quickly. The prices realized were, on the whole, quite satisfactory. The weather man, for the first time in many years, came to the aid of the trade.

The receipts of peonies are large and the quality is good. Those from regular consignors at points farther north that did not make Memorial day are now coming in, while cuts of home-grown later varieties, too, are heavy. The offerings include many roses that are elegant for the wedding and commencement demand. The leaders in this respect are Taft, My Maryland, Kaiserin, Richmond and American Beauties. Good stock of Killarney, White Killarney and Bride, too, is coming in regularly.

Carnations, as usual, fell far short of the Memorial day demand. Lilies were in good supply and sold well. The call for valley in the last few days has increased so that it easily takes up the available supply. Candidum and rubrum lilies meet with a good market. The cut of sweet peas is limited and right now they are not much of a factor in the week's business. Other offerings are cornflowers, cape jasmines and Shasta daisies. Business in green goods is brisk.

Various Notes.

The Bloomhurst Floral Co., of Lockland, has been sending fine Richmond roses to the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange.

C. E. Critchell reports that he is having a heavy call for valley.

Wm. H. Gear has returned from the west.

L. H. Kyrk has made arrangements to close his place at 5 p. m. each day during June, July and August. For Memorial day, among other things, he sold over 18,000 cornflowers.

We do not sell seed of Nelrose. Choice, cross-bred varieties of Snapdragons will not come true from seed. The man who tells you otherwise is not your friend. He—well, he wants to sell seed, that's all.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market.

For Memorial day there was an abundance of everything in the flower line, with the exception of outdoor stock. The early spring had brought outdoor flowers on before their usual time, so that they were past. Carnations sold for a fancy price, but roses were normal in price and were plentiful. Sweet peas were sold in great quantities and the quality was good. Cape jasmines sold quite well and they were good. Wreaths of natural flowers, and wreaths of magnolia leaves with natural and artificial flowers, sold well this year and brought from $2 to $5 and up. All kinds of baskets of flowers were used. Peonies were extra fine and brought a fancy price. Iris, columbine and pyrethrum were on sale in small quantities and figured among the cheap flowers. Potted flowering plants were in great demand. Hydrangeas, spiræas, Baby ramblers and Tausendschon roses sold well. Potted forget-me-nots, pansies, geraniums, heliotrope, etc., were also disposed of.

The prospect for June is excellent.

Various Notes.

Osterman & Steele report a fine increase over last year's Memorial day sales.

Wm. Schlatter & Son had a large wedding decoration the end of last week and business was fine.

T. F. Sheehan was completely sold out of plants and had only a few lilies left on Memorial day.

N. F. Higgins says his force worked day and night to get out the orders for Memorial day.

Meacham & Hassell say they did an immense business for May 30.

The Leonard-Fuller wedding, May 28, gave M. Aitken the opportunity for a neat church and house decoration. The employees of the Aitken store June 1 began having weekly half holidays.

L. D. Robinson says he was entirely cleaned up on plants and flowers May 30. He sold large quantities of pans of geraniums and combinations of various plants.

M. Aitken has installed a new Skinner irrigating system at his farm in Agawam, to be used during the summer, where he grows large quantities of outdoor stock, which is shipped to Boston, Pittsfield and various other places in New England.

Max F. John, of the Highland Gardens, reports that the frosts of early May did quite a little damage to his stock, but that his aster seedlings are in good condition.

James Morrison is producing some good sweet peas in Agawam. He is beginning to cut blooms from a new seedling which is a pale lavender with fine flowers and long stems. E. C. A.

CHOICE BEDDING PLANTS

SURPLUS, BETTER AND CHEAPER THAN EVER

After Decoration Day

All florists and growers have empty benches. What shall we do with them? Have them empty? Sure not; no prosperous florist would think of such a thing. Don't let your money rust in the bank; nothing else in the world will pay you better than to invest

In Growing Asters

In the right kind, such as Godfrey Aschmann grows, the Genuine Crego Asters. These bear an abundance of large trusses of big flowers, suitable to cut and use in bouquets, vases, table decorations, funeral designs; these asters are also excellent for pot culture. We have them in separate colors, Pink, White, Shell-pink, Cardinal-blue, Lavender. We are well provided and can meet the rush. 50,000 in 2½-inch pots, large, strong plants, ready for immediate shipment, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000. Take the hint and consider what a profit you can make growing these Crego Asters. In the latter part of July and August your Asters are ripe to cut. Then what? Empty benches again! Then we can raise another crop—replace the Asters with stock for fall and Christmas sales, such as Nephrolepis of all kinds, Poinsettias, Cyclamen, Begonia Gloire de Lorraine and other winter-blooming Begonias, Rubbers, Solanums, Chinese and Obconica Primroses, etc. This is what we call hustling—utilizing your bench room to best advantage. If you want to be successful as a grower, you must be wide-awake and utilize to best advantage every part of your bench room at all times; every square foot of your bench space must bring you from $2.00 to $3.00 per year.

ARAUCARIA EXCELSA OUR SPECIALTY, April, 1912, importation, 5½, 5½, 6-inch pots, 5, 6, 7 tiers, 25, 30 to 35 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00.

JUST ARRIVED from Ghent, Belgium, a new consignment of Araucaria Excelsa, suitable for 5, 5½, and 6-in. pots, 3, 4, 5 and 6 tiers, 12, 14, 16 and 18 in. high, at 40c, 50c, 60c and 75c; Compacta Robusta or Excelsa Glauca, $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50.

Don't miss the chance! A big slaughter in our so well known MOONVINE, IPOMOEA NOCTIFLORA. To clean up and make room for our importation of Araucarias, we decided to cut the price down from 15c for large 4-in. plants to only 10c, $10.00 per 100; large 2½-in., look, from $5.00 per 100 to $3.00 per 100. Now is moonvine time. BEGONIAS. Our so well known strain of improved dark red Begonia Vernon and the beautiful pink Erfordii beat all the old types of Vernon to a standstill; they grow small foliage, but they flower and flower and nothing but flower—when geraniums fail to bloom, our Begonias will do the work. 4-inch, $8.00 per 100; 3-inch, $5.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $3.00 per 100.

PEONIES.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for
"Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

coal to sell on contract. Also, last week, a lake buyer of coal who wanted 30,000 tons had to split his order up into four lots instead of giving it all to one company; no one would take it.
Both Pocahontas and New River operators will have some spot coal, of course, but that is another matter. As these things indicate, there is a demand this year for a little more smokeless coal than the operators are going to produce. Under the circumstances, what does ordinary business prudence suggest? Is it wise to take a chance?
Is it wise to gamble on the probability of no strike and thus postpone placing smokeless coal in storage? Or, under the circumstances, is it the wiser course to make sure of one's coal supply, even though present indications never materialize? In our opinion, there isn't much choice between the two things.
A ton of coal in the bins is better than two tons in prospect—with a mine strike obscuring the prospect."

coils in a greenhouse. We believe we have seen this in an old issue of The Review, but neglected to cut it out, as we do not find it in our scrap book.

H. & O.

A wrought iron pipe 100 feet long will expand as follows, the figures at the left being the temperature of the pipe at the time of filling, and the headings of the columns in the center the degrees of heat in the pipes in operation:

Temperature	In Operation	Exp's'n
At start	180°	215°
Zero	.144	1.72
32	.118	1.47

RADIATING SURFACE OF PIPE.

It is evident, from the nature of many inquiries received by The Review, that a considerable number of florists have no way of estimating the extent of radiating surface in a specified quantity of piping. In other words, they have no way of estimating what amount of piping is necessary to supply the required radiation. When they are informed that a certain size of greenhouse requires a certain number of square feet of radiation, they are still in doubt as to how much piping they must install.

The following table shows the amount of radiating surface, expressed in decimal fractions of a square foot, in each lineal foot of pipe of the sizes commonly used:

Size Pipe	Sq. Ft.	Size Pipe	Sq. Ft.
1-inch	.344	2½-inch	.753
1¼-inch	.435	3-inch	.916
1½-inch	.497	3½-inch	1.047
2-inch	.622	4-inch	1.178

By means of this table, it is easy, of course, to compute the radiating surface in any stated quantity of piping. In 125 lineal feet of 2-inch pipe, for instance, there are 125 times .622, or 77.75 (nearly 78) square feet of radiation.

AMOUNT OF RADIATION.

In response to several requests the following tables are reprinted, giving the data on which heating jobs ordinarily are figured:

With steam heating one square foot of radiation will heat to a temperature of:

Degrees.	Sq. Ft. Glass.
40 to 50.....	.5 to 6
50 to 60.....	4½ to 5½
60 to 70.....	4 to 5

Continuous Firing for Four Years Twenty-four Hours a Day Fails to Burn Out Cyclone Grates

We have installed many sets of Cyclone Grates where these figures have held true.

Any grates that show no evidence of burning after four years' continuous firing twenty-four hours a day must have something exceptionally worth while about them.

Cyclone Grates resist burning because the Cyclone Plan insists upon a mixture of iron being used which years of experience and experiment have found best suited for the purpose.

WHEN PIPING IS NOT IN USE.

Is it advisable to drain the pipes of a hot water system during the summer and allow them to stand empty until fall?

Although it would not make any great difference, it is thought best not to change the water in hot water boilers, as by doing so the oxidation in the boilers and piping would be increased. When fresh water is put into a boiler it always contains more or less air, and the oxygen in the air, acting upon the iron, results in oxidation.

On the other hand, when water has been for a considerable time in the boiler and pipes, the boiling of the water results in the separation of the air from the water. Hence, by keeping the boiler filled with water which has been boiled, there will be less oxidation than when the water is drawn off and fresh water is turned in as cold weather comes on.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

The Memorial day business was up to expectations. Trade this year was of a better class than heretofore. Flowers were plentiful, peonies being in full crop. Daisies, candytuft and feverfew were to be had in almost any quantity. The great auto race, held here May 30, caused a large part of the business to be done the day before, as almost everyone went to the races. This event brought thousands of people into the city, special trains coming from all parts of the country. This naturally meant some business for the florists, as numerous banquets and dinners were given, which called for flowers.

Various Notes.

John Evans, of Richmond, spent a day with us this week.

Hartje & Elder had a fine lot of daisies and candytuft for their Memorial day trade.

The Smith & Young Co. reports May business as far above that of last year.

Frank Hasselman hit it just right with his peonies this year, cutting them by the thousands for Memorial day.

James Karins, with Henry A. Dreer, Inc., called on the trade one day last week.

Myer Heller, of New Castle, is shipping quantities of Beauties into this market.

A. Wiegand's Sons Co. reports May business as highly satisfactory, being a little better than last year.

The Market.

Another week of commencements and fine weather has kept the market well cleaned up. Northern florists who expect May 30 to be the best day of the season may be surprised to learn that we sell no more flowers for this day than for any other, as Memorial day is not observed here. There has been no dull business, however, on this account.

Carnations are in large supply and the quality is all that could be expected at this season. They are fetching $3 to $4 per hundred in a wholesale way, some of the best going as high as $5. Peonies are a thing of the past. They have been good property all the season. Roses are in good supply, with a good demand. Beauties, however, are scarce and of indifferent quality. We were especially pleased with some Chatenay we saw this week. This rose is certainly a beauty and is a good seller.

Various Notes.

McIntyre Bros. continue to have some good dahlias from the open ground; not in large quantities, but plenty for retail use, and they are moving fully as well as if they were in season.

Gladioli are appearing and there will soon be plenty of field-grown stock. The Joy Floral Co., especially, is cutting good flowers.

The summer bedding season is about over, with little surplus stock. Mr. Corbett still has some good geraniums in 5-inch pots.

Hillcrest School Farm has the most complete line of perennials this season that has ever been grown in this city. There is an increasing demand for these on this market. The school is beginning the growing of Dutch bulbs in a small way as an experiment. Last week several thousand bulbs of a dozen varieties of narcissus without a sign of disease were harvested.

Geny Bros. have their new house about ready for planting. They are cutting some of the best dark red late peonies we have ever seen. F. B.

BUFFALO.The Market.

The Memorial day business this season without a doubt surpassed all previous records. The weather was a wonderful help, as the conditions were ideal—not a sign of rain and not too warm. The only drawback was the scarcity of stock. Business started early and the shipping orders were heavy. Early advertising helped considerably and had a telling effect when the day came. It is estimated that 50,000 people went into Forest Lawn cemetery and many thousands into the other cemeteries on the east side and Pine Hill. Every possible flower and plant was brought to the front and stock was sold the minute the commission man showed it. Prices took a decided jump. Carnations went from 3 cents to 5 cents in one day, and other stock advanced in proportion. The rush was so steady that the advance was not so noticeable to the people as it usually is, due only to the fact that they feared there would not be enough to go around. Some retailers who sell geraniums at 15 cents other days raised to 25 cents for small stock, which looked to some like taking advantage of the public. R. A. S.

ERIE, PA.

Decision in the suit of equity begun by Mabel A. Baur and S. Alfred Baur against William F. Kasting, charging that the latter did not fulfill his agreement in a transaction eight years ago, will be made by Judge Walling probably this week. Arguments were heard May 31.

The complainants allege that when twenty acres of land near Twenty-sixth street and Washington avenue were given to Mr. Kasting, as trustee, during a business reorganization, he took it over conditionally. They say the property was to be sold to parties named by Mabel Baur within five years or returned to original owners on demand. Mr. Kasting denied that demands were made on him and said that by paying debts against the property he acquired title. Mr. Baur contends that what Mr. Kasting paid toward the property was gained from property proceeds and was not advanced from Mr. Kasting's personal funds. Mr. Baur alleges that Mr. Kasting advanced no money and has no claim against the property, but is willing to have the court decide what his compensation shall be as trustee of the estate. Mr. Baur demands the return of the property.

Fairmont, W. Va.—Lee Yost is now proprietor of the business formerly conducted by the late H. Glenn Fleming, with a store at 1409 Ninth street.

Malcolm Franklin's Crystal Palace at Yardley, Pa.

IN the spring of 1912 you built for me at Green Plain Rose Farm, Yardley, one of your houses, seventy-two feet some inches wide and six hundred feet long, which to date has proven most satisfactory. It gives as much light and sun inside as there is outside and has splendid roof and side ventilation.

We planted about twenty-one thousand rose bushes of the Killarney family, and, considering the quality and quantity of the roses we are now cutting, it proves to my mind that the Big House of your build is about all that could be desired for giving best results in modern commercial rose culture.

We have had numerous visitors—growers and others—at the Farm, and one of them exclaimed, in speaking of the fine qualities, workmanship and general appearance of the house: "It is a Crystal Palace."

Cypress a Strong Wood.

Do you know that when it comes to strength—carrying strength, bearing-a-weight strength—Cypress is not a weak wood?

CYPRESS IS STRONGER THAN ANY SUBSTITUTE LUMBER.

There's no wood now used in greenhouse construction, none that is claimed to be suitable for the work, that will carry the weight imposed on sashbars and ridge-pole, with half the stiffness and certainty that Cypress can. Look at the old Cypress greenhouses and note that sashbars are not sagging—they are not like an old "sway-backed" horse.

CYPRESS is not spongy—like other woods we might name.

CYPRESS is not filled with little pin holes, like other woods we might name (though the immortal "pecky" is, of course, strictly a "holey" wood).

CYPRESS is not "dozy" like other woods that are being urged as a substitute for it in greenhouse construction.

GREENHOUSE LUMBER

LOCKLAND LUMBER CO., LOCKLAND, OHIO

Perhaps you saw this cut in an advertisement a short time ago.

WE ARE PRINTING IT NOW FOR A REASON.

As a rule, we don't like to come back at "the other fellow."
But this case calls for it. WE have the contract to rebuild these houses.

it? Why bother with all this "child's play"? It never pays to be a knocker. We try to mind our own business by boosting our own goods, for we know our houses are the best that money and brains can produce.

This picture shows the Joslyn greenhouses at Omaha, Neb., just after the recent tornado. The palm house is of iron frame construction, while the houses in the foreground were of the ordinary wood type. In a recent advertisement, "the other fellows" tell about the great strength of their houses, and point to the fact that their iron frame house stood, while the other houses went down. They did not say that the other houses were not iron frame, but let it go at saying they were the "other firm's," and then identified the other firm by quoting from an advertisement. The other firm that built the cypress houses happened to be this company. We want to repeat our statement that every greenhouse manufacturer has had houses go down. When cyclones come along, anything will go down. The gist of this whole thing is, that we have been given the contract to rebuild these houses. Looks "kind o' queer," doesn't

WEDDING FLOWERS.

The Backbone of June Business.

As in other Junes, the demand for wedding flowers is proving the life of the business. It is not true that the retailers sell nothing but wedding flowers during June, but it is the fact that the call for bouquets and decorations constitutes so large a part of the business done that were it not for these June would not hold its present place as one of the best months in the year for the capable retail florists. With the advance in wealth and refinement as much as with increasing population, the demand for wedding flowers becomes heavier each year. More brides must have bouquets, and better bouquets. There are more church decorations, and larger decorations. The business improves from year to year both in number of orders and in size of orders.

The June business is not the easiest of work for the retailer to handle. Frequently it seems to call for his presence in several places at once. Those retailers whose forces are large enough to include a number of skilled men may welcome orders for several decorations for the same time, but to the man who must do all the work himself the spasmodic character of the orders sometimes presents a difficult problem. Most of the weddings come in the first part of the week. There also is the feature that it is easy to lose customers through any mishap on a wedding job. Where almost anything will pass muster on funeral work, no bride will excuse any shortcoming in her wedding flowers. The florist whose stock does not stand up as it should in wedding work can see trouble ahead; he loses his old customers, the bride's parents, and he loses the prospective new customer, the new family—also the friends of both parties. It never pays to use in wedding work any flower that is open to the slightest suspicion. Let the wedding flowers be like Caesar's wife, even if it costs a little extra money.

Because this is the season of weddings, this issue of The Review contains illustrations of some recent wedding flowers that were the work of retailers of the front rank. It will be of special interest on that account.

The Church Decoration.

The church decoration shown in the illustration on this page was the work, June 3, of the Fleischman Floral Co., Chicago. The scene is St. James church and the nuptials were those of a granddaughter of the St. Louis Busch family, of Anheuser fame. It is said to have been the most elaborate decoration done in Chicago thus far this season. The principal flowers used were white peonies. Unfortunately, the average church is not built with a view to photography and the illustration does the decoration scant justice, serving only to show the general disposition of the stock.

The Wedding Bouquets.

The illustrations on pages 8 and 9 are reproduced from photographs of wedding bouquets made at the establishment of David Clarke's Sons, on upper Broadway, New York city. These are the conventional bouquets, one of valley, the other of sweet peas. One of the noticeable features, aside from the general excellence of the bouquets, is the use of ribbon. The New York florists, probably more than those of any other city in the United States, use ribbon freely.

REAL FLOWERS ON COSTUMES.

Natural flowers have been used as a trimming for hats and gowns for several years by many New York women. They were introduced by a florist from Vienna, according to a society authority.

Several New York brides have used the natural gardenia and orange blossoms, not only on their veils, but also as a trimming for their gowns. Natural flowers have been used to make fascinating hats for garden parties, and one of the most charming uses of these fragrant and delicate blossoms was at a New York wedding where the bridesmaids' hats were trimmed with long sprays of Dorothy Perkins rose. Big picture hats similar to those worn by the bridesmaids, and trimmed with the same lovely roses, formed the centerpieces of the fifty tables at which the guests were seated. At the end of the affair they were worn away by fifty pretty girl friends of the bride.

"I always trimmed my hats with natural flowers when I was living in Europe," says a Viennese woman now in New York. "My husband insisted upon it. There were no other hats in which he liked me so well. We had a large garden and greenhouses and each morning I ordered the gardener to bring the flowers I was to wear for the day. Roses, carnations and pansies were always lovely and serviceable. Sweet peas were a little more difficult. It was necessary to wear more of them, and they are delicate and more liable to wilt.

"All the spring flowers are beautiful for hat trimming. Yellow tulips are charming on a yellow hat with a big bow of gauze ribbon of different colors

CHOICE FLOWERS

FOR THE

The Church Decoration

For the church decoration, the florist should select flowers that are in season and of the best quality. The flowers should be arranged in a simple and dignified manner, and should be placed in a central position in the church. The flowers should be arranged in a way that they are easily seen by the congregation, and should be placed in a way that they are not in the way of the service. The Wedding Reception to use with the flowers. Wistaria is beautiful on a black as well as on a white hat to wear with a black or a lavender gown. Apple and peach blossoms are beautiful.

"I always sewed my flowers on with the threads not tight enough to cut the stems. Syringa makes a pretty hat trimming and so does clematis. But nothing is prettier than some of the flowers that come later in the season. The aster is the most satisfactory of all; it comes in so many lovely shades and colors and is so hardy, so easy to manage and retains its freshness so well."

Asparagus lends itself prettily for the green in the natural flower hat trimming. It has been used with hats trimmed with roses and lilies of the valley, with roses and daisies, and with daisies alone.

One of the most effective natural flower hats seen this spring was trimmed with American Beauty roses and was quite simple. The hat was a white chip, with the under rim of black. The roses were placed at the back of this, their strong stems lending themselves to the upright position, a few buds and their leaves nestled just inside the rim of the hat at the back. A soft, rich ribbon of a deep American Beauty tint was raised in large loops with the roses and one piece carried along one side to the front of the hat. The result was beautiful.

THE VACATION SEASON.

Slowly but surely florists are coming around to the idea that they, as much as other men, are entitled to a little time away from business—the old notion that a florist was out of pocket every moment his doors were closed is being dissipated. For some years merchants in lines where Saturday half-holidays are impossible have been closing one afternoon a week during summer, until now the custom is general—almost the only exceptions are the drug stores, the saloons and the florists; florists in many cities still keep open 365 days a year, and 312 nights. But times are changing and here and there over the country there is a town in which the florists are joining in the general closing movement, evenings and one half day a week. For instance, every florist in the city of Pittsfield, Mass., has attached his signature to the following:

We, the undersigned florists of Pittsfield, agree to close our places of business at 1 o'clock on Wednesday afternoons during July and August, commencing July 2 and ending August 27. We further agree to answer no business telephone calls after said time on Wednesday afternoons, also to make no sales or deliveries of goods, excepting such delivery be for the purpose of filling a most important funeral, wedding or express order which had been given previous to closing time, agreeing to hold late orders, of lesser importance, taken before closing time and which it is impossible to deliver before said time, for Thursday morning delivery.

Perhaps some day the trade will progress far enough for Sunday closing to be in order.

WINS SUIT FOR DAMAGES.

Charles Conti, the florist on South End road, New Haven, Conn., has won his suit against the New Haven Gas Light Co. and has been awarded damages of $790. Mr. Conti had instituted the suit on account of injury said to have been caused to his greenhouses and stock by the blasting done by workmen for the gas company in laying a main in the street. The blasting, which was done last fall, was said to have so cracked and disjoined some of the heating pipes as to render the heating system unfit for use, and this condition of the piping was not discovered by Mr. Conti until cold weather arrived, when the necessary repairs could not be made in time to save the stock from injury.

AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

At a meeting of the executive committee Saturday, May 31, the dates chosen for the annual summer exhibition and convention were July 5 and 6. The Massachusetts Horticultural Society has graciously accorded us the privilege of using its hall and will also hold its annual exhibition jointly with ours. The Horticultural Society has arranged a specially attractive schedule, amounting to nearly $500, and a fine exhibition is assured. Our society is now completing its schedule. The cash prizes arranged for will amount to $500, apart from the special prizes in cash, cups, medals, etc., given by individuals.

As no admission is charged at any of our exhibitions and as our only source of income is from the membership dues, we have to rely upon the generosity of the trade and a few members to subscribe to and guarantee the prize list. The society is doing good work. The Cornell bulletins, issued yearly under our auspices, contain valuable information and are free to members of the American Sweet Pea Society.

The sweet pea is growing in popularity and is now a source of revenue to the florist practically all the year around. With increased membership, we hope to do more and better work. The annual dues are $2 per year; life membership, $25. We also specially appeal to the trade for subscriptions toward the exhibition fund, as you all benefit indirectly by these exhibitions, whether in the interest of the sweet pea or other specialized flowers. We trust sincerely that we may hear from you at an early date.

KASTING TO BE POSTMASTER.

The Review's Washington correspondent learns that W. F. Kasting, well known in trade circles, will probably be the next postmaster of the city of Buffalo, N. Y. He has been recommended for the place by the three Buffalo congressmen. He is president of the Wm. F. Kasting Co., which conducts a wholesale cut flower and supply business. He organized the business in 1896. The business that year aggregated $40,000. Last year it amounted to over $200,000; his congressional friends assert. He is the proprietor of the Erie Floral Co., of Erie, Pa., with twenty-one acres of land, three of which are covered with glass. Mr. Kasting is also president of the New York Federation of Floral Clubs, which society includes every florists' club in New York state, with a membership of 1,500. He is past president of the Society of American Florists, which received its charter from Congress, and he has been treasurer of the society for the last four years. He also is a director of the United Fertilizer Co., an Illinois corporation of which August F. Poehlmann is president and N. J. Wietor treasurer. Mr. Kasting is a park commissioner of Buffalo, having been appointed by three successive mayors. Mr. Kasting also is president of the Seneca Fire Insurance Co; has been president of the German hospital for eight years; organizer and director of the Security Savings and Loan Association; delegate twice to the Democratic national convention and five times delegate to Democratic state conventions. He has recently retired as president of the Buffalo Orpheus Society, the leading singing society of the city and of international reputation. He is also a member of the Buffalo Chamber of Commerce and other business and civic associations, as well as social and fraternal clubs. He is 43 years old.

ASPECT AND VENTILATION.

We have a piece of ground that will hold a greenhouse 30x90 feet. The house would have to run east and west. Would this be all right for carnations? I figured on three feet of glass in the sides and arranged for side ventilation.

Wedding Bouquet by David Clarke's Sons, New York.

If this is done, and the ventilation continuous at the ridge, would it be necessary to have vents on both sides? Also, please state which side should have them.

F. M.

Practically all houses for cut flowers, at least in the north, now are built east and west, to get the fullest benefit of the sun. One row of ventilators will be ample; in fact, in a house without side ventilation one row at the ridge is all that is needed for air, the purpose of the double row being not to admit additional air, but to permit the grower to avoid drafts on his plants. Nowadays probably eighty to ninety per cent of the houses have the ventilators hinged to a header, not at the ridge. With two rows, one on each side of the ridge, the grower opens the run on the side from which the wind is blowing. A smaller opening will relieve the heated air than would be the case with ventilators hinged to the ridge and the wind is kept from blowing in and directly onto the plants. No doubt, in the present case, good results will be obtained if the sashes are alternated, half on one side of the ridge and half on the other. If all are on one side, put them on the side from which the wind generally comes, if there is a prevailing direction in this locality.

but it is preferable to give some air rather than to close up tightly on colder nights. It is a certainty that more cattleyas suffer from too little air than the reverse.

Phalænopsis.

Practically all of the phalænopsis will now be out of flower and should be making new roots and foliage. Before growth becomes too active they should be given at least a surfacing of fresh, growing sphagnum. If they are grown in deep, cylindrical baskets and the wood is much covered with active roots, it is unwise to attempt to clear these away, as many are sure to be injured. A far better plan is to place the receptacles in larger ones, filling up any intervening space with crocks and charcoal and covering the surface with growing sphagnum. Water should always be applied rather sparingly to phalænopsis. Damping the outside of the baskets and pans and moistening the surface moss is better than soaking the plants. A dipping is not often necessary, as in the case of cattleyas, lœlias and dendrobies.

Phalænopsis come from a much warmer quarter of the globe than cattleyas and enjoy a warm, moist atmosphere, but air, especially from the bottom, should always be afforded with the temperature over 72 degrees. Avoid a dry atmosphere and there will be practical freedom from the attacks of spider and thrips. When they do appear, sponge the leaves affected with clear water. Avoid too stuffy an atmosphere, or spot or other leaf diseases will appear, but never give such rushes of air as you would for cattleyas. P. grandiflora, P. amabilis, the fine form Rimestadiana and P. Schilleriana are the best commercial varieties to grow.

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Cattleyas.

There is at present an abundance of cattleya flowers. It is true that a large proportion of the Mossiae are gone, but Mendellii is still fine and gigas is now quite plentiful. The Gaskellianas are also coming in, so that no scarcity of cattleyas is probable during June, the month of brides. Lœlia purpurata, L. elegans and a good many bigeneric hybrids are also making a goodly show. Prices during the last half of May and the first part of June have not been robust, but this is no unusual experience, and the grower for the wholesale market should always plan to have as many as possible of his flowers before or after periods of plenty. It is not always possible to achieve these results, but in the case of cattleyas fire heat should have been discontinued some time ago and the plants need an abundance of fresh air at night, as well as during the day. It is not good policy to spray them over and close the house in the middle of the afternoon. This may suit some East Indian species, but is entirely wrong for cattleyas.

Move plants in flower into a cool, airy and well-shaded house. In order to keep down the temperature, rolling lath blinds are preferable to whitewash on the glass. It is not necessary to remove them from flowering plants, as they admit a good amount of light, but when used on other houses, where plants are making their growth, it is better to use them only to protect the plants from the sun and it is surely a great advantage to have all possible light during spells of dark, rainy weather.

Cattleya gigas does not last as well as Mendellii and some other varieties, and the flowers scorch easily in anything like direct sunshine. Therefore, be sure to keep plants in flower cool and well shaded. As the various summer cattleyas pass out of flower, keep them fairly cool and drier at the root, and any necessary potting or rebasketing should be done before the growths are too much started. No matter whether the plants need a complete overhauling and entirely fresh compost, or merely a surface dressing, be quite sure to firm the fiber thoroughly. This cannot be done with the hand; use a pointed stick of some hard, durable wood, such as oak, for this purpose.

On every clear afternoon the plants will be benefited by a spraying overhead, but they should be dry before nightfall. Look out for the destructive cattleya fly. Any abnormally fat growths are pretty sure to contain eggs or young flies, and while there are several partial remedies, the best plan is to cut out all affected young leads. It takes courage to go over a batch of plants and do this, but there is no more certain method of extermination if it is religiously followed up.

In regard to temperatures, no hard and fast rule is possible during the summer months, but 60 to 65 degrees at night is ample. Of course, on many nights these figures are sure to be exceeded,

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Insect Pests.

At this season insect pests outdoors are numerous and need considerable attention. For all members of the aphid family, including the rhododendron lacewing fly, it is necessary to apply some contact spray which will suffocate them. Poisons are of no value whatever. Kerosene emulsion, Imperial soap spray, whale oil soap, Ivory soap and any of the nicotine solutions are suitable to use for aphids, always using a fine, misty spray nozzle. To be effective in the case of rhododendrons and kalmias, the spray must be directed so as to hit the under and not the upper side of the leaves.

For leaf-eating worms or caterpillars of all kinds a poisonous spray must be used, and this should be applied only when the foliage is perfectly dry. Arsenate of lead at the rate of four or five pounds to fifty gallons of water is the safest and most effective poison spray. It is quite adhesive, which cannot be said of Paris green, hellebore or other poisons, and can be used on foliage considered tender without harming it. It should not be used, however, on roses, peonies or any plants from which flowers are soon to be cut, as it whitens the foliage considerably, and this cannot be washed off clean.

For pests in the soil, such as cutworms, root maggots and other larvae, Vermine applied in liquid form at the rate of one part to 320 of water is a safe remedy. It is excellent for applying to greenhouse bench crops attacked by any soil pests, including eelworms, and does not harm the plants in the least. To destroy cutworms, a poisoned mash of fresh shorts, sweetened with molasses and sprinkled with enough Paris green to color it, will destroy many if scattered about their haunts in the evening. Poisoned lettuce and cabbage leaves are also effective. Rhubarb leaves and common shingles, laid among the attacked crops, will be used as hiding places for many in the day time, and if some are laid down each evening and examined in the morning many lurking foes can be easily destroyed.

"AS USUAL."

The most difficult advertising on which to show results is that done by wholesalers of cut flowers. In practically all other lines the efficiency of The Review as an advertising medium is apparent in every letter that comes in, but a large part of the cut flower orders come by telegraph—and who mentions an advertisement in a wire?

Of course, The Review performs the same service for the cut flower people as for the plantmen—only it is not so apparent on the orders—The Review isn't mentioned so often.

But now and then there is a cut flower man who comes in only at certain seasons, who does not advertise often enough to have his name become a household word, and who has not built up so large a business that he thinks it would come without advertising.

Such an advertiser KNOWS his cut flower orders are the direct result of his advertisement, and nothing else. Like this:

Am enclosing check for $30 to cover my cape jasmine advertising for three issues. AS USUAL, my ad paid me well.—T. W. Carlton, Alvin, Tex., May 31, 1913.

The habit is general of mentioning The Review when ordering plants. Readers who want to boost can do it effectively by mentioning the advertisement when ordering cut flowers.

SNAPDRAGON AND FEVERFEW.

Is a heavy application of manure on solid beds advisable? What kind of fertilizer would produce the best results on snapdragon, grown on solid beds? What is the best treatment for getting feverfew to bloom by Memorial day? When should cuttings be taken?

L. K.

Solid beds require no different manure than you would use on raised benches. Why should they? Snapdragons do not want an extra rich soil, else the growth will be soft. A medium soil suits them best. Make feverfew cuttings in the fall and bench the plants about February 1 for Memorial day bloom.

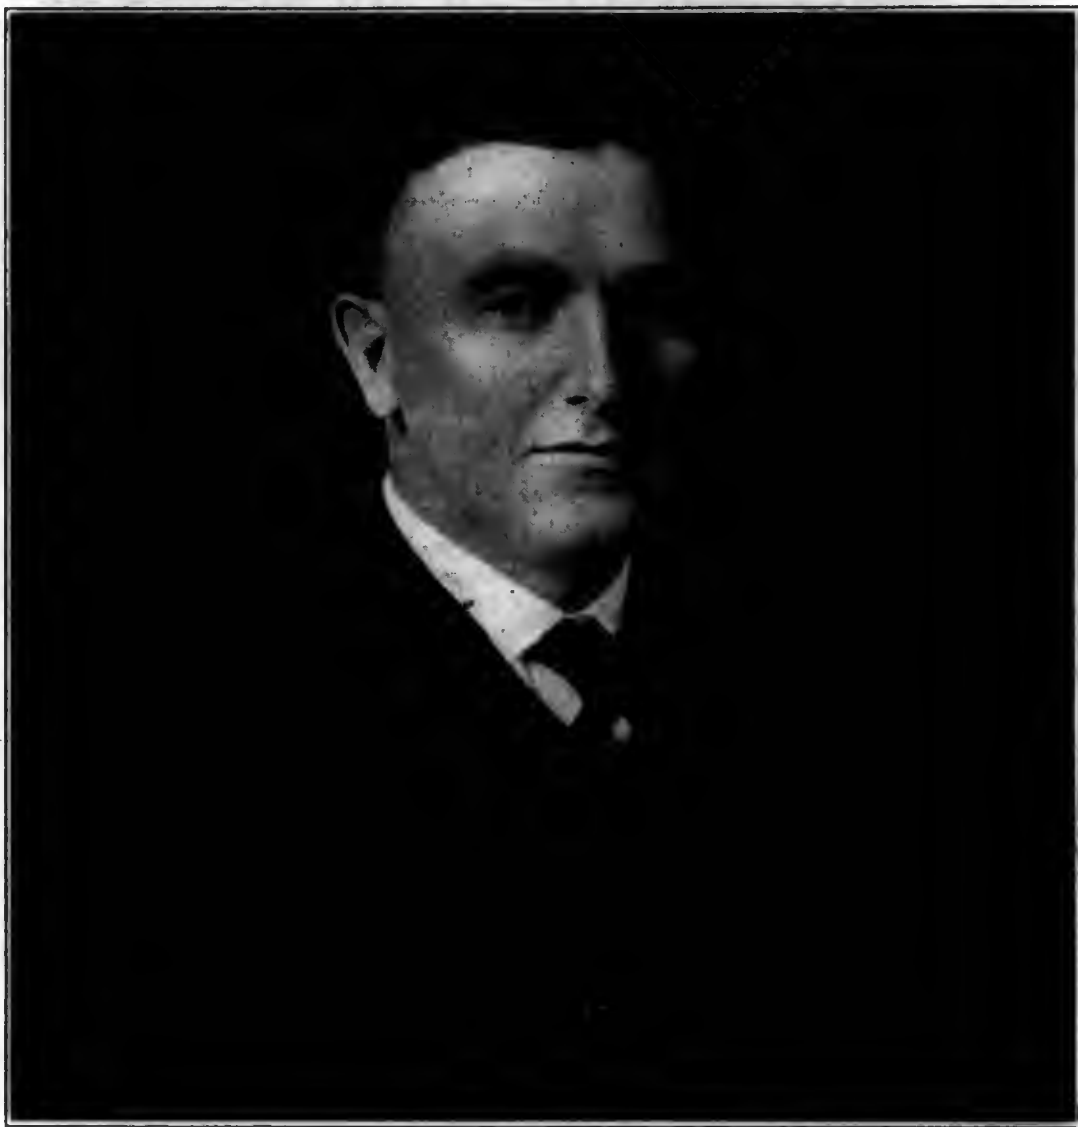

A. F. J. B.

CALLAS NOT BLOOMING.

Kindly inform me why my callas failed to bloom. I have them planted in a solid bed and they look rank, some of the leaves going over four feet. I have not kept them too wet or too dry. I spray them every day that the sun shines. I do not cut more than a dozen flowers every two weeks out of over 400 stalks or bulbs, planted 10x10. Must they be kept extremely wet, or what can be my trouble? I shifted them into a mum bed after the cut. Anything you will say about the trouble will be appreciated.

J. G. K.

I think it probable that your callas had too much root-run for flowering satisfactorily in winter and that this had more than the watering to do with the lack of flowers. Callas like a rich compost. One containing three parts rotted sod, one part well-rotted cow manure and some fine bone added should suit them. Do not give them over five or six inches of soil another season. When the bed is full of active roots you can feed liberally. Bone meal proves an excellent material for top-dressing and you will find the roots greedily devouring it. Afford ample drainage; then you can scarcely overwater. In midwinter a night temperature of 55 to 60 degrees should be given for best results.

"WHO'S WHO—AND WHY"O. J. OLSON.

IT is a well known fact that when one of twins gets a stick of candy the other twin also must have at least a taste. And Minneapolis and St. Paul are the Twin Cities! St. Paul does not purpose to be left out of the S. A. F. convention just because the other twin is the one officially designated as the convention city. O. J. Olson is chairman of the St. Paul committee for the August doings, and a member of the general committee on finance. He also is vice-president of the Minnesota State Florists' Association. Mr. Olson is a member of the firm of Holm & Olson, possibly the largest in the trade in the northwest, and it is his habit to put through with expedition anything he undertakes. Consequently it may be figured that St. Paul will take a quite active part in the affairs next August.

C. W.

A START IN CROTONS.

Will you please tell me how to grow crotons, describing the proper soil, treatment, etc., and also giving the names and colors of the best varieties?

J. W. I.

Crotons, or codiæums as the botanists now prefer to call them, succeed best in a warm, moist greenhouse, where the winter minimum does not fall below 55 to 60 degrees. They should not be shaded too heavily, or the naturally brilliant colorings of the leaves will become more somber. Frequent syringing benefits the plants and keeps such insect pests as mealy bug, red spider and scale in check. Propagation is easy. It can be done by ringing and mossing the tops, which if kept constantly moist will soon produce roots, after which the tops can be potted and kept fairly close until established. Cuttings also root freely in a sand bench, provided there is a good bottom heat and the sand is kept well moistened.

There are such hosts of varieties now in commerce that it is not easy to pick out even a short list of kinds without omitting others of equal merit. New sorts are also being added each year. If you address such specialists as the Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, who grow many thousands of these brilliant foliage plants, they will be glad to furnish you with a list of varieties and descriptions of them. Crotons grow well in a compost of fibrous loam and leaf-mold; when they are likely to stay in pots a considerable time, some fine bone and old cow manure may be added with advantage. They appreciate waterings with liquid manure when well established in pots and in active growth, but heavy doses must be avoided.

ALIVE WITH THRIPS.

I find that I have a battle on my hands; my old carnations, on solid concrete beds, are alive with thrips. At least, I presume it is thrips—a small insect, which hops about half an inch or so when touched. Today I had a bloom in my field and, to my surprise, I found it also stocked with the pest. I want to put my new crop in the same beds in August or September and I want to know a sure plan to keep them out of the new crop. I can heat enough water in my boiler to scald the beds after they are prepared for the plants. The aisles are concrete and can be washed.

J. L. V.

About the only thing you can do toward exterminating the thrips in your houses now, with a view to prevent carrying them over to next season, would be to give your houses a strong fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas when you have removed all the plants. If you can take everything in the way of plants out of the house, there will be no danger of injuring anything and you can then make the gas strong enough to insure the destruction of the pest. However, that will only be getting rid of those that are in the house at the time and will in nowise insure you against an attack next season. As you have noticed, thrips are present on the vegetation all around your houses and they will come inside right along unless you fight them off.

The way to keep free from thrips is to fight them all the time. Start in the fall, as soon as your carnations have begun to grow, and spray regularly with one of the tobacco extracts. Once each week is usually enough to keep the plants clean, but in case you see them getting a start you can increase the number of applications for a time. "Keeping everlastingly at it" should be your watchword when dealing with thrips.

A. F. J. B.

THE SOIL, INDOORS AND OUT.

Would you advise me to stimulate carnations planted in the field? If so, what kind of fertilizer would you use—nitrate of soda, dried blood or sheep manure, and how much? In case of a need of forcing the blooming, would a fertilizer containing a heavy percentage of phosphoric acid and potash, in a quickly available form, be beneficial? Would it not be preferable to apply a good coat of lime to the soil on solid beds, especially for carnations, and get it well incorporated before planting, instead of making applications of it during the winter? L. K.

The proper thing to do with your carnation field is to put on what fertilizer it needs during the fall and winter, so that it will become thoroughly incorporated with the soil before the plants are set out. The soil in the field should be just fairly rich. If you think the fertilizer is really needed, I would suggest a little sheep manure strewn along close to the plants, but do not expect as good results as you would get from fall or winter manuring. In fact, I would think a long time before applying it.

Unless your plants are making a rank growth as a result of having too much nitrogen, you cannot do a great deal in the way of forcing bloom by increasing the supply of phosphoric acid. If the plants have a well balanced food supply, you can more safely increase the temperature a trifle and with better results than by disturbing the root action. A slight rise in the temperature will seldom do any harm, providing it is supplemented with a proportionate increase in ventilation. The trouble with most growers is that they want to produce the higher temperature by closing down the ventilators instead of spending a little more for coal.

It is not advisable to apply a large amount of lime to the soil before it is taken into the houses, unless one is certain that it really is needed. When the plants are growing, you can readily see by the growth whether the soil is deficient in lime or not. It is in no wise detrimental to the plants to apply the lime while they are growing, providing it is applied properly.

NEW BUILDINGS AT LEEDLE'S.

The two accompanying illustrations were made from photographs taken on the premises of the Leedle Floral Co., at Springfield, O., in May. One view, taken from the northeast, shows the nearly completed shed extension, 20x45, with a wing 20x20, which will be utilized for a new office, in order that the old office room may be given over to the girl employees for their exclusive use as a wrap, lunch and rest room. For such departments of greenhouse work as wrapping, labeling, potting, dumping, shifting, moving up, making cuttings, etc., girls of an industrious tendency have been found to be efficient helpers, and it is the policy of this company to encourage them by providing all necessary conveniences for their health, comfort and welfare.

The hollow building tile shown in the walls has yet to be stuccoed on the outside and plastered inside, after which these walls will prove not only to be durable but also to be efficient non-conductors of heat and moisture. As may be seen through the doorway, the south walls of the shed from gutter to ceiling are of studding and glass, so that an abundance of light will be admitted.

The other illustration shows the two new houses, 21x166, in course of erection, as viewed from the southeast. The veteran greenhouse builder, Fred Oates, is seen on the scaffolding. The hollow-tiled south wall, three blocks high, with reinforced pilasters every eight feet, should be noticed; stuccoed on the outside and washed on the inside with cement, these blocks are expected to prove both warm and dry.

The gutter posts, finished, and the ridge posts, partly finished, are seen to advantage. These are a somewhat radical departure in greenhouse construction. A piece of 1-inch wrought pipe, threaded at the top end, is properly located and set in a post-hole filled to the ground line with concrete. Over this pipe are placed, in order, one joint each of 6-inch, 5-inch, 4-inch and 3-inch common red drain tiles or field tiles, which are porous and inexpensive. These tiles are then filled with concrete and, after the filling has become set, the post is given one or more brush coats of cement and a final coat of whitewash. By this plan is obtained, at a moderate cost, a post which is symmetrical, strongest at the point of greatest strain, which is the ground line, and absolutely rust-proof and rot-proof. To form these posts, no molds or curing boards are required; erection can proceed as desired; the surplus water in the concrete mixture is absorbed by the porous tile and a splendid post is secured, which is a combination of iron, concrete and tile. After screwing the gutter bracket to the top of the pipe, the latter is filled with a thin mixture of concrete, so that the iron may be completely imbedded and protected from corrosion.

The houses are rapidly nearing completion, so as to be available for housing the present summer's crop of rose plants, and will add greatly to the rose growing facilities of this company.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market last week suffered its most disastrous shake-up, and shake-down, in a generation. The oldest inhabitant cannot remember anything to compare with it for the first week of June. The market could not digest the enormous shipments. Cellars and ice-boxes were still running over Saturday night, after everybody had been supplied at his own offer. There have been no warm spells worth mentioning and nearly every variety of flower is arriving in superb condition. The demand, however, is far below expectations, and the numerous marriages, dinners and school celebrations seem to hardly create a ripple.

The serious break in prices began June 2 and conditions since have reflected the slump in securities in the financial district. There is no diminution in the rose shipments, and no shortage of any variety. Retail prices in the big department stores were less than half the wholesale figures of a week ago. American Beauties went begging, the best of them away under $10 per hundred. This fact gives, in a word, the general situation. The same conditions prevail as to all the teas, and even the novelties, so-called, are down to unheard-of levels. Great quantities of the lower grades of roses sold at $2.50 per thousand.

Peonies dominate everything at present, grand stock, much of it, and in seemingly endless supply. Only the best sells at a figure profitable to the grower, and mediocre shipments do not sell at all. Quite large quantities are going into cold storage, but most of the arrivals are well advanced and preservation out of the question. Carnations that brought 4 cents and over for Memorial day were selling at 50 cents per hundred last week. The supply is unlimited. There seems to be an unexplainable slump in the orchid demand; few are called for and prices are at their lowest for the year. Valley holds firm, this flower and the white orchid being the favorite for wedding bouquets for the society girls. The street is long on longiflorums, some firms having many thousands left over last week. Prices dropped to 4 cents for the finest, and the short stems fell to 2 cents and under. There is no end yet to the sweet pea flood. Some of the stock is grand, but prices are unmentionable. There is an abundance of gladioli, daisies and all the seasonable flowers.

The retail windows are gay with ramblers, snowballs, syringa and blooming plants, and most of the leading retailers say their June weddings already booked will insure a good month's business.

Club Meeting.

The June meeting, the last of the season, was attended by over 100 members, President Siebrecht being in the chair. The exhibits included a vase of Milady from A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., and a new fern, a seedling of Whitmani, from Scott Bros., of Elmsford, both receiving the thanks of the club.

The following members were elected: T. H. Poblos, Sea Cliff, L. I.; A. E. Jackson, West Summit, N. J.; Vincent Shaketano, Adolph Goldenberg and A. M. Scheider, of New York. The following were proposed: Alexander M. Westwood, George E. Stumpp, Frank Kerpen, Jr., and John C. Daley. The membership of the club now numbers over 400.

The transportation committee's report, from Chairman Bunyard, gave full details as to routes and rates. The consensus of opinion seems to favor the D., L. & W., the train leaving New York at 2 p. m. and reaching Chicago at the same hour the following day, proceeding thence on the Chicago special train. The fare is $27.80, berths and meals extra. The power to decide was left to the committee and twenty-two of those present announced their intention of attending. The club authorized the use of $100 in providing comforts on the way. A special train from New York is possible and the privacy of special cars is assured.

C. H. Totty reported for the flower show committee, with details of the arrangements for next year's show. W. A. Manda, Wallace Pierson, Julius Roehrs, Jr., and Frank Traendly constitute the club's committee. P. O'Mara, F. R. Pierson and Joseph A. Manda are the committee of the Horticultural Society.

W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., reported for the plant market committee and announced the successful completion of the negotiations and the early opening of the plant market in Union Square. Chairman Kessler announced over $400 subscribed in behalf of the prize fund for the club's outing, July 1. Mr. Bunyard read the resolutions on the death of A. L. Don.

P. O'Mara reported, for the legislative committee, the vetoing by Gov. Sulzer of the $60,000 appropriation for greenhouses for floricultural research work. And a petition of protest was signed by every club member.

A splendid address on affiliation was made by A. Farenwald. W. F. Kasting also spoke at length on the same subject and Edison supplied a program of instrumental music that was greatly appreciated.

Various Notes.

L. W. Kervan, Sr., who marched with his comrades on Memorial day, was taken to the hospital and underwent an operation June 6. The reports are encouraging, and his complete recovery seems assured. Mr. Kervan is in his seventieth year.

The June exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York was held June 7 and 8. Notwithstanding a heavy rain, the attendance was fair on Saturday, and an audience of over 200 listened to an interesting illustrated lecture by Dr. Britton. On Sunday the attendance was large. A meeting of the council was held on Saturday at 2:30, and plans discussed as to the flower show in 1914. F. R. Pierson, Joseph Manda, W. A. Manda, Patrick O'Mara and A. T. Boddington were present. The display of peonies was especially good, though the exhibitors were few. Collections of roses and orchids were most creditable. The trade exhibitors of peonies were F. R. Pierson Co. and Cottage Gardens Co. The only non-commercial exhibitor was A. Lahodny, gardener to T. A. Havemeyer. Trade exhibitors in the miscellaneous plant classes were Lager & Hurrell, John Lewis Childs and F. R. Pierson Co. In the same classes there were entries by W. D. Robertson, gardener to Mrs. B. Stern; J. Woodcock, gardener to Gen. McAlpine; P. W. Popp, gardener to H. Darlington; Geo. Wittlinger, gardener to Miss B. Potter; J. P. Mossman, gardener to Clement Moore, and A. Lahodny. Bobbink & Atkins received a bronze medal for a collection of hardy herbaceous plants and W. A. Manda a silver medal for Dendrobium Sanderæ. Jas. Stuart received recognition for some fuchsias and J. P. Mossman for some seedling orchids.

Charles H. Totty, of Madison, has taken over the Robert Schultz range of greenhouses in that town. Mr. Totty's shipping business has been enormous this season and he needs additional facilities.

J. Lewis Bradshaw, eldest son of G. E. Bradshaw, was married June 7 to Miss Annette Robinson, at the residence of the bride's father. The home decoration was the work of the groom's father. The young folks are at Atlantic City.

The New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association will set a pace in outings this year that indicates a prosperous season. Anton Schultheis and Julius Roehrs, Jr., are the committee in charge of the affair. The date is June 25, and the destination Delaware Water Gap, via the Lackawanna R. R., leaving New York at 10:15 a. m. The excursionists will have two days and a night there. There will be a trip to Stroudsburg, a boat ride on the Delaware river through the water gap, dancing, musical entertainment, prize bowling, etc. The tickets, covering all expenses, are only $8.50 and may be obtained from Secretary W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., Queen's Plaza Court, Long Island City.

Jury duty is claiming its subjects in the wholesale district. M. C. Ford and H. E. Froment thus gave last week to their country and their attention was thereby diverted from cut flower conditions on Twenty-eighth street.

The early closing movement is again being discussed by the wholesalers. If coöperation could be secured, there would be no Sunday opening, and 3 p. m. during July and August would see the shutters up.

Much dissatisfaction is expressed at the delays in delivery of flowers by the Adams Express since it absorbed the business of the Long Island Express Co.

Max Schling says every day in June shows a wedding decoration engagement on his books and that general business continues excellent.

M. A. Bowe says his May business broke all records.

The Warendorff stores, which are "all over town," have been doing well all the season. The one on Liberty street, near Wall, feels most the panicky conditions in "the street," where millions change hands in a day. Depression in Wall street means its counterpart all over New York, in the florists' business.

C. C. Trepel is adding two large greenhouses to his conservatories on the roof of Bloomingdale Bros., also doubling the size of his retail store on the ground floor, extending it all the way around to Lexington avenue.

Ralph M. Ward left June 7 for an extended western trip via Toronto and Winnipeg to Vancouver. Mr. Ward's representative, J. H. Reock, is now in Europe in the firm's interests.

A. L. Young is spending his week ends at Suffern, N. Y., where the mountain breezes always blow.

Alex. Westwood, in the Pennsylvania terminal, has completed his first year at this location and says it has been a gratifying success. The transient trade has been constant. Mr. Westwood has taken a lease of the store for five years and will add many improvements.

New York sent many loyal Greeks to the war. George Cotsonas has supplied his share from his working force, and among them his nephew. A. Lecakes.

Several of these men have been wounded, but all are expected back again as soon as the war is over. Mr. Lecakes was five years in Mr. Cotsonas' service. J. Austin Shaw.

Oscar Lion, who is in France, has sent customers and friends a picture post card showing La Tour Eiffel on which he has had printed a salutation beginning: "We are thinking of you, 4,000 miles from home."

Next Spring's Show.

As reported in The Review for June 5, another big spring show will be held in New York next year. Under date of June 6 the following was sent out:

By request of the joint committees of the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club, the announcement is made that a spring flower show, international in character, will be given by the organizations mentioned, in the New Grand Central Palace, New York, March 21 to 28, 1914. A meeting of the committees will be held within a few days, at which organization will be effected and a preliminary schedule drafted, copies of which will be distributed within a week or two. A guarantee fund has been started locally and already amounts to $2,300, and several special prizes have been offered. A horticultural trade exhibition will be held in connection with the show. The undersigned has been appointed manager of the trade exhibition and will be pleased to make reservations of space and furnish any information required. He has also been entrusted with the preparation and publication of the official program of the show, and will be pleased to quote advertising rates and book contracts for advertisements at any time.

Meeting the wishes of the exhibitors at the recent show, the display will be confined to two floors, and all music, entertainment and business features will at the next show be relegated to the second floor.

John Young, Sec'y.

WHITESTONE, N. Y.

The fine greenhouses, plant and home of William Pankok were sold June 2 to the J. M. Keller Co., Fifth avenue and Sixty-fifth street, Brooklyn. The new owners are now in possession of the business. They will conduct it along similar lines to the manner in which Mr. Pankok did.

Thirteen years ago the business was started in Whitestone under the firm name of Pankok & Schumacher. Two years ago Mr. Schumacher retired from the business and since that time Mr. Pankok has conducted it personally. The plant and home are situated on Eleventh avenue, opposite St. Luke's church, and are on a high elevation, commanding a pretty view. The grounds are well stocked with plants and shrubs of beautiful and rare variety. The property consists of about seven acres.

Mr. Pankok expects to sail for Germany June 12, with his little girl. He will be followed later by his wife and other members of the family.

Mr. Pankok is prominently identified with the business interests of Whitestone, being a director of the First National Bank. He will continue these relations with that institution.

The new firm bears an excellent reputation. It is composed of John Appel and Max O. Jordan. Mr. Appel will reside in Whitestone. Mr. Jordan will likely take up his residence here in a year or so, when the lease on the Brooklyn plant expires.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The bottom has completely dropped out of the market and business last week was more unsatisfactory than at any time during the present year. Values took a decided tumble all around; in fact, there were no stable prices on the majority of flowers. No reasonable offer was refused and street fakers have secured all the stock they needed at their own prices. Roses are in heavy oversupply and hard to move. A good deal of the stock now arriving is badly mildewed. Mrs. Aaron Ward easily maintains its supremacy as a yellow rose. Taft remains a popular variety. Carnations are at last hard to clean out. Prices which a week ago were $4 and $5 per hundred have dwindled to $1.50 and $2 for choice stock. Large numbers are unloaded at $5 per thousand and quite a few even lower.

Sweet peas are hard to move and, while the better grades are selling tolerably well, there is a heavy surplus. The same holds true of marguerites, snapdragons, gladioli, Spanish iris and cornflowers. Lilies are a veritable drug and can hardly be cleared at any price. Valley has had a fair call for weddings, but is in oversupply. Gardenias are more plentiful than they were, but the demand is poor. Cattleyas continue rather low in price; the supply is abundant. Quite a few growers who had belated crops of stocks, feverfew, etc., for Memorial day are now sending quantities of these to the market. It is doubtful if in any case they bring the express charges. Peonies are in abundant supply. There is a fair call for strings of Asparagus plumosus and smilax.

Exhibition.

The two leading flowers at the exhibition in Horticultural hall, June 7 and 8, were the rhododendron and the peony. Of the latter only early varieties were shown. T. D. Hatfield, gardener to Walter Hunnewell, was the largest exhibitor of rhododendrons, filling three large tables. R. G. Chamberlain, gardener to Francis Skinner, took first prize for the largest and best collection of rhododendrons, six trusses of each; also for twelve varieties of hardy azaleas, showing fine flowers. For a group of orchids Donald McKenzie, gardener to E. B. Dane, was first, and William Thatcher, gardener to Mrs. J. L. Gardner, was second, each showing capital groups.

German irises were largely shown. For twenty-four vases the awards went to M. Sullivan, gardener to W. Whitman; E. F. Dwyer & Son, and T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. For twenty-five species of hardy herbaceous flowers Old Town Nurseries was first, Blue Hill Nurseries second, and Frederick J. Rea third.

F. J. Dolansky had some well-flowered plants of Cattleya Mossiae, C. Mendellii and C. gigas. He secured a silver medal for two well-flowered plants of the beautiful white Cattleya Mossiae Wagneri. J. T. Butterworth had a fine specimen of Miltonia vexillaria. H. Stewart, gardener to Miss Cornelia Warren, had half a dozen splendidly flowered specimen plants of the old Oncidium flexuosum, also a display of hydrangeas. Mrs. J. L. Gardner showed a fine specimen of Anthurium Brownii, also a table of peonies. Mount Desert Nurseries, Bar Harbor, Me., had a nice collection of trollius, German irises and dicentras. A. H. Fewkes had a table of promising seedling hemerocallis. William Whitman had large displays of peonies and rhododendrons. George W. Page, East Billerica, Mass., had a table of German iris. George Page, gardener to Mrs. Frederick Ayer, showed Phoenix Rebelenii, Viburnum Opulus and carnations. T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. and Mrs. E. M. Gill had good displays of peonies.

William Sim had a grand vase of indoor sweet peas on long stems, the bulk carrying four flowers per stem. M. A. Patten & Co. had a magnificent vase of their new crimson carnation, Princess Dagmar. The flowers were much finer than those at the New York national show. A. A. Pembroke had eight immense vases of carnations, such varieties as Benora, White Wonder, White Enchantress, Gloriosa and Pink Delight. No flowers equal to these were ever before shown here at a June show. They were awarded a silver medal.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. received a silver medal for a collection of German irises covering over 500 square feet, Iris pallida Dalmatica looming up over all others. They also had large tables of peonies, double and single pyrethrums and numerous other perennials. For the new Spiraea Henryi they received a first-class certificate. William Anderson, gardener to Bayard Thayer, showed the new Chinese Hydrangea Sargentiana, a large specimen pot plant. The large, velvety leaves are strikingly handsome, the flowers being rather inconspicuous. It was awarded honorable mention.

Thomas Meehan & Sons had twenty-five varieties of ornamental-leaved shrubs in tubs, a good many being Japanese maples. C. W. Parker had a collection of irises, Wistaria multijuga and other flowers. There was a fine display of vegetables and the first strawberries of the season from Francis Skinner were shown. The exhibition entirely filled the large hall and attracted numerous visitors.

Various Notes.

Frank J. Dolansky, of Lynn, left June 6 for a two weeks' fishing trip in New Hampshire.

J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., Auburn, R. I., is sending in quantities of wonderfully fine roses for the season, all without a trace of mildew. Their specialties are Double White Killarney, Dark Pink Killarney, Cardinal and Killarney Queen.

Wax Bros. report that their Memorial day trade far surpassed all previous records. They are having numerous wedding decorations, as many as three a day last week. They had elaborate decorations for the Waring-Jennings wedding in Fall River, the Hastings-Gammage function in Lynn, and the Adams-Hutchison wedding in Haverhill, and have many more for the balance of the month.

F. H. Houghton reports Memorial day trade as splendid, and he is getting a generous share of wedding orders. His old-fashioned bouquets continue in brisk demand.

E. J. Shaylor, the peony specialist at Auburndale, says he never saw the stock in finer condition than at present. He has some fine European novelties and a lot of seedlings.

E. K. Mundy, of Reading, is at present a leading shipper of high grade Spencer peas and Gladiolus America to the Boston Flower Exchange.

I am glad to report John Barr as much improved and able to walk around his carnation field. His many friends all hope his recent operation will give him a long additional lease of life.

The dates selected for the annual peony show at Horticultural hall, June 14 and 15, should prove about right for the main crop of peonies near Boston, and barring all unforeseen contingencies a magnificent display will be forthcoming.

Martin Wax will be married June 17 to Mrs. Florence Dowling, at the Hotel Somerset, Boston. Mr. Wax is one of the most widely known and popular of the Boston retailers and has a host of friends who will wish him every success in his married life. An extended trip will be made following the wedding. August 5 Mr. Wax and his bride will sail for Europe on the Franconia. They will visit London; Paris, where Miss Wellden, a sister of the bride and a noted opera singer, will entertain them; Hamburg, etc. At Berlin they will be in the hands of Hugo Lichtentritt and Hanz von Buchwald, noted orchestra leaders. Other European cities will be visited before their return to Boston.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, are at present large shippers of Canterbury bells, Spanish iris, Gladiolus nanus, bachelor's buttons, Marguerite Mrs. Sander and pink snapdragon.

At Carboné's store, on Boylston street, I noted attractive displays of hardy perennials. Special window features were made of aquatics. They have some large wedding decorations this month. Mr. Carbone is at present away on an extended European trip.

E. H. Borowski, of Roslindale, is one of the large local growers of bedding plants. He has 50,000 geraniums and it would be hard to find finer stock in the country. Mr. Borowski has thousands of cyclamens in 4-inch pots, the picture of health.

Owing to the regular date for the next Gardeners' and Florists' Club meeting, June 17, being a local holiday, the ladies' night has been postponed until June 24, at which time the local strawberry crop will be at its best. A splendid entertainment has been prepared.

M. F. Ruane, of Waltham, states that he had a splendid Memorial day trade and sold out clean. He had one or two good decorations for that day.

A party of local horticulturists, including Messrs. P. and E. Welch, E. H. Wilson, Charles Sander, W. J. Stewart and others, were the guests of H. Huebner, of Groton, this week and visited the famous Laurel Hills to see the display of mountain laurel at its best. All were delighted with the panorama of floral beauty.

There is considerable talk about the coming Minneapolis convention and it is a certainty that Boston will send a large delegation.

The grounds of Holm Lea, Prof. C. S. Sargent's charming Brookline estate, were thrown open to the public June 7 and 8 and thousands availed themselves of the opportunity to see the displays of rhododendrons, azaleas, wistarias and other seasonable flowers.

Harry Quint is adopting unique advertising methods to draw attention to flower bargains. June 7 the following, in crayon, running the full length of his big window, caught the eyes of the crowd and stimulated business: "To win a wager in Piccadilly Row, London, recently a man tried to sell gold sovereigns for sixpence and only sold two all day, because people thought they were counterfeits. These carnations are not counterfeit and only 25 cents per dozen." If more retailers would have bargain days in times of glut it would help the growers, be of benefit to the large army of buyers who cannot afford high priced flowers, and help the retailers at the same time.

Quite a little greenhouse glass was broken in Lexington by the hail storm June 7.

William Sim commenced picking outdoor sweet peas last week. He has a splendid collection coming on for the big show to be held in Boston July 5 and 6. He has two large houses just coming into crop, which he thinks he can have in good shape for the show by giving a little shade.

CERTAINLY DOES.

Classified plant advertising in The Review has been nearly twenty-five per cent heavier this season than last—because it paid:

You can cut out my Classified Ads. The Review certainly sells the goods.—W. T. Johnson, Moline, Ill., June 2, 1913.

Because of the impossibility of knowing who has the surplus stock, The Review cannot solicit directly for classified ads—they practically all come in unsolicited (but are none the less welcome) from those who have learned that "The Review sells the goods." It certainly does.

Cleveland, O.—J. W. Wilson, president of the Wilson Florist Co., feels that he has broken the record for hauling plants, having hauled 4,725 plants in one load, ranging in size from 2-inch to 7-inch pots, from Storrs & Harrison's nursery at Painesville, a distance of thirty miles, in five hours in a Modern motor truck.

Council Bluffs, Ia.—George McMillan, a laborer employed at the greenhouses of J. F. Wilcox & Sons, died May 31 at St. Joseph's hospital, in Omaha, following a stroke of paralysis. Before entering the employ of the Wilcox company, about a year ago, he had resided at Nevada, Mo. His wife and children, who had continued to live at the Missouri town, were immediately notified of his death.

Batavia, N. Y.—Thomas H. McGuire, florist for the New York Central R. R., started from Batavia June 2 with his annual flower train. It consisted of an engine and two baggage cars, with four men. The force will set out plants at the various stations on the Central between Buffalo and Syracuse on the main line and on the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg and Pennsylvania divisions. Sixty thousand plants are annually set out. The start is three days later than last year.

Decatur, Ill.—C. W. Harrold has bought ten lots at a new location and intends putting up houses there for cut flowers, using the old place for pot plants. He has had an excellent plant business this spring, but plans still larger things. He sold 20,000 geraniums, 9,000 salvias and 1,200 baskets of a dozen pansies to the local trade this season. He will have 100,000 pansies for fall and 35,000 geraniums are in the field for cuttings. Silver pink snapdragon is another specialty into which he is going extensively.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

YOUNG stock of both Sunburst and Mrs. Ward is selling extremely well this season. Dozens of growers are watching for offers of surplus stock.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

It is doubtful if the big cut flower markets ever have seen, in two consecutive weeks, such widely varying conditions as occurred in the week preceding Memorial day and in the week after.

Rock gardens are having a wonderful vogue in England. Climatic conditions are somewhat unfavorable in most parts of the United States, but there are opportunities here that the trade will be glad to see developed.

THE quantity of bedding stock produced this season broke all records, and the quantity already sold has been enormous, with the business by no means over. It looks as though everything will clean up as closely as ever.

It is of special interest to note how many nurserymen say that while the demand for fruit trees fell off this year, the call for ornamental stock was unprecedented. There is a tip here for florists as well as nurserymen.

L. MERTON GAGE, of Groton, Mass., announces that he will not be a candidate for reelection as secretary of the American Gladiolus Society. He says he makes his attitude known at this time so that his successor may be selected with deliberation.

Look around at the concerns you know best and note the way they look after details. Isn't it true that the ones that have the steady, permanently profitable business are the ones that give such close attention to small matters that there never is any question of their ability to handle the big ones? System counts.

THE TELEGRAPH DELIVERY.

A meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery will be held at Minneapolis, Minn., Wednesday, August 20, at 2 o'clock.
Albert Pochelon, Sec'y.

STILL MOVING.

Review advertisers will not find the season over, by any means. The demand will continue, in various parts of the country, for weeks. But don't delay. Clean up your surplus now. This is how:

Our stock, in spite of immense quantity of plants and cuttings, is moving rapidly, even at this late date; we were simply rushed before Memorial day, and all owing to good stock and The Review.—J. P. Siebold, Lancaster, Pa., May 31, 1913.

OBITUARY.

August Kressinger.

August Kressinger, of 190 Stegman avenue, Jersey City, N. J., died recently of heart disease. He was 52 years old and is survived by his mother and two sisters.

Henry Guillaume.

Henry Guillaume, Sr., of La Crosse, Wis., died at his home, 119 South Sixth street, May 28, after an illness of six months with a complication of diseases. He was 66 years of age and was born in Strassen, Luxemburg, Germany. He came to America with his wife in 1872, settling in La Crosse and opening a flower store, which has been continued up to the present. He is survived by his wife and by three children: Mrs. Katie Freimark, of Dakota, Minn.; Miss Emma, of La Crosse, and Henry, Jr., also of La Crosse.

"AND THEN SOME."

A good many letters are more or less like this:

Please cut out our ad. The Review has sold us out, AND THEN SOME.—Le Roy H. Brown & Son, Clyde, O., June 3, 1913.

The average advertiser would a great deal rather oversell than have stock left on his hands, but The Review does its utmost to see that advertising is not continued after the stock is gone. It is purely in the interest of its readers that it so often urges advertisers to cut out their ads, not only promptly after they have served their purpose, but when stock is running low. It is fine to give the advertisers such satisfactory results, but it is better yet to have things come out equally well for every man who orders.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Last week's market was one which will long be remembered by those who get their livelihood from the wholesaling of cut flowers. There are annual spring gluts, but the market never has seen so unwieldy an oversupply in the first week in June. There have been plenty of times when prices have been as low as last week's averages, but there never before was so bad a week following immediately on the heels of a splendid holiday week. Demand and prices for Memorial day were exceptionally good; the contrast made the week following seem even worse than it was.

Enormous quantities of stock were moved last week. No less remarkable than where it all came from was where it all went. The week started with the market heavily supplied and getting worse from day to day, as the weather warmed up. The quality was beginning to be seriously affected when there was a sudden drop in temperature. This had the effect of brightening up the stock, but it seems to have had little effect on the quantities coming in, although production must have been checked. The demand at the opening of this week was not so good as the demand at the opening of last week. The wholesalers see little prospect of normal conditions until after a few days of hot weather run off the present crops.

The belated crops of carnations came on in full force last week. It is literally true that carnations that were

HERE'S WHERE YOU GET FANCY ROSES

NEVER ANY ROSES TO BEAT THESE

WE HAVE fine crops of Roses in all varieties and can furnish any length in quantity, but are specially strong on the medium and long grades. The quality of our Roses is unexcelled. If you have not tried them, you will find the size of bud is larger than ordinarily is found on stems of equal length. Our special long Roses are the ones you want when your customer demands the best. A full line. Headquarters for Mrs. Ward.

CARNATIONS

Special Prices on Thousand Lots

No scarcity of Carnations any more this season—plenty of them everywhere. But this is the time of year when Carnations not well grown are soft and sleepy. Now, even more than in cold weather, "it is what you get, not what you pay, that determines value." And that means that nowhere can you get so much for your money, in Carnations, as you get at Amling's.

BEAUTIES

Unequaled for Quality and Quantity

Our famous annual summer crop. These flowers are cut from plants that were run cool in the winter, specially to produce this crop—quite a different article from the Beauties cut from old plants, and just as different from the undersized buds from recently planted stock. Once you try these no other Beauties will be good enough for you.

PEONIES

Really Good Peonies are not Plentiful this June

We wish every buyer of Peonies could see with his own eyes the various grades of Peonies this market offers—of a truth, there are as many qualities of stock as there are shippers. We can supply the 50-cent Peonies for all who want them, but we also can furnish a grade that is beyond comparison with any other peonies we have seen, and that naturally commands the highest price of any peonies on the market.

SWEET PEAS

There are no sweet peas to compare with our Butterflies. All colors. Use these for your Bridesmaid's bouquets and make a hit.

FANCY VALLEY

Those who know Chicago market conditions recognize that Amling's can be depended on at all times to supply the highest grade of Valley.

ORCHIDS

The Cattleyas we offer are western-grown, shipped fresh—nothing finer in the country and sure to reflect credit on the florist using them.

EASTER LILIES

difficult to obtain at 5 cents each May 28 were difficult to clean up at 5 cents per bunch June 4, one week later, if a day old. The needs of the regular buyers made slight impression on the enormous receipts last week and probably seventy-five per cent of all the carnations that came in have had to be moved through the special outlets available at such times.

Roses did rather better than carnations last week, although it was bad enough. The quality of the roses also is better than the average quality of carnations. The only special demand was for the yellow varieties; everything else was overabundant, though only a few growers are cutting Richmond in quantity. Beauties are abundant. There is considerable variation in the quality here.

Peonies were among the few flowers that sold fairly well last week, and they still are doing nicely. Day by day the injury done by the frost May 10 becomes more apparent. The supply is nothing like so large as in other years. Such of the stock as comes in is, as a rule, extremely good or extremely poor. The good peonies brought fair money, even in last week's glut, though the poor peonies scarcely could be sold at all. No important quantities of peonies have yet gone into storage.

Sweet peas are excellent for the season and are in extremely large supply, principally the Spencer varieties. They are selling well, but at low average prices, it being impossible for some of the largest handlers to clean up except at forced sale. Easter lilies also are in large supply. Gladioli are beginning to come in more heavily. Cattleyas are abundant, but gigas brings fair prices. Last week there was little special call for valley, but this week considerable extra demand is noted.

As usual at this season, there is special call for asparagus strings and smilax, neither of which is plentiful. A few new ferns have arrived and the shortage in this department is expected to be relieved shortly.

two wires connecting with the main electric feed wires were strung to the machine and in some manner Lenik touched one of these. Before anyone could reach him he was electrocuted. A pulmotor was at once obtained from the Des Plaines Gas Co., but it was of no avail. In trying to find the cause of the accident August Poehlmann made a thorough examination of the wires, but no one was able to account for the mishap. Lenik had been a careful employee of several years' standing and was 30 years old. He left a wife and two children, one 3 years and another 18 months old.

Last week's issue of The Review reported the success which had attended the efforts of Louis Visias in his attempt to hold his landlord at Duluth responsible for losses resulting from a failure to maintain the temperature as provided in the lease. T. E. Waters went to Duluth as an expert witness for Visias and a judgment in his favor for $1,500 was the result. Now comes the next chapter, from the Duluth News-Tribune of June 6: "An action accompanied with garnishment proceedings was begun by the A. I. Randall Co., Chicago, in the district court yesterday against Louis Visias on a claim for $100.60 alleged to be due for supplies furnished the defendant May 21 last year. Recently Visias, a florist, was given judgment against the Gregory Co. and John A. Stephenson, his landlords, for damages resulting to growing plants by the failure of the latter to keep his greenhouse properly heated. It is the purpose of the A. L. Randall Co. to garnishee this judgment to satisfy their claim."

Frank Schramm, of Arlington Heights, will spend two weeks in town, doing jury service in Judge Pomeroy's court.

L. Hoechner, better known as Stogie, is the busy man these days. He puts in the full number of hours in the Reinberg store, his wife looks after a retail business, a manager handles old newspapers and in the evening the flower pool privilege at Riverview park comes in for attention.

John Michelsen says that, so far as last week's business concerns the E. C. Amling Co., there is no complaint, the total sales running ahead of last year because of the greater quantity of stock handled, but he adds that the prices averaged the lowest he ever has seen in the week after Memorial day.

Herman Schiller says that since the Koropp place was taken over the business has exceeded expectations. He and Miss Schiller find their entire time occupied. George Asmus buys for both Schiller stores.

fields during the next two weeks. Not so large a part of the crop of blooms will be cut this season, enough being left on the plants to make a good show. William A. Peterson says cutting began June 10. As usual, the cut blooms are being consigned to the A. L. Randall Co.

A new picture hangs in the office of Kyle & Foerster, showing Archie Spencer seated at a banquet with other well-known local lights who gathered to do honor to Joe Tinker, the manager of the Cincinnati National League baseball team.

A. T. Pyfer, of the Chicago Carnation Co., says the season has been especially favorable thus far for the young stock in the field. The plants have made splendid growth. The city store space is being doubled this week.

Among those who have voiced their opinions as to the unseasonable weather of late is A. L. Vaughan, who protests that it is not at all nice for his rheumatics.

Work has begun in earnest on the new retail store being built by H. N. Bruns. All the old glass in the rear

The Rising Eastern Market.

Everyone expected the first week in June would be quite as good as the last week in May and three days following, but it was not. In fact, it was as bad as the other was good. There were plenty of weddings and commencements, out of town as well as in. Gifts to the new judges and other affairs also helped, but it made only a slight impression on the market. There were more flowers left when business was over each day than could possibly be used and the returns will undoubtedly make the growers feel that the season is over.

Carnations have suffered most. The price on good sales of select stock has been fair, although much lower than a week ago, but the average price will be terribly low, because the good sales are limited and much of the stock is inferior. Roses have shared in the depression. The better grades have sold well, comparatively speaking, but the poorer grades have been in heavy oversupply. Sweet peas were abundant and sold well on most days, but sometimes they have run away ahead of the demand. Easter lilies are more plentiful and lower in price. There are lots of pink and white peonies; so many that they are sold at low figures. There is a heavy supply of valley, with a fair number of good orders to support it, generally. Three or four varieties of cattleyas have experienced rather a light demand. There are still a few gardenias and a great many snapdragons, mostly yellow and white. Asparagus sprays have been in good demand, but there is a falling off in the call for adiantum. Cornflower is plentiful.

The Ladies.

The field of flowers is affording an opportunity to woman of working on an equality with man in business. The beauty of form, of color, of combination in plant and flower appeals irresistibly to woman, offering an incentive to effort apart from mere mercenary gain. Many women are attracted by the artists' work in the flower stores, a few by the business life in the seed stores and wholesale cut flower houses, and a few by the cultural work in the greenhouses. A mention of some of the most successful and best known women in our busy city may be of interest.

Mrs. Fred Ehret, first as assistant and now as head of one of our successful uptown stores, has a foremost place in the floral work. She is clever in all departments of retail flower work as well as a good manager.

Mrs. Drew Baer has come into prominence with the rapid rise of the London Flower Shop. She is from over the bright, blue sea and is a born saleswoman of the best type, who has won many friends during her short sojourn among us.

The modesty of the junior partner in one of the wholesale houses will not permit more definite mention. To her is entrusted the maintenance of a high standard of business integrity. To her unfailing cheerfulness many callers are indebted for a few moments of brightness in a busy day.

a large seed house in the absence of the chief, who feels that during his absence the wheels run smoothly.

Miss Leedom has for many years held the unique position of cut flower saleswoman for a grower.

Miss Eva Fletcher, a graduate of a prominent flower shop downtown, has a West Philadelphia store of her own, which she has carried on with activity for several years.

Miss Josephine Michell has been a well-known figure in seedland, where she is thoroughly familiar with every detail of that complicated work.

I might go on for a long time telling of women who have been successful, but I do not wish to tire you but merely to show how important is woman in this as in everything else she undertakes. One name only will be added before closing, that of Mrs. Sarah I. Smith, of Secane, Pa., whose love for flowers has led her into the realm of the grower. Carnations and Beauties are her specialties, and she has the distinction of being the only lady member of the Florists' Club.

Various Notes.

Visitors: Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; John Ratcliffe, Richmond, Va.; C. W. Baldwin and his manager, J. A. Cannon, of Scranton, Pa.

Charles Zimmer, of West Collingswood, N. J., finds that small flowering plants, such as alyssum and verbenas, are not satisfactory sellers. He will confine his attention to geraniums, coleus, cannas and sage for soft-wooded spring plants next season.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has distributed an immense stock of hardy roses.

William J. Gallagher, the well-known pipe salesman, is with John Maneely.

Walter P. Stokes is enjoying a few days' holiday at Mt. Pocono, Pa.

The Johnson Seed Co. believes that celery plants will be plentiful next month.

Louis Berger has returned to his home from the hospital. He is improving steadily.

of color everywhere, with bits of landscape effect formerly lacking, even in that lovely suburb.

Robert A. Craig's planting in front of his home is an object lesson in handsome subtropical bedding. On either side of the center walk are raised circular beds filled with crotons of richest hues. On either side of the front porch steps a long, narrow bed is filled with Dracæna Bronze Beauty, Pandanus Veitchii and fancy crotons. Two handsome specimen hydrangeas, each bearing many heads of fine bloom, and a well kept lawn, add to the picturesque effect of the vine-clad house.

Miss Elizabeth Pennock, daughter of Abram L. Pennock, was married June 5.

There has been a falling off in the demand for commencement flowers in this city, due, it is said, to the failure of many of the gifts to reach those for whom they were intended. This should be remedied by the florist, who could arrange to have someone at the stage door to receive and distribute the flowers.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons had a large decoration at Atlantic City this week.

Edward Reid has been extremely busy with out-of-town commencement orders.

The cold weather June 9 and 10 was extraordinary. The thermometers registered around 40 degrees, something unheard-of here, the old inhabitants say.

David Fuerstenberg, president of the Florex Gardens, was married June 9. His bride was Miss Fannie Muhre.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have a letter from an Atlantic City florist of which they are proud. It congratulates the house on making a delivery of florists' supplies in Atlantic City by automobile.

B. Esehner writes a friend in the trade from Brussels: "Here you can find flowers sold out in the open every day in the year and at your own price. Brussels is a fine city and has some fine flower stores."

The Market.

Business following Memorial day quieted down considerably. The market has been full of stock and prices have dropped. Roses are generally coming in wide open, but the supply of tight stock is in excess of the demand. American Beauty roses, too, are plentiful and can be had at low prices. In the case of carnations it was not so much a question of price as of securing a customer for them. The market is overstocked with plumosus. Peonies are not selling and there is practically no demand for the large quantities of yellow and white daisies. Sprays of rambler roses are moving exceptionally well, due to the many weddings and the entertainments incident to the season.

To prove quality to myself I have been making tests of various sowings of Pansy seed bought from different firms in this country and in England. Am pleased to be able to say, "Your Giant Exhibition Strain of Pansy is by far the best." They are simply magnificent in color and size and have a good long stem. They are far ahead of any other. Thinking this might interest you, I am penning these lines.

He informed those present that the steamer Dreamland has been chartered to carry the contingent from Baltimore to the beach. This date has already been picked for the outing to be given by the bowling team of the club, so that a pleasant affair may be looked forward to. A notification was received from Edward Schmid advising the club that he will tender the annual crab feast. It will take place shortly after the outing.

No definite action was taken regarding the route to be chosen between Washington and Minneapolis at the time of the convention, although letters have been received from several other clubs asking that the Washingtonians join their parties. A committee will canvass the membership to find out who will attend the convention and their preference as to routes.

as last year, although the flowers were a glut on the market during the selling season. The stock at present looks fine everywhere, notwithstanding some extremely hot days of late. Some heavy showers in this vicinity in the last three days were highly welcomed by all.

Various Notes.

Abele Bros. always have a good stock in spite of the heavy shipping. The plants are strong and clean-grown and the propagator is kept busy all the year around.

C. W. Eichling made a success of his large place at Bayou La Combe, La., a short distance from the city. Not only were his narcissi among the finest ever grown here, but he brought the first gladioli from his place and is still cutting them, as fine stock as anybody wants to buy. In the orchard the paper-shell pecans, plums and other stock are home in Pasadena, where the elder Washburn, his father, will visit on his western vacation trip. O. P. Bassett also lives in Pasadena.

Sharp, Partridge & Co. now do their hauling of greenhouse glass with a big, bright red motor truck.

The traveling force of L. Baumann & Co. has taken the field and orders have begun to come in thick and fast. F. J. Monahan, who has the southern territory, left for Texas some time ago; G. Reising, whose bungalow was recently completed in Rogers Park, has gone to his eastern territory, and L. Biederman, western representative, is on the job among his customers.

Increasing business and recent additions to its line of supplies has made it necessary for the American Importing Co. to move to more commodious quarters on the fifth floor of the building at 219 South Dearborn street.

Peter Weiler, of the Superior Machine and Boiler Works, has moved to his new home at Park Ridge, Ill.

The work of building the new range recently put up by Cornelius Kellen, at Niles Center, Ill., was done by the Winandy Bros.

The sale of five greenhouse boilers in one week looks like pretty good business and is to be credited to the Superior Machine and Boiler Works. The purchasers are Charles Henges, of Rogers Park, who bought two boilers; Cornelius Kellen, of Niles Center; Frank Felke, of Gross Point, and Joseph Wahl, of Chicago.

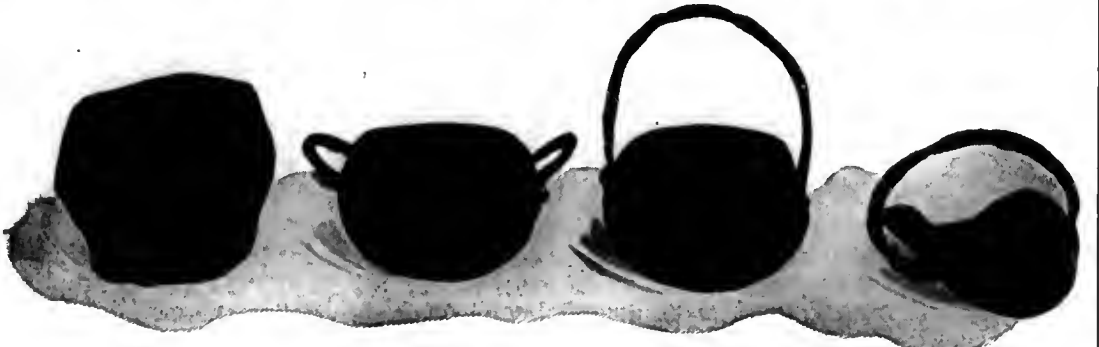

William Kidwell has been gaining some newspaper publicity over a small bill of three years' standing which led to a fistic encounter between one of his employees and the party that owed the money. Harold Ferrara, of the store staff, encountered John K. Joice, a youth of 16 years, in a poolroom, when an argument arose and the bill became a topic of conversation, leading to a three-round battle in which Fred Kreger, a clerk, took a hand by tossing young Joice out the door. The father of the boy swore out warrants for both Ferrara and Kreger and for good measure took one out for William Kidwell. The court discharged all three. The flowers were charged to the elder Joice's account in 1910 by his son and Mr. Kidwell is still trying to collect.

While the present quarters on Washington street do not afford the room that was available in the old place, Lubliner & Trinz have no complaint as to the business done since the change, and on busy days the store is crowded for space. New and better quarters will be opened in the fall.

The entrance at 30 East Randolph street has been greatly improved by a neat sign that announces that the Batavia Greenhouse Co., Weiland & Risch and Zech & Mann are located there. It is one of those coöperative signs that work nicely; while all three have separate quarters, the signs are uniform and pleasing to the eye, which would be impossible if each had an individual sign.

The sons of John F. Kidwell, the president of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, are considered experts good of the club and sports committees with full power to act.

A motion prevailed that the time of the departure of the special train to the convention city, and whether breakfast be served on the train, be left in the hands of the transportation committee.

The special relief committee gave a complete report on the good work it had done in securing stock and distributing same among flood victims who have appealed for aid. The names of the donors and the recipients were read. With a vote of thanks the committee was discharged.

The committee had arranged an attractive display of peonies.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market.

Warm weather has set in at last and the accumulation of cut flowers was felt last week to a marked degree, in contrast with the scarcity of stock for Memorial day. Carnations are good and have held up wonderfully well this spring, for the flowers are still large and crisp, with firm, long stems. Outdoor stock is pouring in in large quantities and peonies are more plentiful than they have been. Columbine and iris are with us again. The new crop of sweet peas is excellent and they are selling well. Roses are still in first-class condition and the supply is overwhelming, reducing prices to a low ebb. American Beauties are scarce and, fortunately, there is little demand for them. Hydrangeas are the only flowering plants now. Ferns are getting poor and are hard to obtain.

Various Notes.

James J. Karins, of Henry A. Dreer,

Inc., was in town last week, having just returned from his western trip.

"Oh, Meacham & Hassell have gone into the millinery business!" So exclaimed someone the other day after seeing the stunning hats trimmed with natural flowers in this firm's window. They were simply showing the latest New York and Paris rage over ladies' hats trimmed with natural flowers. One

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The market was crowded considerably last week, with a lot of good flowers of all kinds, on which the prices were away down from what they were the week previous. The cooler weather has brightened up the stock that was showing the effect of the hot wave. As to roses, the stock that comes in is good, but really nothing that one could call extra fancy. Carnations are becoming small, off color and of poor keeping quality. The market has plenty in all varieties. Sweet peas, too, are plentiful and are selling slowly. Outdoor stock is coming in and the best do not bring much over 35 cents per hundred. Gladioli in three varieties sell well and are becoming plentiful, as outdoor stock is beginning to come in. It shows the effects of the dry weather, but the recent rains should do it a world of good. The price is down to $5 per hundred for the best.

The many weddings for this month have created a big demand for valley, but the market is well supplied with

The Strohmeier Floral Co., located at 6341 Michigan avenue, had its opening June 7. Flowers were given away to all visitors. The store has a neat appearance, the fixtures being all in white. Fred Strohmeier, the head of the concern, is quite a hustler and should make good in his new venture.

The five wholesale houses will start early closing June 16. They will close at 5 p. m. each day and on Saturdays at noon. This arrangement will stand until September 13. The employees will welcome this news item.

Ludwig Zimmer, the Biddle Market florist, will leave next week for his annual trip to Germany to visit his relatives. His place will be closed during his absence.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. had fine shipments of Canfield's early asters last week.

William C. Young, head of the C. Young & Sons Co. greenhouses on Waterman avenue, says the plant trade this spring was better than ever. They had a great run on Gruss an Teplitz roses. The O'Leary Floral Co., which opened recently at Grand and Lucas avenues, reports a splendid run of trade.

Carl Beyer, of the publicity committee, says he is getting publicity enough this week by sitting in the jury box in the Criminal court.

interesting meeting June 4, with a city florists were in attendance.

The Market.

The June wedding season is on and there is a good demand for flowers. Roses, valley, sweet peas and daisies still are the favorites, although in some cases even candytuft has been used. We still are having cool weather, which is holding the outdoor stock back considerably. Peonies, however, are abundant, although it is thought that this week will put an end to the crop for this season. It is quite a rare thing in this section of the state to have home-grown peonies at this late date. The outdoor sweet peas and daisies are commencing to come in. As to the greenhouse stock, roses are quite plentiful; the flowers are good, but the foliage in many cases is badly mildewed, owing to the sudden changes in the weather. My Maryland, Perle and Kaiserin seem to stand the extremes of temperature better than other varieties. The carnation supply is equal to the demand, likewise the lilies. Old ferns are still coming in and are of exceptionally good quality considering the time of the year.

Bedding plants continue in demand, although there are only a few left-over, scrubby looking plants on the market, which regardless of quality seem to sell well.

Various Notes.

W. W. Horlacher had two large wedding decorations last week. One of these was particularly effective, being done principally with pink rambler roses.

Jacob Weber, of Cincinnati, has the contract for building the new greenhouses of George Bartholomew. The work of construction commenced June 9.

W. G. Matthews is busy remodeling his Third street store, which was badly damaged during the flood. Mr. Matthews also has some large orders for June weddings.

John Boehner is busy tearing down some of his old greenhouses and in their place will build one large, modern new Sacramento, Cal.—A. Duhem's greenhouse and lath house, at Oak Park, were destroyed by fire on the night of June 4. Most of the stock, consisting chiefly of ferns, plumosus and smilax, was also ruined, and the plants in the garden were injured. The fire started in a neighbor's cottage, burning the cottage to the ground and spreading quickly to Mr. Duhem's buildings. Mr. Duhem is proprietor of the Flower Shop, at 1105 Ninth street.

San Diego, Cal.—The city council has refused to continue the 5-cent water rate which Frank S. Sessions has been paying in the past, and it seems likely that he must hereafter pay for water at the rate of 8 cents per hundred cubic feet. He recently asked to have the lower rate continued on the plea that he had spent more than $3,000 putting in a pumping plant and reservoir to irrigate his 100 acres near Pacific Beach and that the increased rate would be a hardship to him.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

A much better tone now prevails in the market. Stock from outdoors has shortened up considerably; indoor stock is not so plentiful and the demand is better than a week ago. If growers would desist from sending in rubbishy stock, it would be better for all concerned. It is time for growers to get down to a quality basis, as that is the only one that pays.

Roses are about as last noted. Carnations are not as good as they were last month and the many small "spring" flowers are on the wane. Centaureas are always with us at this season. Cornflowers are pretty and fairly plentiful. Gladioli are becoming more plentiful daily and Romneya Coulteri makes a nice show. Antirrhinums are past their best, but continue to arrive in too large quantities to be cleaned up. Sweet peas are fine and have been in big demand since Cecile Brunner roses became scarcer. The same is true of valley. Orchids are about equal to the demand, which is not great. June weddings started early, one couple entering the connubial state at 12:05 a. m. on the morning of June 1, but I did not hear who supplied the bouquets. Many good wedding orders are booked for later in the month.

Various Notes.

T. F. M. Williamson has opened a store near the corner of Figueroa and Washington streets, in one of the fine new stores built on the site of the old nursery of Norris & Son. Robert Shenk, who was until recently with Morris Goldenson, on Third street, is managing the store, which looks exceedingly attractive in light green. It is a large, roomy store, with ample space behind for a workroom. With such a good location and with an experienced florist like "Bob" in charge, Mr. Williamson should have no cause to regret entering the florists' end of the business. He has long been engaged here in landscape gardening.

Morris Goldenson had the decorations at a musicale given in honor of Miss Elenita Sepulveda recently by her father. The rooms of the Ebel Club were taxed to their utmost to accommodate the 1,000 or so of guests. The stage was finely decorated with palms and Enchantress carnations; the reception rooms were done in pink and white sweet peas. Mr. Goldenson personally took charge of the decorations. Funeral work has also been plentiful at the Goldenson store, one of the finest of the recent pieces being a magnificent broken column, seven feet high, of choice indoor carnations, roses and other stock. Evidently Third street is still on the map as a flower street.

Staiger & Mundwiler are carrying large quantities of decorative stock, which is in fine order. This firm is building a greenhouse, 54x200 feet, at its Lomita place, and reports business fine.

Among the high-grade stock always carried at J. W. Wolters' Hill street store one can always pick out something especially good. This week it is Radiance roses from the El Reah greenhouses, which are remarkably fine in stem and flower. I also noticed the feijoa in bloom here. Mr. Wolters says he is well pleased with the volume of business this season so far and has fine orders for the near future.

Mrs. Roeder was married June 2 to a Mr. Arnold, of Phoenix, Ariz.

Frank Lichtenberg will move from his present location July 1 to the new Hollingsworth building, at Sixth and Hill streets. His new address will be 324 West Sixth street.

Shipping trade has picked up materially at the Los Angeles Flower Market and the stock has been cleaning up in fine shape. The gladioli handled here are of exceptionally fine quality, evidently the product of good cultivation.

The Lanss Bros., of the Palmyra Nursery, are to be congratulated on the excellent showing they have made in a short time. It seems but a few weeks ago that I was there and they were in the throes of construction; now the place looks like an established nursery. Much seedling stock is being raised and a large amount of larger stock is being brought in, especially in the line of araucarias, which make a fine show.

The H. N. Gage Co., reports big business in wedding orders.

Murata & Co. are handling immense quantities of fine carnations, their shipments to distant points being a large item in their business.

The usual monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was postponed one day on account of the election, but still there was only a meager attendance. It was to be regretted the more for the reason that on this occasion we had with us James McHutchison, of New York, and we should all have liked to see a better audience for the remarks he had to make. Mr. McHutchison spoke for about an hour on his travels in South America, but his story was so interesting that no one noticed the lateness of the hour. He has a most attractive manner of presenting his facts and was listened to with the deepest interest. He was in the city in the interests of his firm. Another point brought up at the meeting was the advisability or otherwise of holding a flower show in the city. The society decided to invite the prominent men in the trade to be present at a special meeting to be held June 17 to discuss ways and means, and a full attendance is expected.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Everything is progressing nicely in this neighborhood, except business, and that is at a low ebb. Quite a bit of June wedding work is in sight and this, with a few funeral orders, is the sum total of the trade at this time. All kinds of flowers are plentiful and, although there is not such a glut as we had in May, there is more than enough stock of all kinds to fill requirements. Much of the spring stock is over for the season and the hardy annuals are in evidence. Bride gladioli are over and the larger flowered kinds are becoming plentiful. America bids fair to be the most popular variety again this year. A few dahlias are seen, but it will be several weeks before they are at their best. Irises of all descriptions are past. Freesias, tulips, lilac, peonies and all bulbous flowers have followed suit. Valley is not plentiful and is bought up closely. Quite a lot of Lilium longiflorum are seen, but they do not move quickly. The tendency of everything is to cheapen and no increase in prices can be looked for until the heavy supplies are over.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Marie Jorgensen, 70 years old, a patient at the German hospital, has filed suit in the superior court against the board of public works, their bondsmen, and J. D. Ordinack, proprietor of a flower stand on Powell street, near Eddy, asking $10,425 damages. Mrs. Jorgensen avers that she slipped, April 28, on stems and other refuse from the flower stand and permanently injured her hip.

Max Crow, the Gilroy nurseryman, is in town for a few days. G.

The Market.

Business for Memorial day was better than the average and supplies were short, but the week following there were more unsold flowers than for some time. Several firms had good orders for weddings and there are more to follow. Carnations have been scarce; so much stock is being shipped out of town that at times there is considerable stringency in the local stores. However, this should have a tendency to help prices for the next few months. In the past carnations have been too cheap in June, July and August, which also has helped to cause the short supply now, many growers not thinking it worth while to keep any carnations in after May. Roses are fairly plentiful and good outside stock is now on offer. Sweet peas are arriving in good shape from outside, fall-sown stock, and are meeting a brisk demand at remunerative prices. The Market.

Though business for the week held out well and a quantity of stock was moved, there is a surplus in all lines, especially roses and carnations, which are almost a drug on the market. However, conditions will soon change, as the stock in the benches is being thrown out rapidly, preparatory to re-planting. Peonies are coming in fast; the Festiva Maxima are especially fine. The continued warm weather will soon finish the cut and no effort is being made here to hold them in storage, as there is generally so plentiful a supply that it would be hardly worth while. Sweet peas are improving in quality; there are few outdoor peas blooming. There is a profusion of outdoor stock; roses, especially, are in full bloom everywhere. Poppies, gaillardias, delphiniums, Canterbury bells and irises are also plentiful.

Various Notes.

Charles Weltz and wife leave this week for his old home in Switzerland. They will be gone for several months, their visit including most of the European countries.

The Portland Seed Co. recently had several feet of water in its basement, caused by the high waters of the Willamette river. All stock had been moved to places of safety beforehand.

The Mountain View Floral Co. has a variety of perennials and annuals in bloom, such as delphiniums, gaillardias, irises and campanulas.

George Betz has sold his greenhouses and several acres of land at Gladstone to his son, Joe Betz, who will improve the place and grow a general line of cut flowers.

A. A. Harter has leased the range of W. S. Sibson, who will conduct a wholesale business. Mr. Sibson will also continue the nursery business, as in the past. E. R. C.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.

According to reports from florists and nurserymen visited here, the slump in business has not been nearly as keenly felt as in other coast cities and San Diego is undoubtedly rising to fame as a flower town. As a convention town, also, it seems to be becoming popular. On my recent visit the Knights of Pythias were making the place lively for everybody and were evidently enjoying their stay here, while other bodies are to meet here in the near future. The exposition buildings are well in hand and everyone tries to outdo the other in welcoming the visitors. Funeral work has been plentiful. In this line many of the local florists now favor the set style of pieces that used to be popular many years ago. They may not be as artistic as the looser style now in vogue, but they are in demand by customers, so this demand must be satisfied.

One of the first "brave men" met in the fine lobby of the U. S. Grant hotel was the genial Charles Brazee, of Wilmington, Cal., evidently as much at home in piloting the fair ladies as in growing the magnificent tulips and other bulbous stock for which his place is famous.

Miss Rainford has evidently a good share of the trade and all hands are kept busy. A new store is to be opened in the Arcade at once. Miss Rainford handles choice stock in an up-to-date way, this having much to do with her success. She speaks favorably of the recent flower show held here, strongly praising the fine exhibits put up both by local people and by Howard & Smith and the Los Angeles Flower Market, of the sister city.

Lanier Bros. at 837 Seventh street. The spikes are good; the flowers are large and of elegant color. Funeral work has been plentiful here.

I visited the greenhouses and nursery establishment of Boyle & Darnaud and was surprised to see how much had been accomplished under what appear to be unpromising conditions. The place is partly in a ravine or canyon and the natural soil looks anything but good, but, owing to the application of fertilizer and water, the growth made by the plants is splendid. The roses have immense shoots, and some magnificent Lilium giganteum were being cut at the time of my visit. The two new houses are well under way. Mr. Boyle is active in the construction end, while Mrs. Boyle is greatly interested in the culture. Mr. Darnaud's end, at the store, is also well looked after and it is pretty safe to predict great success for them all.

After the terrible accident on the torpedo boat in the harbor here, May 24, Boyle & Darnaud had the whole of the funeral work, including twenty-five floral pieces and numerous sprays. The officers and men were so pleased with the work that they decided to ship the entire order back to the east with the remains of these heroes who died at their post.

George Otto keeps busy at his store on Fourth street and some excellent funeral work was turned out while I was there. Mr. Otto is a specialist in roses and grows a good deal of his own stock. The blue rambler, Veilchenblau, is grown by him and I noticed a fine bunch of this singular rose in his store.

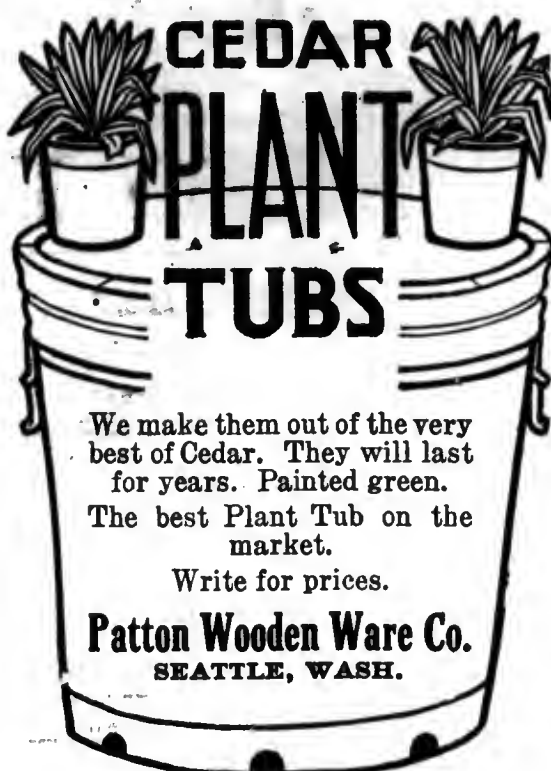

Charles E. Morton and Mrs. Morton, of Los Angeles, were visitors here last week, having made the trip in their Buick. That some of the printed remarks about Mr. Morton breaking the speed laws are unfounded, I can vouch for, having made the trip over the dangerous road from San Diego to Los Angeles with him. Had our loquacious friend been with us, he might have had his hair raised all right, not from the speed, but from the nature of the ground covered. Beautiful, indeed, are the views of mountain and ocean scenery, but a cool head, steady nerves and a dependable machine are all factors in the safe negotiation of the grade curves and other impediments of the road.

In the city parks John Morley is continuing his good work, much heavy grading being under way to improve the unsafe curves of the roads. The new lawns are looking fine, and others are to be laid out as the appropriations allow. The new plantings are beginning to take shape and there has been a big improvement during the last few months.

In the exposition nursery, P. G. Thiene has some extra fine stock getting ready for the grounds. The big lath house here is made so that the whole side opens out in the form of doors, thus facilitating the removal of the large specimens grown therein. There is much too large a list here to permit the mention of it all, so I must be contented to say that there is not a finer lot of nursery stock on the coast and it will surely open the eyes of the many visitors when the gates of the big show are opened in 1915.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-first annual convention at Cleveland, June 24 to 26, 1913.

CABBAGE is one of the items that seem to indicate a short seed crop for 1913.

It will cost more to grow the 1913 crops for seed than it ever has cost before in America.

SPEAKING of names, Mr. Gardner is manager of the seed department at Breck's, in Boston.

THE turnip crop in Tennessee, quite an important item with seedsmen in that section, has been harvested and is considered good.

THE Livingston Seed Co., of Columbus, O., has purchased a 60-acre tract of ground known as the Phipps farm, in Perry township.

P. LARSEN, of Loewith, Larsen & Co., New York, will leave for Europe at the end of this month, visiting the seed houses they represent.

THE American Seed Trade Association will be asked to plan two years ahead, with a view to holding the convention of 1915 in San Francisco.

ACCORDING to Lester L. Morse, president and manager of C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, the season's business has been fair only, about as last year but no better.

WITH bean planting well under way, it appears that the contract growers have had no difficulty in getting all the acreage they wanted, although costs are rising steadily.

THE overproduction of cabbages and onions for market has discouraged many of the seedsmen's good customers and is affording no little alarm to some who have handled the seeds in quantity.

FOR the moment there is a little less gloom on the coast. It has not rained, but it was not expected to; it will be the driest season in years, but of late crops have come along at least as well as could be expected.

It looks as though the possibilities for the sale of Teneriffe-grown Bermuda onion seed in this country this year will be considerably less than last year, because of the low prices the crop has made for the Texas planters.

ACCORDING to the U. S. Department of Agriculture there were in the province of Ontario, Canada, in 1911, 252,000 acres of peas, as against 336,800 acres in 1910. The average yield in 1911 was 15.69 bushels per acre, against 16.94 bushels in 1910 and 21.22 bushels in 1909. There are no similar statistics for the United States.

THE California Seed Co., San Francisco, has brought suit for an injunction and also asked for $2,500 damages from the Trumbull Seed Co. It is alleged that the latter company placed a sign on which were the words "California Seeds" over the door of its Market street store. The plaintiff contends that the similarity of the signs was misleading and that it was greatly damaged thereby.

IN view of the many shortages in the 1912 crops it is rather surprising to note the emphasis the trade now puts on the lower values as affecting total sales this season compared with 1912.

THE L. L. Olds Seed Co., of Madison, Wis., has secured a permit to build a four-story warehouse at 720 Williamson street, at a cost of $45,000. This is in accordance with the plan which the company had in mind about a year ago, when the site was purchased. The ground has a frontage of ninety-nine feet.

QUITE a few mail-order seedsmen find themselves with an accumulation of 1-cent and 2-cent stamps on hand, which they can not use until time for mailing the 1914 catalogues, and then it will mean extra work. The stamps could not be used as received, as in other years, because parcel post stamps were required on outgoing mail.

PEAS IN MONTANA.

The seed pea planting in Gallatin valley was finished in much better season than last year; the seed bed was better prepared than heretofore and a better selection of land made. Most of the seeding was done during the first part of May and practically all before June 1. Land was in good shape to work the latter part of April and all of May, except the week ending May 22, during which there were several good rains.

There are about 10,000 acres planted, largely with the earlier varieties, because much of the soil, being rich, produces too rank a growth of vine for the late, long vine sorts. So far there has been much good growing weather and earlier plantings are making a rapid growth of vine. With the early start, crops should be harvested early and insure a good sample. The weather has been quite favorable for germination and stands are good, although not so good as last year.

The outlook is for a dry season and crops are in need of rain now, although without rain they will not be greatly injured for a week or ten days unless it continues hot. Little acreage will be far enough advanced for irrigation in less than twenty days, after which time a fairly reliable estimate can be made, as much depends upon the weather immediately following irrigation.

Wm. A. Davis.

AS CLARK SEES SITUATION.

It is quite early to give anything of material value in the way of crop news for the western and middle sections. Beans are only just going into the ground in Michigan. Peas are, in the principal growing sections of Wisconsin and Michigan, only just well started. "While in some sections there are unfavorable conditions, I would say that peas, as a general rule, have a fair average start," says Arthur B. Clark, president of the Everett B. Clark Seed Co., "but the trade realizes full well that during all the short crop years peas have promised nicely up to June 20 and that it is always after that date that the deterioration occurs. Our root crops and sweet corn in Connecticut are starting off on fairly favorable conditions. It was dry for a time, but the drought has now been relieved, and we see no reason to apprehend other than normal returns, unless of course we wish to borrow trouble, as there is a great deal of time between now and maturity of crop. But we are not disposed to look on that side of things, and we think it is fair to say that at this early stage of the game there is no distinctly adverse condition apparent."

TEN THOUSAND MORE ORDERS.

Commenting on the reports of the season's business that appeared in this department of The Review for June 5, Henry Field, president of the seed company at Shenandoah, Ia., that bears his name, said he found much interest in comparing with his own experience. He concurred in the majority report that orders were more numerous than ever before, but that total sales were not so large as in 1912. In part Mr. Field said:

"We will have about 10,000 more orders this year than we had last year. The volume of business, however, will not be quite so great as last year, owing to the lighter sales on seed corn and "The garden seed business especially showed a big increase this year over last year.

"The outlook is good for increased business next year. Of course, we cannot tell what the business will be on seed corn and seed potatoes, as that depends largely on crop conditions, but on other lines we look for a good increase again."

TOMATOES FOR WINTER CROP.

We have five houses, 32x150, in which we intend to plant tomatoes this coming winter, to produce fruit from November to March. December and January are the two months in which we should like to get the best crops. We intend to put one foot of soil all over the floor of the houses and plant on the level. What distance apart, in the rows and between, should they be planted? What is the best mode of training? What is the right time to sow and what are the right sorts to sow to get the best results? We used Comet last winter on a small, experimental scale, with fair results. They were sown July 6, 1912. I am a successful grower of general greenhouse stock and have obtained reliable information from The Review and profited by it for the last fifteen years.

P. R.

In order to have a good crop of tomatoes which will commence to ripen early in November, the seed should be sown early in July. I have found a date as near July 4 as possible about right. The winter minimum temperature should be 60 degrees; 1 or 2 degrees higher will not harm them, and by March 1 it can be advanced to 65 degrees with advantage. Tomatoes must always have a dry atmosphere, exactly the opposite of that for cucumbers.

While crops planted out in solid beds do satisfactorily after March 1, I have never seen good results attained in mid-winter unless the roots were somewhat restricted. When they are grown in large quantities the general practice is to plant them about eighteen inches apart each way, leaving a 24-inch walk at intervals to grow to single stems, the plants being supported by strings attached to overhead wires or stout cords.

Now, it will not pay you to grow tomatoes in this way in midwinter. The plants would have far too much root-run and a large part of the flowers would fall off instead of setting. The soil would not dry out as it should and mildew would probably be hard to keep in check, no matter how careful you might be in watering and ventilating. If you want a really good crop you should train the plants up the roof at the sides and erect some suitable trellising for the other rows. If you run them erect, be sure to leave three or four feet between the rows. Set the plants eighteen inches apart and train to one stem. If you prefer to run the main stem and two side laterals, allow the plants thirty inches. I would, however, prefer single stems.

You say you have a foot of soil, which is entirely too much for midwinter tomatoes. I would advise you to leave each row of plants a border not over twenty inches wide, boarding this space in. If they fill this narrow border with roots you can give them all necessary top-dressing and liquid food, as needed, and you will find that your set will be vastly better than where the plants are allowed unlimited root-run. If you have doubts of this, try at least part of your crop with restricted borders and see which plants give you the most fruit.

As to varieties, Comet is a splendid winter variety, but Lister's Prolific I have found to be somewhat better. It is uniform in size, of good color, carries large bunches and the flavor is excellent.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THERE probably were more apple and peach on this season's brush piles than ever before in the history of the nursery trade.

I. J. FRAZER, nurseryman, of Edenvale, Cal., has petitioned to be declared insolvent. He owes $4,750 and has no assets, according to his schedule.

J. H. DAYTON, of the Storrs & Harrison Co., says that much to his regret he finds himself unable to make the trip to Portland. He is an ex-president of the A. A. N.

It is of special interest to note how many nurserymen say that while the demand for fruit trees fell off this year, the call for ornamental stock was unprecedented. There is a tip here for florists as well as nurserymen.

E. S. WELCH, proprietor of the Mount Arbor Nurseries, Shenandoah, Ia., is preparing to make a trip to France and Holland this summer and finds himself unable to go to Portland. He had expected to attend the A. A. N. convention and was put on the program for a paper on "The Traffic Manager," but says "the time of such conventions is too limited to be taken up with reading essays from absent ones," and he has not prepared anything.

CONDITIONS NORTH.

The trade in the northern lake sections was later this year than for many seasons, because of weather conditions, but it was nevertheless a favorable season after it started. R. D. Underwood, of the Jewell Nursery Co., Lake City, Minn., says.

"The spring of 1913 has been generally satisfactory. In the north, however, we have had peculiar conditions under which to work, as the frost stayed in the ground unusually late and we were fully two weeks later than usual in all of our shipping and planting operations. Weather conditions, however, have been generally satisfactory for successful transplanting in this latitude, and the outlook for fall sales is good."

CONDITIONS IN THE SOUTH.

Owing to the excessive rains, which prevailed throughout the entire winter, with Georgia nurserymen planting in heavy soil was seriously delayed, the rainfall in March being nearly nine inches.

"In the last fifty days," said I. A.

Berckmans at Augusta June 5, "we have had less than one inch of rainfall; consequently some of the young stock planted out late is suffering, but it is surprising how the old stock is growing. Spring sales on ornamentals," he continued, "were unusually heavy. There was an overproduction of apples last season and in consequence these were thrown on the market at bargain counter rates, which caused a demoralization in prices, not only affecting the apples but many other lines of nursery stock. Many inquiries are being received for quotations for fall, peaches, pecans and ornamentals being in the greatest demand. There is much demand for landscape work throughout the south and we have many large contracts now on hand. These contracts cover the south from Virginia to Texas.

"The peach crop of Georgia will be small. It is now estimated at not more than 1,450 cars, but the fruit is in fine shape, the orchards having been fertilized, cultivated and pruned and the fruit thoroughly sprayed. The fruit growers of Georgia have long since found out that to get good fruit they must spray for curculio and brown rot."

TOO MUCH IN THE DARK.

One of the stock arguments of the nurseryman who is asked to advertise in a trade paper is that quoting prices in such a public manner will result in all his competitors cutting under, being bad for the trade and, especially, leaving him to hold the bag. How it works when circulars are used, or when prices are quoted on individual orders, is shown by the following extract from a letter from R. J. Bagby, treasurer of the New Haven Nurseries, New Haven, Mo.:

"We have no objection to frankly admitting that this season's business was much less than previous years for the same class of goods; in fact, the demand was not sufficient to clean up all of our peach, pear, cherry or apple, the largest surplus being on peach. Rather than break down prices on this stock we allowed other growers to supply some of our best customers at lower prices than we had quoted, but our loss in trade was not so much from the lack of demand, perhaps, as in not meeting the market conditions with our customers, in the way of prices. In other words, we were not posted. We believe this is a weak place in the nursery business. All of us are too much in the dark, and we believe that the reliable growers would be glad to protect each other's interests, but our lack of information prevents us from doing so."

A NEW NURSERY COMPANY.

The F. W. Brow Nursery Co., of Rose Hill, N. Y., has been incorporated, with $25,000 capital, practically all of which is subscribed. It will operate one of the largest nurseries in central New York.

The company, which has been in process of organization for several months, has 100 acres of excellent land at Rose Hill which has been planted and it is expected that the acreage will be greatly increased next year. The company will do a general nursery business, specializing, however, in fancy fruit trees. Mr. Brow is a practical nurseryman and has had charge of some of the largest nurseries in the east. He will have charge of the company's farm at Rose Hill.

The directors of the company, besides Mr. Brow, are Frank B. Mills, of the Mills Seed Co., at Rose Hill, and C. Albert Weeks, of Skaneateles. The company will not commence to market its product until next year.

antique regulations going into effect July 1, 1913, was printed in the nursery department of The Review of June 5. The new rules embody the decisions to date that have previously been published in this paper. Because of the length and involved character of the document many readers will no doubt like to have the changes summarized. This has been done by C. L. Marlett, chairman of the Federal Horticultural Board, as follows:

- Reg. 1.—No change.
- Reg. 2.—Amplified by the addition of the classification of plants hitherto given on the permit, with some definitions.
- Reg. 3.—Changed to correspond with the new forms of permits. In respect to applications for importation of nursery stock from countries which maintain nursery stock inspection, the principal change is in providing for an open permit. One permit, therefore, authorizes importations, for the entire season, from a single foreign firm without reference to kind or quantity except as to pines, which must be scientifically named in the application. In respect to applications for permits to import nursery stock from countries which do not maintain nursery stock inspection, the exact quantity and exact designation must be given.
- Reg. 4.—No material change.
- Reg. 5.—Changed to apply to the new forms of permits, and made to include Plant Quarantine Decision No. 2, in respect to plants or plant products under quarantine.
- Reg. 6.—Omission of the portion which becomes of none effect after July 1, and the inclusion of Plant Quarantine Decision No. 1, providing for treatment of infested nursery stock from countries without official system of inspection.
- Reg. 7.—Modified by addition of term "exporter," so that certificates can be made out in

BRAMPTON, ONT.

Stock is good for the time of year, and the carrying quality of it leaves nothing to be desired. Sweet peas provide one of the greatest attractions just now, many of the new varieties appealing to the flower-loving public more keenly than in other years. Chrysanthemums are nearly all in their places for the fall, and cuttings are still having a ready sale.

Ideal weather has helped as much as anything toward the successful progress made in the construction of the large addition at the Dale estate. The concrete walls of the coal shed and boiler house have just been completed, and the first span of the six 650-foot houses has already been erected. Four of the carpenters at work on the building received a bad shaking up through the giving way of the scaffolding last week, but it is hoped the results of their 20-foot drop will not be serious.

Asters were planted out last week and, to give them a splendid start, the first thunder storm of the season arrived exactly at the psychological moment. H. G. Mullis, head shipper at Dale's, suffered a severe shock during the storm, which occurred during the evening, the lightning also smashing his gate into splinters and doing considerable damage to his house and wood shed while he sat watching the elements.

Edward Dale and his daughter, Bessie, will leave here June 26 for a trip to England.

The labor problem has not proved so troublesome this year after all. Many immigrants, who found their way to the farms in the neighborhood during the spring, became more or less dissatisfied with conditions that compelled them to work from 5 a. m. to 8 p. m. and possibly later. Many of these men find Brampton life more congenial, especially as their Sundays are absolutely free to them. The last Englishman who turned up to work told of not being able to get a tub to wash in, and of having to rock the farmer's wife's baby to sleep before going off to bed himself.

The Market.

Belated crops coming in now caused an oversupply of stock on the local market which it was impossible to clean up last week, although the call for stock was good. Commencement exercises at some of the private schools created a heavy demand for peonies, peas and roses, as well as for carnations. Last week was also a record-breaker for the number of weddings and the call for valley and white roses was exceedingly heavy. Many cases of wild huckleberry were used for decorative purposes, with satisfactory results.

Various Notes.

June 5 the stork again visited the home of Walter Taepke and left a dear little baby girl. When Daddy was last interviewed both Mamma and Baby were getting along nicely.

Wm. Oldenberg, who has been in the employ of B. Schroeter as chauffeur since the advent of automobiles for delivery purposes, joined the benedicts June 5. His friends at the store presented him with a most useful gift, while the greenhouse force also remembered him.

E. A. Feters had the whole family working June 5, having work on hand for seven weddings. His store, which as a rule looks spick and span, looked like the day after Easter when evening came.

Barney Chambers, who operates a retail store at Mackinac Island and also ships many fine peas to the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, was married in Detroit June 10. He was in the employ of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange all last winter and is well known to the trade as just plain "Barney."

H. S.

Camden, N. J.—James P. Hill, who formerly conducted Hill's Quality Flower Shop, in the St. James building, Jacksonville, Fla., is now at 940 Cooper street, in this city.

Waynesboro, Pa.—Henry Eichholz has nearly completed his new offices and greenhouses, which are partly intended to take the place of buildings destroyed by fire last September. Part of the glazing, however, will not be done till later in the season.

The Market.

The weather more than any other one thing seems to be the big factor in business this spring. The cold weather that held back the bedding plant men before Memorial day brought on an enormous cut flower sale for that day, and now a revival of winter has set in and trade seems to be benefited by it, as it keeps stock from becoming a glut on the market and the flower-buying people have as yet had no need to go north for the summer.

Stock is equal to demand in all lines. Peonies are at their height at this writing; that is, the midseason sorts. Late varieties, like Rubra Superba, will not be in before the middle of the month. Carnations are of exceptionally good quality. Roses grown especially for summer bloom are now in and they are easily picked out by the full buds and clean foliage.

Various Notes.

A. Miller, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, was a recent visitor.

LOUISVILLE.

The Market.

The retail business during the last two weeks has been good. However, cut flowers have not been so good as might have been desired. This is particularly true of roses. There is an ample supply of lilies, carnations, sweet peas, etc. Good valley is scarce on the local market.

In the plant line, everything seems to be exceptionally scarce. The early demand for spring planting has practically cleaned up all stock, including ferns and hydrangeas.

Various Notes.

Mrs. C. B. Thompson is getting her usual share of commencement work.

One of the best kept windows in town is that of Wm. Walker. No matter what season of the year it is, he always keeps his window up to the minute.

Work on the new store which Mrs. M. D. Reimers is to occupy is progressing rapidly and when completed it will be one of the prettiest shops in the south.

The last regular meeting of the Kentucky Society of Florists was held at the residence of John Skrobanek, twenty-five members of the local craft being in attendance. G. E. S.

Little Rock, Ark.—Announcement is made that from June 1 the business conducted under the name of Vestal's for the last fourteen years by Paul M. Paley as manager has been under that energetic gentleman's own name.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to look us up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

"NEW GEUM"

Geum Coccineum

Mrs. J. Bradshaw

This is one of the finest plants of recent introduction. It will put quite into the background all the Geums at present found in gardens. This fine variety produces very large flowers, 2 inches or more across, semi-double, and with plenty of substance in them, of the most brilliant scarlet. They are produced on long wiry stems, and continuously from June to October. For cutting and border decoration it is very hard to beat, and no doubt it will figure conspicuously on the show table in future.

GERANIUMS

THE report comes from all sections that Geraniums are more in demand this season than ever and that all good stock will be cleaned up. We have an excellent lot of young stock ready to ship out, if you wish to grow your own stock for another season, but why bother with it, as we make it our business to provide your stock for you, to be shipped any time in the fall or winter you have the room, after Chrysanthemums or other crops have been removed? Our stock houses of Standard sorts alone, as now planted, contain 300,000 plants, as pretty as you ever saw. Then we have Novelty stock, Ivy-leaved sorts, Scented and Variegated varieties to the extent that we are confident we can take care of any order you may place with us. Think it over. Can you afford to bother with the stock yourself for $18.50 per 1000 for 2-inch plants?

SCARLET BEDDER

We have bought of Elmer D. Smith & Co. stock of this superior Scarlet Geranium and offer good, strong plants from 3-inch pots, for immediate shipment, at $1.50 per doz., $10.00 per 100.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The market seems to be settling down to its period of summer dullness a little earlier than usual. The heaviest part of the commencement season is over. The call for bridal flowers and decorations for weddings does not seem to come up to the standard of other years. The amount of funeral work is just ordinary. The general supply in the market is in excess of requirements.

Last week choice roses sold readily, but only at a fair price. The principal call was for Richmonds, Beauties, pink and yellow. The last mentioned ran short of the needs. There are some fine offerings in Beauties, Tafts, Marylands, Killarneys and White Killarneys. The carnation market is overcrowded; only the best are selling and the buyers' prices generally govern. Many must be jobbed to effect something that resembles a clearance. Lilies are excellent, but meet with only an ordinary call. More good sweet peas might easily be used. The call for valley fluctuates. Gladioli find only an ordinary demand, but the prices seem to hold up tolerably well.

Club Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Society was held June 9. On motion, President Gus Adrian selected an outing committee, consisting of Charles H. Hoffmeister, chairman; A. C. Heckman, Jr., and R. C. Witterstaetter, and instructed the committee to arrange to hold the club's annual outing at Coney Island about the middle of July.

The following are the nominees for the respective offices: President, A. C. Heckman, Jr., and James Allen; vice-president, Ed. Schumann; secretary, Alexander Ostendarp and O. H. Hoffmeister; treasurer, Albert Sunderbruch and C. H. Hoffmeister; trustee, Gus Adrian and Henry Schwartz. The candidates for secretary and treasurer are actively aiding the campaign of their respective opponents. The election will be held at the annual meeting in July.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has been receiving new eastern ferns of high quality. Mr. Critchell has received word of his appointment to the state vice-presidency of the S. A. F. for southern Ohio.

L. H. Kyrk has had two large tables built to aid in displaying his stock just after it arrives in the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Olinger have as their guests Mr. Olinger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Olinger, of Aurora, Ill.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Business was good last week. Funeral work and the call for flowers for several commencements kept things lively. Stock is plentiful. Lilies are more than enough to go around. Some first-class Beauties are to be had and large quantities of the shorter-stemmed ones are being sold. Carnations are showing the effects of the warm weather. Orchids, valley and sweet peas are finding a good demand. Quantities of candy-tuft and feverfew that came in too late for Memorial day are to be had.

There is considerable business being done in the plant line. Good vines are scarce, as are geraniums. There is not much of a variety in blooming plants at this time; however, there are some good hydrangeas, begonias and gloxinias.

Various Notes.

J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, has been shipping some first-class hydrangeas to Indianapolis.

Mrs. Kester, wife of Raymond Kester, who has been at the Methodist hospital for the last two weeks, is much improved.

Philip Conway is the latest florist to invest in an automobile. He will be hard to find for a while.

A. Wiegand's Sons Co. and Bertermann Bros. Co. were busy with work for the Tudor Hall commencement last week.

Fred Kiel, formerly with A. Wiegand's Sons Co., has taken a position with the Smith & Young Co.

John Rieman reports business good. He has had considerable funeral work of late.

L. F. Benson had the contract for the wreaths for the Elks this Memorial day. It took about 200 wreaths for this order. H. L. W.

SURPLUS, BETTER AND CHEAPER THAN EVER

AFTER DECORATION DAY all florists and growers have empty benches. What shall we do with them? Have them empty? Sure not; no prosperous florist would think of such a thing. Don't let your money rust in the bank; nothing else in the world will pay you better than to invest

IN GROWING ASTERS

In the right kind, such as Godfrey Aschmann grows, the Genuine Crego Asters. These bear an abundance of large trusses of big flowers, suitable to cut and use in bouquets, vases, table decorations, funeral designs; these asters are also excellent for pot culture. We have them in separate colors, Pink, White, Shell-pink, Cardinal-blue, Lavender. We are well provided and can meet the rush. 50,000 in 2½-inch pots, large, strong plants, ready for immediate shipment, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000. Take the hint and consider what a profit you can make growing these Crego Asters. In the latter part of July and August your Asters are ripe to cut. Then what? Empty benches again! Then we can raise another crop—replace the Asters with stock for fall and Christmas sales, such as Nephrolepis of all kinds, Poinsettias, Cyclamen, Begonia Gloire de Lorraine and other winter-blooming Begonias, Rubbers, Solanums, Chinese and Obconica Primroses, etc. This is what we call hustling—utilizing your bench room to best advantage. If you want to be successful as a grower, you must be wide-awake and utilize to best advantage every part of your bench room at all times; every square foot of your bench space must bring you from $2.00 to $3.00 per year.

New American Beauty GERANIUM

We take great pleasure in introducing to our many customers for 1913 our new American Beauty Geranium. For the first time, after working on it for nearly three years, we are offering it for sale.

Our Claim for American Beauty Geranium is that it surpasses all other Geraniums in its real American Beauty Color. The individual blooms measure 2¼ inches across. It is semi-double, medium dwarf, of stately shape. It has come to stay as a money maker. Prices to the trade: 2½-in. pots, 50c each, $5.00 per doz.; 3-in. pots, $1.00 each, $10.00 per doz., cash. Write for circulars in natural colors and prices on large lots.

The Market.

Trade has been heavy here and nearly everyone is pretty well sold out of plants. There has been an enormous run on geraniums again, as well as salvias. From all reports the demand for salvia has equaled that of a year ago, when it was adopted as the Centennial flower, and it looks as though the demand for it will keep up. The demand for vinca vines for window boxes has been much heavier than ever before. There is quite an increase in this line of work.

Carnations are dwindling and the quality is not nearly so good as a week ago. Roses are coming finely and some fancy stock is to be had. Killarney in white and pink, with a good sprinkling of Wards and a few Richmonds, are the principal offerings. Beauties have been in good demand, with supply short at times. Sweet peas continue to be the favorite for corsage work, with some valley and Ward rose combinations.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

A PARTITIONED GREENHOUSE.

I am building a greenhouse 31x85 and twelve feet to the ridge. The house will be used for carnations and other stock, except twenty feet next to the boiler, which will be used for roses and will be cut off by a partition from the rest of the house. My idea is to use two 2½-inch flows on the purlins and one 3-inch flow under the ridge, with three coils of 2-inch pipe for returns. How many returns should be used in this West Virginia climate, and what would be the best arrangement of the return pipes? I shall use raised benches in the carnation house and on the side of the rose house; in the center of the rose house there will be solid beds. The house runs east and west, with the boiler at the east end. The side walls will be three feet high and will contain no glass. H. E. H.

Good results could be obtained with the flow pipes as proposed, although it would be fully as well to make all the flows 2½-inch and in some ways this would be better. The carnation house can be heated by using ten 2-inch returns, and if these can be carried back through the rose house it will only be necessary to place two additional returns on each of the walls to furnish the extra heat required. These can be fed by a 2-inch flow taken off from the wall flows on each side, at the west end of the rose house. In the carnation house two or three of the returns can be on each of the walls or under the side benches, and the others can be under the other benches. As solid beds are to be used in the center of the rose house, it will be necessary to carry the returns from the carnation house on the sides of the beds.

course this shortage will not arise from any inability of the mines to produce it, but it is likely to arise from the inability of the railroads to transport it. As a consequence, there is coming to be quite a widespread movement among the wholesalers and jobbers to try to induce the dealers and consumers to do some storing of coal in anticipation of a situation which is almost sure to arise next fall. The arguments are getting a little too strong even for the skeptics in the trade, and now nearly everyone is admitting that the situation is serious, if not dangerous. When an important coal carrying railroad which customarily is so well equipped as the Chicago & Eastern Illinois comes out flatly with the acknowledgment that its financial position has not been such as to permit it to keep rolling stock in order and when it says that it is not in position to meet the demands of the shippers, the coal men take fright, naturally, at what is likely to happen upon

We have installed many sets of Cyclone Grates where these figures have held true.

Any grates that show no evidence of burning after four years' continuous firing twenty-four hours a day must have something exceptionally worth while about them.

Cyclone Grates resist burning because the Cyclone Plan insists upon a mixture of iron being used which years of experience and experiment have found best suited for the purpose.

large contracts. A number of reasons are advanced for the heavy demand and among these is the increasing popular favor that Pocahontas is meeting with in all sections. The shortage of anthracite coals last winter forced a brisk market on Pocahontas and other smokeless coals, which moved all the surplus that usually is on hand during the spring and summer months, so that the usual weak market and oversupply has been eliminated this season.

CAPACITY OF BOILER.

I have an 850-foot Ideal hot water boiler. How large a house can I heat with it, in this Illinois climate? I want a house which will grow house plants, bedding plants and vegetable plants.

J. G. W.

Some house and bedding plants require a temperature of 60 degrees and upwards, while others can be grown at 50 degrees. This will make considerable difference in the size of a house that can be heated with the boiler in question. If the width of the house is to be twenty feet and if there are two feet of glass in the side walls, it will be possible to heat a house 100 feet in length to 50 degrees, but if 60 degrees is required the house should not be more than seventy-five feet in length.

To heat such a house, run a 2½-inch main on each plate and another of the same size under the ridge. For returns use twelve 2-inch pipes for 60 degrees, and eight for 50 degrees. Use two or three return pipes on each wall and the others under the benches. Connect the expansion tank with the highest part

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club met June 3, with a large and enthusiastic crowd in attendance. President Neil McCallum had a little exhibit of his own, a plant he calls Roman breeches, about which he gave one of his original descriptions and then he had a program long enough to have made two ordinary meetings. Paul Randolph read a paper on the plants which are in demand and no doubt called the attention of many to some of the things they should grow.

P. S. Randolph had a fine collection of the new French hydrangeas, and gave an interesting talk on the advantage of growing such plants, on which immense heads of bloom can be produced in 4-inch pots, and which can be sold at reasonable prices. He also called attention to the fact that one of his best pink varieties last year turned out this year a fine blue. He attributed the change, however, to the water, in which he thinks some chemicals are used.

Mr. Weisenbach gave a talk on the annuals and other flowers which a man can grow without a greenhouse and when he finished it was hard to see why a private place needed a greenhouse.

James Wiseman told of the kinds of plants the private gardeners are using, and how they use them, not only the ordinary bedding plants, but annuals in shrubby borders, producing results which are much more effective than any carpet bedding that ever was done.

Mr. Sample, of the Elliott Nursery Co., gave a talk on the foolishness of planting tender plants which have to be replaced every year when one might, at the same expense, plant that which years would only make more valuable and beautiful. He demonstrated his talk with bunches of nearly 100 specimens of flowers from the Elliott nursery and drew word pictures of a hardy garden so beautiful that one was almost ready to forget bedding plants for a minute, but then you know some of us make a living supplying people with what they want. We appreciated Mr. Sample's talk.

The man from Kew Gardens was there with his lantern and slides to show us some of the gardening in Berlin, Germany, and also the government gardens, and when he tells us that it is the ideal garden city we look and believe and are interested in his garden groups and envy the man who can travel and see them.

John Jones had the last say and had to say it in a hurry. He talked about what they plant in the parks, and he had his samples with him. Mr. Jones also had a flower of Chrysanthemum Mrs. Gilbert Drabble that would have done credit to his winter show.

The meeting was a success and the writer walked off with all the plants that were there and planted them in his own garden.

Various Notes.

Some one must have thought Ben Elliott was making too much money, for a burglar entered his house June 7 and gathered up a new suit of clothes, a gold watch and about $50 without disturbing anyone's slumbers.

HOT WATER HEATING SYSTEM

INSTALLED FOR THIS MODERN PLANT

Rose Range of Riverbank Greenhouses, Geneva, Ill. Charles McCauley, Supt.
Heated by No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler, Kroeschell 2-inch Return Piping System and Kroeschell Generator. Greenhouses each 28 feet by 200 feet. Garland Construction.

The mains are arranged to take care of a future addition of 40,000 sq. ft. of glass; 2-inch returns are used throughout the entire range and each 2-inch return line is controlled by 1-inch gate valve (strictly a Kroeschell feature), insuring perfect control. It is a gravity job; the circulation is perfect, reaching the extreme ends of range in fifteen minutes. The Kroeschell Generator (the high speed gear for hot water heating) is also used for this system.

"Your No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler heats our entire range. We maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in our greenhouses, and this temperature is easily maintained even in the very coldest weather. Your boiler has given entire satisfaction. It is the best and quickest heater I have ever used or seen. I have found the boiler very economical in the use of fuel and labor, as it is not necessary to use the best coal, and any labor will do for a fireman. The Kroeschell Piping System with Generator works like a charm. When I want to sulphur, I can heat the water up to 230 to 240 degrees and I get the same results as from steam. Seeing is believing—all Growers are invited to call. Any further information concerning boiler and piping system will be gladly given. We had a large number of Florists at our place recently, and they all thought we had the finest equipped plant in the business."

Saginaw, Mich.—Grohman the Florist has purchased a new Oakland delivery car. It is lavender in color and is said to be one of the handsomest cars in the city.

Malta, O.—W. C. Seovell says that in spite of his loss and the general damage by flood this spring, business has been large and satisfactory, although far from being up to other years.

der plants out will probably fare best, as the extremely cold nights will not help the early planters.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club met June 3, with a large and enthusiastic crowd in attendance. President Neil McCallum had a little exhibit of his own, a plant he calls Roman breeches, about which he gave one of his original descriptions and then he had a program long enough to have made two ordinary meetings. Paul Randolph read a paper on the plants which are in demand and no doubt called the attention of many to some of the things they should grow.

P. S. Randolph had a fine collection of the new French hydrangeas, and gave an interesting talk on the advantage of growing such plants, on which immense heads of bloom can be produced in 4-inch pots, and which can be sold at reasonable prices. He also called attention to the fact that one of his best pink varieties last year turned out this year a fine blue. He attributed the change, however, to the water, in which he thinks some chemicals are used.

Mr. Weisenbach gave a talk on the annuals and other flowers which a man can grow without a greenhouse and when he finished it was hard to see why a private place needed a greenhouse.

James Wiseman told of the kinds of plants the private gardeners are using, and how they use them, not only the ordinary bedding plants, but annuals in shrubbery borders, producing results which are much more effective than any carpet bedding that ever was done.

Mr. Sample, of the Elliott Nursery Co., gave a talk on the foolishness of planting tender plants which have to be replaced every year when one might, at the same expense, plant that which years would only make more valuable and beautiful. He demonstrated his talk with bunches of nearly 100 specimens of flowers from the Elliott nursery and drew word pictures of a hardy garden so beautiful that one was almost ready to forget bedding plants for a minute, but then you know some of us make a living supplying people with what they want. We appreciated Mr. Sample's talk.

The man from Kew Gardens was there with his lantern and slides to show us some of the gardening in Berlin, Germany, and also the government gardens, and when he tells us that it is the ideal garden city we look and believe and are interested in his garden groups and envy the man who can travel and see them.

John Jones had the last say and had to say it in a hurry. He talked about what they plant in the parks, and he had his samples with him. Mr. Jones also had a flower of Chrysanthemum Mrs. Gilbert Drabble that would have done credit to his winter show.

The meeting was a success and the writer walked off with all the plants that were there and planted them in his own garden.

Various Notes.

Some one must have thought Ben Elliott was making too much money, for a burglar entered his house June 7 and gathered up a new suit of clothes, a gold watch and about $50 without disturbing anyone's slumbers.

HOT WATER HEATING SYSTEM

Rose Range of Riverbank Greenhouses, Geneva, Ill. Charles McCauley, Supt.
Heated by No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler, Kroeschell 2-inch Return Piping System and Kroeschell Generator. Greenhouses each 28 feet by 200 feet. Garland Construction.

The mains are arranged to take care of a future addition of 10,000 sq. ft. of glass; 2-inch returns are used throughout the entire range and each 2-inch return line is controlled by 1-inch gate valve (strictly a Kroeschell feature), insuring perfect control. It is a gravity job; the circulation is perfect, reaching the extreme ends of range in fifteen minutes. The Kroeschell Generator (the high speed gear for hot water heating) is also used for this system.

"Your No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler heats our entire range. We maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in our greenhouses, and this temperature is easily maintained even in the very coldest weather. Your boiler has given entire satisfaction. It is the best and quickest heater I have ever used or seen. I have found the boiler very economical in the use of fuel and labor, as it is not necessary to use the best coal, and any labor will do for a fireman. The Kroeschell Piping System with Generator works like a charm. When I want to sulphur, I can heat the water up to 230 to 240 degrees and I get the same results as from steam. Seeing is believing—all Growers are invited to call. Any further information concerning boiler and piping system will be gladly given. We had a large number of Florists at our place recently, and they all thought we had the finest equipped plant in the business."

SEDALIA, MO.

The Archias Floral Co. has purchased of the Jackson estate the entire block of ground between Fifth and Sixth streets and Sneed and Carr avenues. This is one of the most desirable blocks in the west end and lies just across the street from the company's carnation range. On the new ground they will erect a range of greenhouses for the growing of roses exclusively. They are also having plans drawn for a modern stone and terra cotta office building, comprising two stories and a basement, equipped with refrigerators and every modern convenience, to be erected at once on the site of the present office, with an elegant palm house or conservatory in the rear. These and other needed improvements, when completed, will more than double the present capacity of their establishment. They will also open an uptown store as soon as the present tenant's lease expires.

The capital stock will be increased and has been spoken for by the following well-known citizens: Dr. E. F. Yancey, C. C. Kelly, E. G. Cassidy and W. J. Ferguson.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The florists are now in the heyday of the year's business. Following the unprecedented rush at Memorial day came the graduations from the schools, and now the June weddings are holding the center of attention. All are contributing materially to the work and coffers of the florists, retailer, wholesaler and grower. While the social functions have been active, funeral demands have also kept well to the front and, being well distributed, have afforded generally satisfactory results.

Memorial Day Echoes.

William E. Chappell: "I simply couldn't meet the demand; that's all there was to it."

Johnston Bros.: "It was the biggest Memorial day we ever experienced. The demand for bouquets was enormous. The passing of the procession saved us from annihilation during the forenoon. While it was moving we had a chance to catch up on orders."

James B. Canning: "I'm glad it's over. Nothing like it was ever experienced in this city. The people certainly bought lots of flowers this year."

Smith Floral Co.: "We sold out everything early and did a most satisfactory business."

T. O'Connor: "It was a big day, but everything was favorable to the florist. The weather was ideal, outdoor flowers had gone and there was a general wave of flower buying. There is a growing sentiment regarding the day."

Various Notes.

Willis W. Fiske, of W. E. Barrett & Co., was one of the guests of the William Tell Club at the Squantum Club June 7.

T. O'Connor has removed his downtown store from 272 Westminster street to 126 Union street, where he has one of the finest and largest salesrooms in the city.

Club Meeting.

The last meeting of the Minneapolis Florists' Club was held in the store of Rice Bros., at 218 North Fifth street, and was attended by about twenty-five members, besides the full force of officers. The time was largely occupied by reports from three committees.

Carl Lindskoog, chairman of the Mothers' day ad committee, reported that the special advertising had been a great success, and that the money expended, which amounted to $300 and had been contributed by both the wholesale and retail trade, had proved to be a good investment. The large amount of editorial space given by the newspapers in connection with the advertising had greatly increased the publicity.

Theodore Wirth, as chairman of the Convention Association, gave an encouraging report. He stated that the outdoor garden space was being taken up rapidly and that any members of the trade who were not taking advantage of this opportunity were missing the use of a good advertising medium. The program, he said, was now completed and had been forwarded to Secretary Young. The souvenir album was making exceedingly good headway and was not being prepared according to the old plan, especially with reference to its bulk, as it would not be a large, unhandy book, but of a convenient size for carrying. Arrangements had been made, he said, for a special concert at Lake Harriet for Friday evening, with special privileges for the visitors. The executive committee was holding regular meetings and he wished to thank the members for their prompt and active assistance.

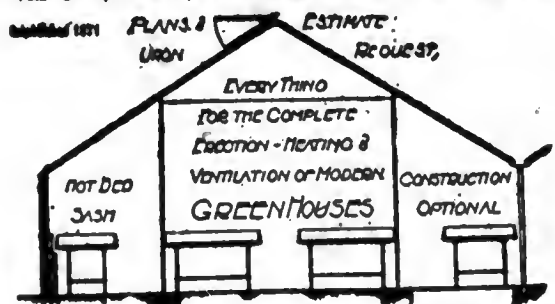

John Rovik, chairman of the baseball committee, made a report in regard to the team selected for the convention. The club then authorized him to secure suits and instructed him to see that the team got busy practicing, so as to show the all-star team of the S. A. F. that they "were up against the real thing."

Henry Will presented to the club a box of cigars in honor of Henry Will, Jr., born June 1. In response to this treat a motion was passed that "a vote of thanks be extended to Mr. Henry Will and that the junior Will be made an honorary member of the baseball and bowling teams."

It was decided that the regular July meeting be omitted and that special meetings be held when necessary, subject to the call of the president.

Speaking of "Questions

ONE of the stock arguments made by some of the small, less experienced builders is:

"Buy your house from me instead of one of the big firms, because they are so big they must have such a large force of employees, it makes their houses cost more. I can give you exactly the same house they can for a good deal less."

And strange as it may seem, some of the growers take this argument, hook, line, sinker, pole and all, and think they have made a good buy.

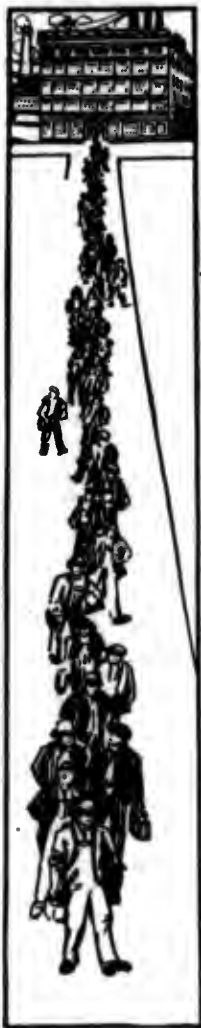

But have they?

Let's look into it.

Isn't it a well established fact that every grower in the country is trying to put up more houses as fast as he can, because he realizes that as he increases his cut, he decreases the cost of producing it?

Isn't it a fact that you don't have to double the number of men you employ or double the cost of production when you double your glass?

Isn't it a fact that whatever you buy, you can buy for less when you buy in large quantities? Exactly the same facts and reasons prove true with greenhouse building.

Considering the high cost of building materials, we are selling a cheaper and better house than we ever sold, simply because our great increase in output has decreased our manufacturing costs.

Where we used to buy in pounds, we now buy in tons. Our materials cost us less, in proportion to the market price, than they ever did. As a result, you and we are both profiting by it.

Everything is in your favor when you favor the big concerns.

Hitchings is big enough to give you every big advantage—but not so big that your order does not receive that personal attention which goes so far in making and doing business with us a matter of pleasure as well as profit.

Crescent, Mo.—J. T. Milliken has let a contract to Wm. Elias to erect five greenhouses on Milliken Farm, near here. One house is to be 30x200, one 30x81, one 30x158, one 18x149 and the fifth 18x51 feet.

HAPPY GREENHOUSE FACT:

"With CYPRESS You Build But Once."

"With any other material you're 'billed' perpetually."

You save many times over (by avoiding repairs and replacements) what slight premium you pay a high-class contractor for using Cypress at first. It is worth good money to you if you will but profit by the following suggestions:

DON'T buy sash or other woodwork that is painted. Paint covers sap, checks and a multitude of other wood sins. Insist on seeing the raw wood.

DON'T buy excessively kiln-dried wood—air-dried is immeasurably better. Greenhouse lumber that has to travel 3,000 miles may be excused if it is kiln-dried to death to save freight over the mountains, but that excuse doesn't make it any better for you.

DON'T forget that you are wasting valuable time whenever you stop and listen to a whimwham about some "substitute" wood for heart Cypress. There can't be any substitute until nature invents a new species of wood. (Nothing to it but PECKY Cypress for Benches.)

DON'T fuss at the building contractor if he insists on putting a smooth surface on your work—it is to your advantage. Cypress takes that smooth surface. And takes paint perfectly if you want it to. Yet lasts generations without any paint.

DON'T laugh at the statement that Cypress sash has been in uninterrupted use in a greenhouse for 45 years. It can be proved. Can a "substitute" wood equal the record? Isn't that a money-saver?

JUST FIGURE your construction costs by the year and you'd pay twice the slight additional price of "The Wood Eternal" over the short-lived woods.

Send us your name, Mr. Greenhouse Man, for one or more of the valuable booklets in our free Cypress Pocket Library. Vol. 3, "The Greenhouse Wood;" Vol. 16, "Cypress for Porches;" Vol. 30, "Cypress for Pergolas, etc.," and Vol. 28, "Cypress for Trellises and Arbors." Free as grace. WRITE.

YOUNG STOCK

THE POEHLMANN STANDARD QUALITY

The young stock offered in this list is not what is commonly called "surplus stock"—it is young stock by us expressly to meet the demand of those who want the best—and who know that Poehlmann's is the place the best. Our cut flowers have a national reputation (we took first prize on Beauties, and several other first at the National Flower Show in New York in the strongest competition ever seen in the United States; our were 1000 miles from home and thirty-six hours in the boxes, but they won). Naturally the success of Poehlmann cut flowers has resulted in a nation-wide demand for young stock of the Poehlmann standard quality. The stock offer in this list is grown specially to meet this demand and is the Poehlmann standard. To avoid delay, your order direct to box 127, Morton Grove, Ill.

Grafted Roses

THE AMERICAN PEONY SOCIETY

ELEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING.

Officers Reëlected.

President—Bertrand H. Farr, Reading, Pa.

Vice-President—Edward B. George, Painesville, O.

Secretary—Professor A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y.

Treasurer—J. H. Humphreys, Germantown, Pa.

Location of 1914 meeting—Chicago, Ill.

The Cleveland Meeting.

For ten years the American Peony Society held its annual June affair independently of other organizations. Several times it met at its own trial grounds at Cornell University, but last year it was thought that the work on nomenclature had progressed to the point where the greater part of the plants in the test plots could be disposed of and the society could resume the peregrinations that were a feature of its earlier years. Accordingly, the eleventh annual gathering was held at Cleveland, O., June 12 to 14, 1913.

In other years the society, if entertained by local organizations, has had its own premium list and rules, but this year the Peony Society joined with the Ohio Horticultural Society and almost lost its identity through having no schedule or premiums of its own. The Peony Society did what it could under somewhat unfavorable circumstances to add to the interest in the show and the peony section was by far the largest and most interesting part of the exhibition.

It is many years since Cleveland has had a spring show and there was much interest taken, the attendance on the opening day being 5,000. Mayor Newton D. Baker formally opened the exhibition.

The Peony Classes.

The show of peonies was good, but by no means the best the American Peony Society has seen. Peony growers have had much to contend with this season. Late frosts in Ohio completely cleaned out some growers, so far as exhibition blooms are concerned. The peony growers are at a decided disadvantage in their exhibitions, in comparison with the rose, carnation, chrysanthemum, sweet pea, gladiolus and other growers, as their flowers have different blooming periods in different sections of the country; outdoor flowers can not be brought into bloom at a certain time, like indoor flowers. The peony growers, however, have the advantage that their flowers can be held in cold storage for some time without injury. In last week's show some of the exhibits had been in cold storage for three weeks previous, while other vases held buds as hard as Mrs. Newlywed's well-known biscuits.

E. A. Reeves, of Cleveland; B. H. Farr, of Reading, Pa.; Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., and C. Betscher, Canal Dover, O., were the principal exhibitors, each showing from 500 to 3,000 blooms. A great many of the flowers showed the effects of frost, while varieties easily touched were not in evidence at all. A vase of blooms grown by Martin Kohankie, Painesville, O., and shown by the Jones-Russell Co., was clearly the finest exhibit in the hall, with a vase of Festiva Maxima grown by the J. M. Gasser Co. a good second.

There was a considerable number of exhibits by local amateurs, among whom Secretary A. P. Saunders was the principal prize winner. The awards to trade exhibitors in the peony classes were as follows:

Collection of fifty herbaceous peonies, double, in twenty named varieties—C. Merkel & Sons, first; B. H. Farr, second; C. Betscher, third.

Vase of fifty blooms, red or crimson, single, on long stems, arranged for effect—E. A. Reeves, first.

Collection of twenty-five named varieties, double, one bloom of each—B. H. Farr, first; E. A. Reeves, second.

Collection of ten named varieties, double, three of each—Cottage Gardens Co., first; C. Merkel & Sons, second; E. A. Reeves, third.

Vase of twenty-five blooms, double, white or blush—C. Merkel & Sons, first; J. M. Gasser Co., second; Jones-Russell Co., third.

Vase of twenty-five blooms, double, pink—Jones-Russell Co., first; C. Merkel & Sons, second; E. A. Reeves, third.

Vase of twenty-five blooms, double, red or crimson—C. Betscher, first; E. A. Reeves, second and third.

Vase of twenty-five blooms, double, any other color—E. A. Reeves, first; C. Merkel & Sons, second; E. A. Reeves, third.

Collection of one hundred named varieties herbaceous peonies, one of each—E. A. Reeves, first, receiving the Peony Society's gold medal.

The Roses.

The showing of outdoor roses for the premiums offered by the Ohio Horticultural Society was not large and was nearly all from amateurs who grow only in home gardens. The classes for indoor roses called only for six blooms and the exhibits were an inconspicuous feature of the show.

The retailers had little opportunity to display their skill in competition, as their only opening was in a few classes calling for baskets of roses. These exhibits were fully up to the standard of high-class work and the judges found the awarding of prizes in these classes no idle task.

The awards in classes open to trade exhibitors were as follows:

Twelve named varieties hybrid perpetual roses, three of each—Woodside Farm, third; no first or second.

Six named varieties hybrid perpetual roses, three of each—Woodside Farm, third; no first or second.

Six blooms any white hybrid tea roses, indoor grown—J. M. Gasser Co., first and second.

Six blooms any pink hybrid tea roses, indoor grown—J. M. Gasser Co., second and third; no first awarded.

Six any red hybrid tea roses, indoor grown—J. M. Gasser Co., second; no first awarded.

Basket hybrid tea roses, artistically arranged, any white varieties—J. M. Gasser Co., first; Jones-Russell Co., second.

Basket hybrid tea roses, artistically arranged, any pink varieties—Jones-Russell Co., first; J. M. Gasser Co., second.

A Portion of the American Peony Society's Exhibits at the Cleveland Spring Show.

Basket hybrid tea roses, artistically arranged, any red varieties—Jones-Russell Co., first.
Twenty sprays Rosa rugosa or rugosa hybrids—Woodside Farm, second; no first awarded.

Plants and Cut Flowers.

Decorative stock for competition was not much in evidence. The city of Cleveland sent several loads of palms from the park greenhouses, which helped out wonderfully in beautifying the hall.

The ferns shown by Hart Bros., Cleveland, were without a doubt the finest ever seen in a local exhibition. One specimen Boston fern and another of the Harris type of Boston were fully ten feet across and were wonderfully well finished. The other twelve plants in their collection were in 10-inch pots and measured six feet from tip to tip.

The class calling for twelve gloxinias brought out four entries and the competition was keen between Hart Bros., Robert Weekes and the city gardeners. Tuberous-rooted begonias, fancy-leaved caladiums, Adiantum Farleyense and Rex begonias were shown in fine shape. The hydrangeas of Hart Bros. and John Leuschner, in 20-inch tubs, were a feature of the show. A group of schizanthus and another of spirea staged by the city's greenhouses attracted much attention.

The awards in classes open to professional growers were:

Begonias, tuberous-rooted, twelve plants—W. G. Mather, first; Robt. Weekes, second; Woodside Farm, third.

Begonias, Rex, twelve plants—Woodside Farm, first.

Caladiums, fancy-leaved varieties, twelve plants—W. G. Mather, first; no second; Woodside Farm, third.

Gloxinias, twelve plants—Hart Bros., first; Robt. Weekes, second; City of Cleveland, third.

Hydrangeas, six plants, in pots, twelve inches or less—Robt. Weekes, first; W. G. Mather, second; John Leuschner, third.

Hydrangea, specimen plant, in pot or tub, any size—Hart Bros., first; John Leuschner, second.

Areca, specimen plant, in pot or tub, not less than four feet high—City of Cleveland, first; Woodside Farm, second.

Specimen Kentia Belmoreana, in pot or tub—City of Cleveland, second; no first.

Twenty-five vases distinct species hardy herbaceous flowers, correctly named, not less than ten genera, grasses admissible—Woodside Farm, first; Robt. Weekes, second; City of Cleveland, third.

Collection of sprays of hardy flowering and ornamental shrubs or trees, twenty vases, of twenty named varieties (roses not permissible), not more than ten sprays in a vase—Woodside Farm, first; City of Cleveland, second.

Hart Bros. were awarded two gold medals as special prizes; the city of Cleveland received one gold and one silver medal and John Leuschner was awarded a silver medal, all in special classes.

Miscellaneous Exhibits.

M. A. Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass., sent a vase of 100 blooms of Carnation Princess Dagmar. The flowers arrived in excellent shape. It is a fine deep crimson of large size, on long, stiff stems, and has a strong calyx.

W. H. Elverson Pottery Co., New Brighton, Pa., had a display of its familiar red pots, in charge of W. H. Elverson and F. W. Elverson.

Hitchings & Co., New York, had a corner of the hall for an exhibit that included a sectional boiler and views of various greenhouse establishments erected by Hitchings & Co. The display was in charge of J. B. Jackson.

The King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., showed photographs of a large number of greenhouse establishments of various types. C. H. Twinn and W. E. Asplin were in charge.

The Coldwell Lawn Mower Co., of Newburgh, N. Y., showed man, mule and motor mowers and a line of garden implements. W. A. Bartlett was in charge.

The judges were C. J. Maloy, Rochester, N. Y.; Martin Kohankie, Painesville, O.; John Merkel, Mentor, O., and George W. Smith, Cleveland.

Outside of the opening night, the attendance was light. Saturday night, when the management expected to crowd the hall, there were only a handful of people present, showing, so many observers thought, that a flower show in June, when outdoor flowers and amusement parks are in full bloom, is not so popular as a show in the autumn. The stock held up well for the three days.

The Ohio Gladiolus Society held a meeting during the week. A gladiolus exhibition, to be held in Cleveland during the summer, is under consideration.

Trade Visitors.

GOOD SHOW AT LAKE GENEVA.

The gardeners on the private estates

Three of the Retailers' Baskets of Roses Exhibited at the Cleveland Show.

A General View of the Peony Section of the Show of the Ohio Horticultural Society, Cleveland, June 12 to 15.

at Lake Geneva, Wis., held their annual June peony show Saturday, June 14, and made a conspicuous success of it. There are many fine places about the lake and the gardeners there are among the most skillful in the country. No trade growers participated in their show, but the competition was keen between some fifteen local exhibitors. The show was much the largest held west of Cleveland this year and the quality of the stock was good. Among those present were Messrs. Gage and Chapman, of Peterson Nursery, Chicago.

BOSTON PEONY EXHIBITION.

The peony exhibition held at Horticultural hall, Boston, June 14 and 15 was the finest and most extensive ever seen in that city, filling both the large and small exhibition halls. So fine were some of the exhibits that the committee on plants and flowers actually awarded three gold medals, something I do not remember to have occurred at any previous Boston show. The date was two or three days early for most of the growers, but the display nevertheless was a superb one.

In the competitive classes Geo. H. Peterson led for twenty varieties, double, with splendid blooms of Matilde de Roseneck, Pierre Dessert, Avalanche, Dorchester, Marechal Vailant, Claire Dubois, Couronne d'Or, Eugene Verdier, Pink Beauty, Constant Devred, Auguste Villaume, Gloire de Touraine, Mme. de Galhau, Mme. Louise Mere, Mireille, Mme. Boulanger, Pierre Duchartre, Marie Lemoine, Eugene Bigot and Souvenir de Universelle. James McKissock was second and T. C. Thurlow's Sons' Co. third, each with fine collections.

For ten named varieties, three of each, Geo. H. Peterson again won, with fine flowers of Marie, Comte de Gomer, Indispensable, Charlemagne, Livingstone, Marie Lemoine, Mme. de Galhau, Souvenir de Universelle and Claire Dubois. Wm. Thatcher, gardener to Mrs. J. L. Gardner, was second and James McKissock third.

Geo. H. Peterson had the finest specimen bloom, and M. Sullivan, gardener to W. Whitman, second. T. C. Thurlow's Sons' Co. had the finest twelve varieties of singles. Some of the most effective sorts shown in the singles were Victoria, Arcos, Dreadnought, Stanley, Queen of May, Pearl, Lola Doury, Kitty Wardell, Bridesmaid, Miss Ida Chamberlain and Mrs. Richmond.

For six double varieties, white, Mrs. J. L. Gardner was first, with Festiva Maxima, Duchesse de Nemours, Mme. de Verneville, Delia and Duke of Wellington, fine. T. C. Thurlow's Sons' Co. was second and D. C. S. Minot third.

For six double pink or rose Mrs. J. L. Gardner was first, with Triomphe de Lille, Exposition, Lady Leonora Bramwell and Alexander Dumas as the best blooms. James McKissock was second and T. C. Thurlow's Sons' Co. third.

For six varieties red or crimson James McKissock was first, with M. Martin Cahuzac, Volcan, Plutarch, Edouard Andre, John Richardson and Francois Rousseau. T. C. Thurlow's Sons' Co. was second.

For twenty-five blooms white or blush Mrs. J. L. Gardner was first, with splendid Festiva Maxima. Geo. H. Peterson was second and John R. Comley third.

For twenty-five blooms pink or rose W. Whitman was first, Geo. H. Peterson second and W. Whitman third.

For twenty-five, double, red or crimson, Geo. H. Peterson was first, Mrs. J. L. Gardner second and W. Whitman third.

For twenty-five any other color W. Whitman was first, T. C. Thurlow's Sons' Co. second and James McKissock third.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. had a magnificent display of peonies artistically arranged, covering 1,200 square feet of space. Among varieties included in their collection were Mrs. James Farquhar, rich salmon pink; C. W. Parker, dark red; La France, Mont Blanc, fine; Mlle. Rousseau, Gigantea, Victor Hugo, extra good; Marie, Venus, Edulis Alba, Durer, a fine single white; Festiva Maxima and many others. This exhibit received the unusual distinction of a gold medal.

E. J. Shayler, as usual, had a fine collection of first-class sorts. Noteworthy were Alfred de Musset, Faust, Mme. Crousse, Jeanne D'Arc, Mme. de Verneville, Adolphe Rousseau, M. Jules Elie, extra fine; Marguerite Gerard and Duc de Wellington.

Geo. W. Page had a good collection of seedling peonies. The Breck-Robinson Co. had peonies and herbaceous flowers. Mrs. E. M. Gill had a fine table of peonies, also the first hardy roses of the season. T. C. Thurlow's Sons' Co. had a fine collection of both double and single peonies. Wm. Whitman had a large collection of peonies, and several large vases came from Mrs. James B. David.

The Mount Desert Nurseries, Bar Harbor, Me., had a magnificent display of eremuri, chiefly robustus and Himalaicus, the grandest showing of these ever put up in Boston; awarded a gold medal. They also had an extensive collection of German iris and other herbaceous perennials. J. L. Smith, gardener to A. W. Preston, had a fine collection of pyrethrums, and Eastern Nurseries an imposing bank of herbaceous flowers. J. T. Butterworth had a fine table of English iris. He also showed a seedling Lælio-cattleya (Cattleya Mossiæ x Lælia purpurata) and a plant of Odontoglossum crispum, carrying a spike with twenty flowers, showing excellent culture. T. T. Watts had a group of orchids, a specimen of Dendrobium thrysiflorum being extra well flowered.

Geo. Page, gardener to Mrs. Frederick Ayer, had fifty well flowered fuchsias, quite an interesting and well grown exhibit. Old Town Nurseries had a large display of herbaceous flowers. Chas. Sander, gardener to Prof. C. S. Sargent, received a first-class certificate for Geum coccineum Bradshaw and Mount Desert Nurseries a similar award for seedling peonies.

William Sim had a wonderful display of sweet peas. I doubt if any such exhibit has ever before been seen in America. Certainly nothing approaching it has been exhibited in Boston. They were arranged in large, trumpet vases, containing 100 or more stems each, with smaller vases interspersed. The stems averaged eighteen inches long, and a large part carried four flowers per stem. The orange shades were particularly noteworthy and showed up beautifully. The flowers were all grown under glass and had been shaded. The varieties included: Maud Holmes, Hercules Spencer, Barbara, the gem of the whole collection; Mrs. Hugh Dickson, extra fine; Asta Ohn Spencer, Blanche Ferry Spencer, Freda Spencer, superb; Loyalty Spencer, George Herbert Spencer, Elfrida Pearson Spencer, fine; Earl Spencer, Edrow Beauty, Countess Spencer, Mrs. Townsend, Edna Unwin, Clara Curtis, Dazzler, brilliant; Mrs. C. W. Breadmore, Mrs. Routzahn Spencer, Queen of Spain, Thomas Stevenson, splendid; Mrs. A. Ireland, Mrs. R. Hallam, Eric Harvey, Perdita, Helen Lewis, not in the running with the newer sorts; Mrs. H. Bell and Florence Nightingale. First-class certificates were awarded to Elfrida Pearson, Mrs. Hugh Dickson, Dazzler and Freda.

THE CHICAGO PEONY SHOW.

The Horticultural Society of Chicago held a special peony show at the Art Institute June 12 and 13. All things considered, possibly the show was all that could have been expected, but it did not attract the hoped-for public attention and the trade took little interest. The season has been unfavorable at Chicago. The frost in May did a great deal of damage that was not discovered until the buds began to open, and the dates were just a little early for some of the best late-blooming varieties. Peterson Nursery was the principal exhibitor in the general classes, taking nearly all the first prizes. In the classes for varieties of recent introduction the W. W. Barnard Co. was the principal exhibitor and prize winner. The only entry for "best display" came from John Reardon, a former Chicago gardener, now at Ames, Ia. The premiums for largest display of blooms of any one color brought out only one important entry, that of Rosehill Cemetery, which was really a splendid showing of Festiva Maxima. In point of quality the Peterson blooms easily overtopped everything else, as they did in number.

The judges were T. Wallis and E. O. Orpet. Their awards were:

Among the special exhibits was a plant of Canary, shown by the W. W. Barnard Co. It was growing in a tub and carried eighty-six open blooms and buds. Vaughan's Greenhouses showed Canna Firebird and a number of vases of peonies not entered for competition. Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association also had several vases of peonies that do not figure in the list of awards. The bay trees, boxwoods, etc., that were used to decorate the main entrance were loaned by Winterson's Seed Store.

PALE FOLIAGE, FEW BLOOMS.

In a planting of peonies that I made in the fall of 1910 about fifty per cent of them have pale green or straw-colored foliage. These are not making good growth and are not blooming well, while the ones with green, healthy looking leaves are blooming heavily. The plants are growing in a rather light, gravelly soil, which was trenched about two feet deep and mixed with about twenty per cent its bulk of rotted cow manure. Each fall I have given them about a 2-inch covering of cow manure and have dug in around each plant a handful of ground bone. I have kept them well watered and cultivated. I have seen many other peonies about this city that seem to be affected the same way. I hardly think that the soil where the peonies are can be sour, as it has excellent drainage. Do you think I have given them too much fertilizer? I hope you can advise me what to do for the benefit of these plants. A. A. C.

You prepared your ground well, and the annual top-dressings of cow manure and bone should be just what the plants need. There may be something lacking in your soil, which would account for so large a percentage growing poorly. I would suggest sending a sample of your soil to your state agricultural college for analysis. You could thus discover just what is needed.

Sometimes the mistake is made of planting too deeply. This causes the plants to make an enfeebled and somewhat sickly growth. Some fourteen years ago I had occasion to overhaul a large bed of peonies, planted by a so-called expert gardener. The plants were doing poorly and made a comparatively feeble growth in the spring, although the soil was thoroughly prepared. On examination I found that these peonies were covered twelve to fifteen inches deep with soil! In August they were lifted and brought nearer the surface, and the next spring there was a surprising improvement in their growth. Of course, this may not be the trouble with your plants, but it is a possible cause.

Have you been in the habit of cutting long stems with your flowers—down to the ground, to be exact? If you have, that is another possible reason for their coming weak. In cutting peonies, leave a fair amount of foliage on the lower part of each stem. If you cut away all the foliage you will cripple the plants for flowering next season. Just try the experiment of cutting all the flowers from any clump with long stems; mark it and note how sparsely it will bloom, if at all, the following year. C. W.

THOSE TARIFF CHANGES.

I have read with much interest the various articles in The Review in reference to the correction of errors in the new tariff bill. McHutchison & Co., New York, are the people who are entitled to all the credit in this matter, because they are the only house that had the enterprise to take this proposition up by mail with the florists. When I received their letter, asking for aid, I at once wrote them and told them to tell me just exactly what they wanted, stating it briefly, as I knew that Congressman Ten Eyek, who is a personal friend of mine, would be willing to do what he could for us. When I received their second letter I sent it to Mr. Ten Eyek, who took the matter up with Francis Burton Harrison, who is a member of the ways and means committee of the House, and I have a letter from Mr. Harrison saying that every request we made has been complied with. In printing the bill, however, two discrepancies crept in. McHutchison & Co. called my attention to them and I have again taken the matter up with Mr. Ten Eyek, who assures me that he feels quite confident that the errors will be corrected.

You can see from this that McHutchison & Co. are entitled to the credit, and they are the large importing house that was mentioned in the article in the Albany Times-Union that was reprinted in The Review. I sincerely hope that you will give them as much publicity as you can in the matter, as I think any concern as enterprising as this one should be supported.

Wm. C. Gloeckner.

The Review's Washington correspondent advises that in a brief filed with the Senate committee on finance, which now has the new tariff bill, William F. Gude, the national representative of the S. A. F., asks that on page 54, paragraph 215, line 15, the words "and all other decorative greenhouse plants" be omitted; also that on page 53, paragraph 216, line 10, immediately after the word "nursery," the words "or greenhouse" be inserted, for the following reasons: By doing this the various sections of the bill will be brought more in harmony with each other, bringing nursery and greenhouse stock in the same paragraph and at the same rate of duty, which is essential because the line of distinction between nursery and greenhouse stock is not clearly defined; nursery stock grown outdoors in the southern parts of the United States would be greenhouse stock in the north, and for this reason different rates of duty for the different sections of the United States would be required if the requirements of the bill be adhered to. Again, bay trees which are hardy outdoors eight months of the year must be kept in greenhouses during the winter, and such plants as lilacs, hydrangeas, rhododendrons, etc., grown outside, are also used for forcing purposes in greenhouses. In addition to this argument, much of the greenhouse stock consists of cheap plants which are used by the masses, whom the Democratic party wish to protect, and these might properly come under the lower rate of paragraph 216.

It is also desired that the words "4 years old or less" be inserted after the words "evergreen seedlings" in line 1, paragraph 599, on page 125. This change is important, as otherwise nothing could prevent large and valuable evergreen trees coming in free of duty. The proposed change brings forth the exact intent of the law and will thus aid in avoiding the endless litigation which prevailed under former tariffs.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

THE WOES OF A FLORIST.

The following is said to have been written by the eye-witness of an incident in a Detroit flower store:

THE WOES OF A FLORIST.

She sauntered through our flower store—
(She weighed 300 pounds or more);
She thundered round like some great ox,
For plants to trim her window box.
The time she wasted was a fright,
Yet nothing seemed to please her, quite;
The ageratums were all too small,
The salvias wouldn't do at all.
Begonias, she said, looked weak;
The canna plant was just a freak.
At last she wheezed, "Say, Mr. Crum,
Have you a cheap geranium?"
In springtime rush, we'd have you learn,
A florist hasn't time to turn;
From 7 a. m. till time to close
He may not pause to blow his nose.
So, while we got her flower out,
And while she turned it all about,
We could have felled her with a blow
For being so confounded slow.
"That there geranium," she said,
With fat and rage becoming red,
"Is not the slightest use to me;
It's just as small as it can be."
"But, Madame," Mr. Crum replied,
"Why are you so dissatisfied?
I wager many years ago
That you were small yourself, you know."
If looks could kill—she wished they could—
She would have slain him as she stood.
Compared with her, she was so wild,
The English suffragettes were mild.
She closed the door with such a slam—
A lady's way of saying "Damn!"
She left her plants and Mr. Crum,
"That's good," said he; "I moved her some!"

To which The Review's office poet adds:

The florist's name,
It wasn't Crum!
Almost the same,
They call him Plumb.
The lady writing
This little piece
Was just visiting;
She is his niece.
She surely knows,
Does Beatrice Plumb,
About florists' woes
Heaps more than some.

IDEAS FOR SHOP FRONTS.

Will Bradley, in a recent issue of System, publishes some original suggestions for the design and arrangement of the street fronts of small business buildings, which carry a stamp of personality and artistic value that raises them above the commonplace and conventional. Among them is one showing the front for a florist's store. The accompanying illustration shows three of the suggested designs, and it is evident that Mr. Bradley believes in adding life to store fronts by the use of plants.

The suggested shop front for a florist is adapted for a space ranging from ten to thirty feet. The wall is of white cement or plaster; red brick also may be used. The woodwork is of ivory-white, and the fancy wrought-iron grille work beneath the window and the plant boxes is painted green.

The first-floor front suggested for a hat store is suitable for either a city or country shop. The walls are of ivory, or of white plaster, or of cement. The framework of the door and windows and all woodwork are of ivory-white.

The design for a small shoe store front calls for a wall of white cement or plaster; the metal work at the base of the display windows and the trim to be green. The lettering is of gold, with a thin black outline. The little decorations are painted in blue, green, red and brown.

ENFORCING THE LABOR LAW.

Just how much trouble and disarrangement would be caused in the florists' trade if the labor laws in all localities were literally interpreted and strictly enforced, is a serious question. And an important factor in the problem is the amount of hardship that such complete enforcement of these laws might inflict on some of the employees as well as on the employers. This is true even if it be admitted that the general effects of the laws would be highly beneficial, especially in certain industries, in which abuses exist that are unknown in the florists' trade.

These and other such thoughts are naturally suggested by the report, just received, that State Labor Inspector Luella M. Burton recently got busy at Grand Rapids, Mich., with the result that two of the city's big business men were commanded to appear in court and answer to a charge of violating the state labor law. One of the accused men is a florist; the other is the manager of a wholesale produce business. The florist is Henry Smith, and he is charged with compelling, or allowing, Elizabeth McGaughey to work eleven hours and thirty minutes May 31, which is an hour and a half more than is permitted by the Michigan state law. It should be noted that May 31 was Saturday.

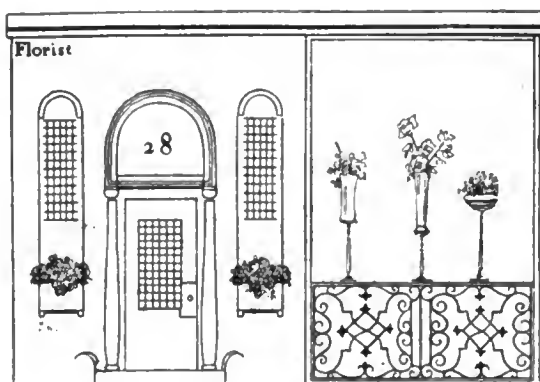

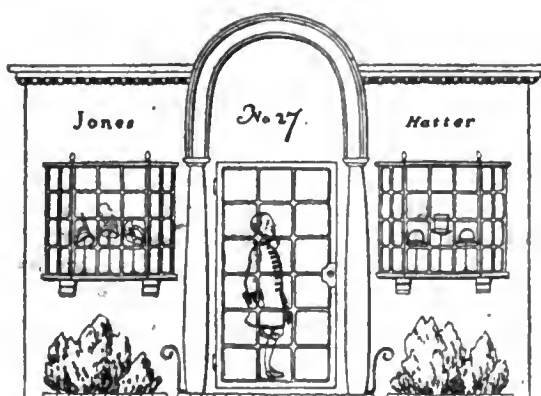

Warrants for the arrest of both men were issued and they were ordered to appear in court to plead to the charges.

TELEGRAPH ORDERS.

Beyond question, the exchange of orders between retail florists has increased immensely since The Review, in 1903, conceived the idea of a department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists. Irwin Bertermann, who is president of the association formed a few years ago to further this branch of the retail flower business, says "the telegraphing of flowers still is a new field, which should result in much good to the trade in general and which should be developed with that end in view." The organization of which Mr. Bertermann is the head is a purely mutual affair; it is not intended to make a profit for anyone; no salaries are paid, and all the money taken in is put back into exploitation work. It has, without doubt, done a great deal to get florists interested in taking orders for distant delivery—it is in the advertising as much as the facilities afforded that the delivery association has been helpful to its members and the trade.

Mr. Bertermann had a letter not long since from George E. Schulz, of Louisville, Ky., in which he took much pleasure. Mr. Schulz said in part:

Since its inception, I have at various times given quite a bit of time and thought to the Florists' Telegraph Delivery. It seems to me that by cooperation there is no end to the benefits to be derived. Then why should we not take hold of it and push it for all it is worth? It gives me great pleasure to note in going over the last list of membership an addition of fifteen new names. This goes to show that the florists in general are waking up to the fact that there is something in back of this organization. Our accomplishments since being associated with the F. T. D. have been wonderful, and I can state frankly that we certainly would hate to give up the business we have been getting through this organization. I cannot see, therefore, how any good, responsible florist can remain out. It is true, we enjoyed a good out-of-town patronage before the F. T. D. was organized, but it was not a comparison to the trade which we have gotten since the F. T. D. came into existence. It may interest the members to know that the provision for guaranteed accounts is not "hot air." A few months ago we turned an old account of several months' standing over to the secretary for collection. He wrote this party a single letter and check was forthcoming, although all of our correspondence was ignored. The amount of this claim itself will pay our dues for several years.

Then, too, when a customer comes into your store to place an order for delivery out of town it certainly is a great pleasure to go over the list of the F. T. D. and find the leading tradesmen of so many cities in this organization. However, if we are to increase our membership very materially, it behooves all members to take an active interest in this association and do their utmost to land new members. Whenever we have an order going to a town where there is no member we make it a practice to follow it up immediately with a letter inviting such and such a party to join us and explaining at the same time, in the best manner possible, the benefits to be derived by being associated with the F. T. D.

I am greatly surprised that the leading florists at Altoona, Pa.; Atlanta, Ga.; Auburn, N. Y.; Aurora, Ill.; Baltimore, Md.; Brooklyn, N. Y.; Columbus, O.; Dallas, Tex.; Des Moines, Ia.; Knoxville, Tenn.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Los Angeles, Cal.; Macon, Ga.; Memphis, Tenn.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Mobile, Ala.; San Antonio, Tex., and numerous other large cities have not joined our association. Every day that they remain out they are losing money. I can state very forcibly that the small amount it costs to become a member of the F. T. D. is a drop in the bucket compared with the substantial benefits derived. There is hardly a day that we do not send an order out of town; it goes to a member of the F. T. D. if there is one in that certain locality. On the other hand, we have received as many as eight orders in a single day from our associates in the F. T. D.

The towns mentioned by Mr. Schulz as not represented in the membership of the F. T. D. are represented in The Review's department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists. The latest list received from the secretary of the retailers' coöperative organization shows 107 members, while 193 are represented weekly in The Review; this number includes fifty-nine of the F. T. D. members. The total of the two is 241 different concerns. If each of these can be induced to use part of his local newspaper advertising this summer to let the people of his home city know of the existence of such good facilities for filling orders for delivery at a distance, the result will be a still further increase in the business, which, really, has only made a fair beginning. It can be doubled in a month if everybody pushes.

WELLS ON DALE ESTATE.

In the notes of W. Wells, the well-known British chrysanthemum specialist, who recently visited America, are some comments on the establishment of the Dale Estate, Brampton, Ont., that will be of general interest:

"The number of greenhouses here is eighty-five, while the glass area covered is 1,000,000 square feet. The ground space covered is twenty-five acres, and the greatest length of a single house is 850 feet. These figures are well in keeping with the American views of greatness, but they are correct and up to date. The number of men employed to work this huge place is 225, and the annual wage $120,000. The employees are entirely Britishers, and the rate of pay is 20 cents to 25 cents per hour. The amount of coal consumed by the boilers is 9,000 tons of anthracite per annum.

"The 'Chrysanthemum on the Decline' folk would have a fit here all right. The quantity of young stock brought along for sale is enormous, while the number required for cut flower work on this establishment is 150,000. Carnation plants grown for flower total 200,000, chiefly in such varieties as Enchantress, Lawson, Winsor and Beacon. Of roses 150,000 are grown for flowering, mostly the usual American cut flower varieties, but the prettiest of all, perhaps, is Canadian Queen, which is termed a baby pink shade. Bachelors will understand this better when described as the color of Carnation Gloriosa. Of violets 100,000 are grown; 3,000,000 lilies of the valley are annually forced; 40,000 Asparagus plumosus and the same number of orchids form the leading lines which the Dale Estate specializes in chiefly, but nearly everything that will sell as a cut flower is also handled. The number of bulbs imported is reckoned by the carload instead of by the million, while the number of ferns, marguerites and sweet peas grown would fill a large nursery. Besides the growing of flowers, a large florists' supply or sundries section is run with the business."

Mt. Vernon, Ill.—C. Edward Miller, successor to Fred Reinlein, says that business this season was all that he could wish, both locally and in surrounding towns, until parties having surplus stock began using Mt. Vernon as a dumping ground. When those not regularly in the business in Mt. Vernon began selling at less than wholesale prices Mr. Miller was obliged to fall back on the wholesale trade to move his stock profitably.

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Dendrobiums.

All the Dendrobium nobile, many hybrids, D. formosum giganteum and D. Phalaenopsis Schraderianum are now in active growth and should be encouraged by keeping a humid, warm atmosphere, spraying overhead by the middle of the afternoon and closing the ventilators so as to bottle up a brisk heat. All the growing dendrobies respond well to this treatment. Do not be afraid to run the heat well up; 100 to 110 degrees, with an abundance of humidity, is just what they revel in, but air quite freely on warm days and never keep the house closed up all day when the weather is dull. Such thick-bulbed summer blooming varieties as D. chrysotoxum and D. thyrsiflorum, which will still be in flower, or recently passed, prefer cooler and more airy growing conditions than the nobile section.

Odontoglossums.

Odontoglossum grande, commonly called the baby orchid, which is a fall bloomer, is now in active growth. It succeeds well in pots or pans of fern fiber, either hung or stood close to the glass in a cool, well-ventilated house. O. citrosum is now in flower. It does equally well in baskets or pans. As its racemes are drooping, the receptacles should be suspended. I have seen them tied up and exhibited in this way. Such exhibits give one the horrors; the natural beauty of such flowers is entirely lost if treated in this way. If you cannot suspend your citrosums, far better not grow them at all.

The O. crispum section, also O. Pescatorei, O. triumphans, O. Andersonianum and many other varieties should from now on have a northern exposure, if possible. If this cannot be given, use lath shadings to keep the house cool and air freely all the time. Spray the plants twice a day if the weather is hot and once a day when the temperature is more moderate. The most trying period of the year for these beautiful orchids is approaching, and to carry them in a creditable condition through the heated period they should have as cool quarters as are at command.

Calanthes.

The calanthes are now growing apace and they can be watered more freely. Feeding should not be commenced until root action is more in evidence. When giving stimulants, avoid everything of a chemical nature and use only cow manure water; there is nothing better for calanthes and certain other terrestrial orchids. Do not spray over the plants as freely as you would cattleyas or dendrobies. Be sure the foliage is dry at night, or spot will soon develop. The nights are often cool in June and sometimes in July. One of the great secrets in successful calanthe culture is to prevent the house from ever having a cold, clammy feeling. Therefore, a little artificial heat at night, even if only a little wood is used, keeps a more buoyant atmosphere and is relished by the plants. A minimum of 70 to 75 degrees can be maintained, and when the house is closed in the afternoon with sun heat the temperature can run up to from 90 to 110 degrees, as there are few orchids which grow better in a brisk, moist heat than calanthes.

PARCEL POST INCLUDES C. O. D.

Already parcels sent by mail may be delivered by special messengers, just as letters are given special delivery, on the prepayment of a 10-cent fee, and last week instructions were issued to postmasters for handling C. O. D. parcel post packages. Charges on packages will be collected from addressees on and after July 1, provided the amount on a parcel does not exceed $100. The fee for collection will be 10 cents in parcel post stamps, to be affixed by the sender. This fee will insure the package against loss.

The sender will get a receipt showing the amount to be collected, the amount also appearing on a tag attached to the package. The addressee will receipt for the package on the tag, which will serve as an application for a money order. To accomplish this a distinctive tag will be attached to each C. O. D. package. The form used consists of three parts—the first to be detached and handed to the sender, the second to be kept on file in the mailing office and the third to be attached to the parcel.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Smith Memorial.

The committee appointed by the Society of American Florists at Chicago last year to solicit funds for the erection of a suitable memorial to the late Wm. R. Smith at the national capital has about completed the preliminary work and is ready to start an active campaign to see what can be done. The committee, which consists of W. F. Gude, chairman; J. K. M. L. Farquhar, H. Papworth, J. A. Valentine and R. Vincent, Jr., has sent the following letter to the secretaries of all trade organizations of which it has record:

"Your committee, charged with the securing of funds wherewith to erect a suitable memorial to the late Wm. R. Smith, who was for over sixty years superintendent of the United States Botanic Garden, and father of the charter of the Society of American Florists, has so far completed all preliminary steps, and is ready to receive subscriptions towards erecting a memorial worthy of the man.

"The form which the memorial shall take cannot be definitely decided until we have an approximate idea of the amount of money at the committee's disposal. When this has been ascertained the committee will then formulate plans and submit them to the Society of American Florists, which will finally pass on them.

"The committee therefore asks that you take immediate steps with your organization to further this cause, and forward subscriptions to Wm. F. Gude, chairman of the committee, Washington, D. C."

TO CURTAIL EXPRESS SERVICE.

Law Will Stop Sunday Work.

Illinois florists who find need for express service on Sunday should at once write to their representatives in the state legislature protesting against the passage of Illinois House Bill No. 766. If the bill becomes a law in the closing days of the session, now at hand, it will greatly curtail the Sunday service of all express companies operating in Illinois. The bill is as follows:

A BILL for an Act regulating the time of employment of expressmen and baggagemen in the State of Illinois.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly: That, no expressman or baggageman employed by any express or railroad company within this State shall be required or allowed to work more than six days in any one week.

Sec. 2. Any railroad or express company guilty of violating the provisions of the foregoing section shall be fined not less than $100 nor more than $1,000 for each and every offense.

In most towns where the express companies have more than one man on duty the law could be obeyed by doing as already is done in many instances, giving the men who work Sunday some other day off, but where there is only one express employee in a town the passage of the bill would mean the closing of the office on Sunday. Also, in many cases it would mean that many runs would be discontinued on Sunday because no messenger is available who would not be working seven days a week.

This is the way it is put by G. C. Taylor, general manager of the American Express Co.:

"On many minor runs and at local offices where but one or two men are employed it would be necessary in many cases for the express companies to entirely discontinue Sunday service, which would make it impossible for us to handle or complete the transportation on that day of flowers and similar perishable commodities.

"If the matter can be so presented to your proper representatives at Springfield, we believe the injustice and hardship of the measure will be apparent to them, as it will be depriving the public of a convenience to which they have heretofore been accustomed."

Every florist who is interested in the matter, and this number includes growers and wholesalers as well as florists in the smaller cities of Illinois, should at once write his representatives at Springfield, as the session is nearing its end and the bill will be passed in the next few days if at all.

MR. TOTTY APPRECIATIVE.

Last week C. H. Totty was presented with a silver service in recognition of his work for the Third National Flower Show:

To the members of the Society of American Florists and National Association of Gardeners: I wish to thank each and every one of you individually for the magnificent gift which I was presented with last week in recognition of my work as chairman of the International Flower Show. This present is all the more appreciated because it was entirely unexpected. I feel the success of the show was due, not so much to my hard work as to your earnest cooperation with me in every way. I only regret I am unable to share this beautiful gift with my fellow committeemen, who worked hard and faithfully and without whose assistance the show would be an impossible undertaking.

Trusting I may have the pleasure of reciprocating in some way in the near future, I remain,

Very sincerely yours,
CHAS. H. TOTTY.

BAUMANN'S BUILDINGS.

The accompanying illustration shows the establishment of L. Baumann & Co., Chicago, as it looks today. The two buildings afford a total of 34,000 square feet of floor space, representing the growth of twelve years from a start with 1,340 square feet.

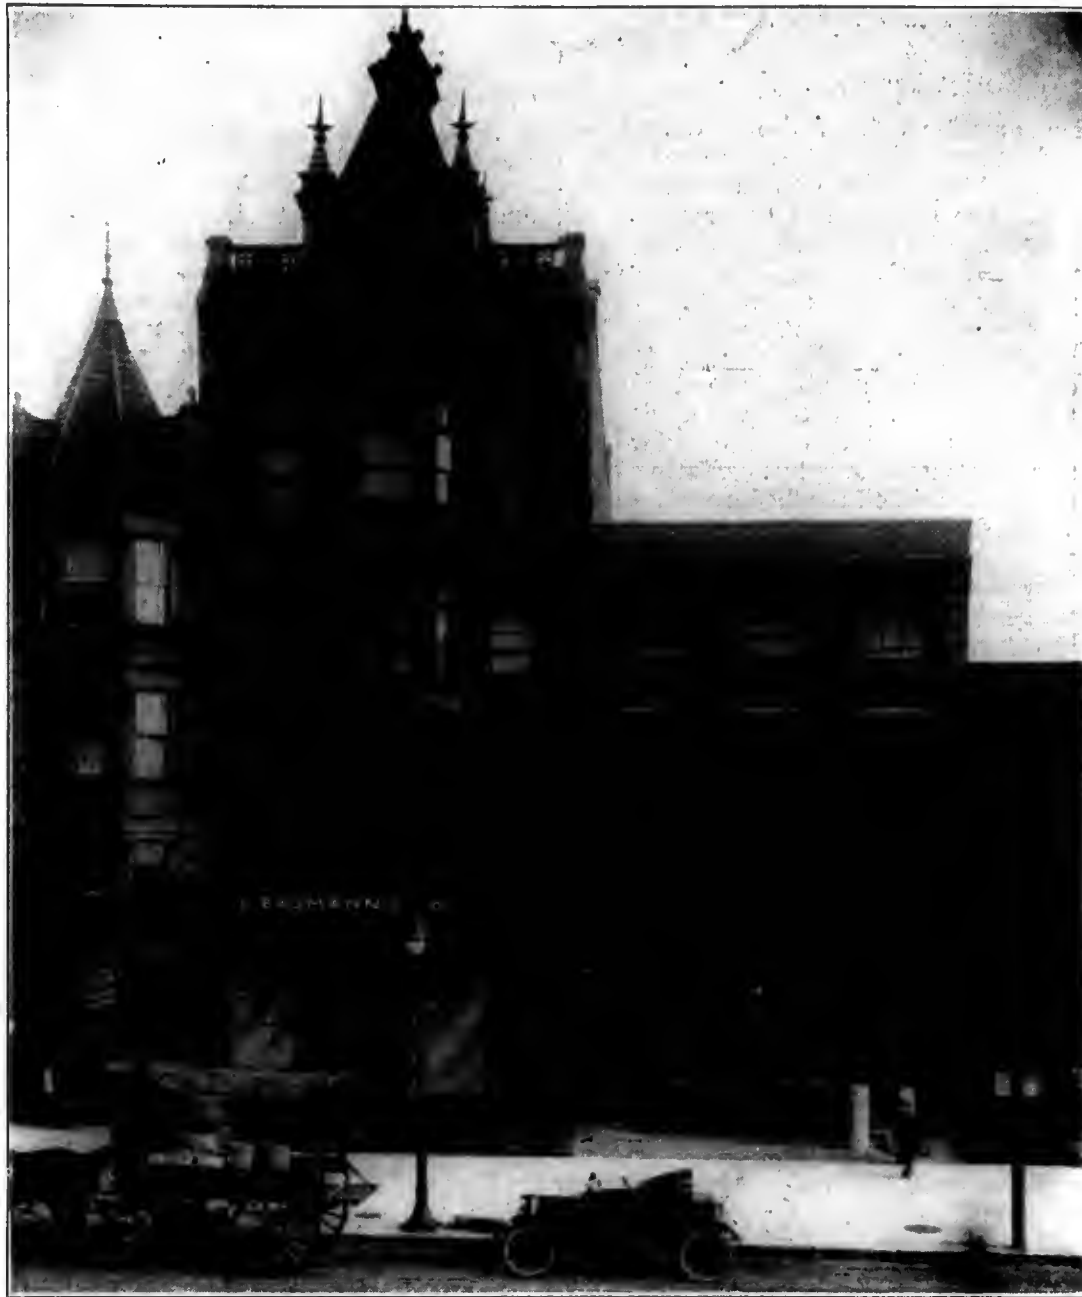

The partnership between L. Baumann and F. H. Gelderman was formed in 1901, the place of business being on the fifth floor at 84 Wabash avenue. A line of florists' supplies was carried and the firm manufactured artificial flowers. Soon more space was needed and a move was made to 76 and 78 Wabash avenue, where within three years an entire floor was being used. In the spring of 1908 a site was purchased on Chicago avenue, where a 3-story and basement brick building was put up. This building is shown on the right in the illustration. The floor space being over 14,000 square feet, it was thought that the housing problem was settled for all time, but within two years it was necessary to rent outside space for storage purposes. The 4-story and basement building shown on the left in the illustration was acquired in 1911 and, after alterations, including the cutting of doors connecting the two structures, possession was taken of the three upper floors. The store and basement were under lease to outside parties until May 1 of this year, since which date Baumann & Co. have made extensive alterations, including the fitting up of a handsome office, a feature of which is a private telephone exchange with three trunk lines.

Mr. Baumann, who at present is on the Pacific coast with his family, still takes active charge of the foreign interests of the firm. F. H. Gelderman has charge of the general business.

CINCINNATI.The Market.

The local market is nothing to brag about. There is a lot of good stock coming in and a lot that is far from good. Neither of these classes clean up or for that matter can clean up at the rate that stock is moving. Locally the retail business is slow. Monday, usually a busy day, found buyers for local stores buying stock sparingly. Shipping business is good.

Beginning with the close of last week, we have had sweltering hot weather and up to Monday of this week each succeeding day proved warmer than the previous one. At the time of this writing there is no immediate relief in sight. As a result plants, etc., that are out in the field need rain and need it badly. The rose cuts are large and include choice offerings in Beauties, My Maryland, Taft, Kaiserin, Killarney and White Killarney. Enough of the first named are offered to easily go around and of the others there are far more than needs require. This is especially true of the last two named.

The hot weather is telling on the carnations. The supply of good stock is rather limited. Quite a large part of the receipts have either thrips or red spider or are soft and are practically worthless. The general demand for carnations is not large.

Other stock shows as follows: Valley finds a fair market; sweet peas, when good, sell fairly well; gladioli offerings contain some good stock and are proving good property in a slow market. A limited number of hardy hydrangeas have come in. Other receipts include snapdragons, giganteum lilies, cornflowers, feverfew and pond lilies.

Various Notes.

The outing committee, consisting of C. H. Hoffmeister, A. C. Heckman, Jr., and R. C. Witterstaetter, has made arrangements to hold the florists' annual outing and picnic at Coney Island on Thursday, July 17. Tickets are being mailed to members of the society.

C. E. Critchell has rented the floor above his present quarters. It is his intention, as soon as his display cases, etc., are installed, to use this floor for offices and supplies and to devote his present quarters entirely to cut flowers. This arrangement gives him twice his present floor space. Mr. Critchell says that this expansion has been made necessary by the growth of his business.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange is receiving some fine lilies from Wm. Schumann.

Chas. Pommert, Amelia, O., is sending excellent pond lilies, coreopsis and feverfew to E. G. Gillett.

Martin Reukauf, of Bayersdorfer's; Harry Balsley, Detroit, Mich., and Al. Newman, Zanesville, O., called on the trade here recently. Other visitors were Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Klus, Anderson, Ind.; Mrs. Lampert and daughter, Zanesville, O., and Chas. M. Uhl, representing Uhl's Greenhouses, Greenfield, O.

L. H. Kyrk has been getting in fine Maryland and Kaiserin roses from W. Frank & Sons, Portland, Ind.

C. H. H.

Salida, Colo.—Jacob Chaney and his wife, who started in the greenhouse business here last season, have taken over the Salida Greenhouses, formerly owned by J. H. Freeman, and have combined the two places. In future the business will be conducted under the name of the Alpha Greenhouse. It is the intention to thoroughly modernize the houses, as business is good.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The second week of June was on a par with its predecessor. These two weeks combined have broken all former records. For this particular part of the season no such depression in prices has ever been known. The debris carted away daily has been enormous. Vans of purchases at unmentionable prices were absorbed by the department stores. Buyers from the retail element made their own prices, yet the week closed with ice-boxes and cellars crowded with the unsold surplus. Little improvement is looked for before the summer dullness. June weddings and school commencements may cause a gentle ripple before the month ends.

The peonies are lessening; a goodly lot have gone into cold storage. The outdoor roses soon will have spent their force, shipments will decrease, and roses and carnations should then show signs of convalescence.

American Beauty roses are retrograding in quality and prices are low. There is no let-up yet in the shipments of tea roses and no change from last week's quotations. The so-called rose novelties of the year are not so abundant, and prices hold fairly well.

The carnation supply is heavy, and so are the prices. From 50 cents to $1 last week would have bought the best of them. There is no report, however, of any going into cold storage. They go to sleep soon enough naturally.

Lilies are overabundant and prices have fallen to a Bermuda Easter short-flower quotation—$2 per hundred. The accumulations amount to many thousands, one house at one time having as high as 25,000 on hand. Callas are few and mediocre. Valley holds well, the June weddings absorbing all the best of it.

Gardenias have retired gracefully from competition. There is no limit to the sweet peas, daisies, coreopsis and delphiniums. Sweet peas are especially abundant. Some grand stock has arrived lately, premonitory of the Boston exhibition and convention early in July.

The orchid shipments continue abnormal, as many as a thousand gigas being on view in a single wholesaler's ice-box at a time. Prices are worth while to the grower only for the finest selections; one lot of 500 sold last week at $35 per hundred. Better prices are now anticipated from the decreasing shipments.

Various Notes.

Wm. Kessler has been receiving large shipments of a scarlet peony he calls American Beauty, which commands top prices.

L. W. Kervan is still at the Polyclinic hospital, but is convalescing rapidly.

June 25 at 10:15 a. m., on the Lackawanna railroad, the outing of the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association begins. It will extend over two days and promises to be most enjoyable and largely attended. This society is noted for the novelty of its celebrations, and this is the most ambitious trip of its career. All its members are, now or prospectively, millionaires. A wonderfully attractive program has been provided, and $8.50 pays for it all. Secretary Siebrecht wishes to know if you are going, as soon as convenient. There will be a night of dancing and bowling at the Kittenning hotel.

The outing of the New York Florists' Club will take place July 1. The committee is making complete arrangements as to sports, prizes and entertainment that should make this the banner excursion of the society. Tickets are for sale by Chairman Phil Kessler, and should be procured at once. More than $400 will be devoted to prizes alone.

Next comes the Greek-American outing, July 9. A large boat has been engaged, to hold 1,000, and Secretary Fellouris says there will be that number in attendance. The destination is College Point.

Miss Lillian Major, of the A. T. Bodington staff, will be married June 29 to M. Getz. The young lady is a great favorite with her business associates and receives their congratulations and a two weeks' holiday from Mr. Bodington.

The committee of the International Flower Show of 1914 met and completed its organization Friday, June 13, 1913. Let us hope the "13" in this case may bring good luck to all concerned. F. R. Pierson was elected chairman; F. R. Newbold, treasurer, and J. Young, secretary. The publicity committee is composed of Harry A. Bunyard, chairman, Wallace R. Pierson and Charles H. Totty. The schedule committee will meet this week. Great enthusiasm is already manifested in New York in favor of this exhibition, and the success of the show seems already assured.

The Stumpp & Walter Co. has secured the 6-story building at 30 and 32 Barclay street and, after extensive improvements are completed, will move to this desirable location about September 1. The company will have double the space it now occupies at 50 Barclay street, the ground floor covering twice the area of the present retail accommodation.

It was reported at the office of the Yokohama Nursery Co. last week that an alliance between the United States and Japan was consummated June 1 at the residence of the bride's sister, Mr. Kakuda representing the island nation on this occasion.

Russin & Hanfling took title to their new 5-story building on West Twenty-eighth street May 29, the price being $50,000. They will add $10,000 in improvements this summer, and expect to occupy the premises early in September.

Geo. C. Siebrecht would have won the $1,000 Bermuda motorboat race last week if his business had made absence possible.

F. H. Traendly says the next spring flower show in New York "will discount the April exhibition of this year."

Herman Weiss has rented the first floor of 103 West Twenty-eighth street for his wholesale cut flower business.

The movement for Sunday closing and for early closing every day in the week but Saturday seems to be taking practical shape in the wholesale section. Retailers could profitably make the same arrangements for July and August.

Wallace R. Pierson advises a visit June 21 to the famous rose garden at Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., a triumph of artistic skill by Theodore Wirth, now of Minneapolis. The American Rose Society judges meet that day, and extend a general invitation to all interested to visit the wonderful display.

Mrs. Paul Meconi left June 17 for a ten weeks' visit with friends in Europe.

Charles Kelley, bookkeeper for M. C.

Ford, has recovered from a severe attack of pneumonia.

Young & Nugent have had some notable wedding decorations lately. The front of this firm's Twenty-eighth street store has been much improved and its pure white dressing seems especially appropriate. Mr. and Mrs. Nugent will enjoy a supplementary honeymoon shortly at Atlantic City and other desirable summer vacation centers.

J. A. S.

The Smith & Hemenway Co., which owns the Red Devil trademark found on so many florists' glass cutters, states that arrangements have been made to carry a complete stock at the factory at Irvington, N. J., and that all shipments will be made from the Irvington Mfg. Co. after July 10.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business last week averaged a little better than in its predecessor. There has been no improvement in prices; in fact, values now are rather unstable, as is customary in June, and there is a considerable waste each day. Roses vary in value from 50 cents per hundred upward. One lot of 2,000 last week sold for $6, not a profitable price. A large part of the flowers arriving have foliage more or less mildewed. Carnations vary from 50 cents to $2. A few fancies may go higher, but they are few; $1 is as much as average flowers are worth. Sweet peas are overabundant and druggish. Many are cleared at low prices. White, pink and lavender are the popular shades.

Peonies are now at their best. Outside of such whites as Festiva Maxima and good pinks, the demand is not brisk. A good many Spanish, Siberian and German irises are seen. The first named sell fairly well; the others not at all. Callas are a slow sale, as are lilies. Good yellow marguerites have sold well and blue cornflowers have been popular. Valley grown outdoors is now over and the call for the indoor article for weddings has been fairly good. Mignonette is nearing the end and snapdragons are also running much poorer and will soon be over. Small gladioli such as Peach Blossom are over and the demand for America and other large-flowered sorts is only moderate. Cattleyas continue in excess of the demand. For green stock the sales are now fairly good, weddings helping this branch quite a little.

Various Notes.

The garden committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society inspected the Boston parkways June 13 on invitation of J. B. Shea, superintendent. Later, accompanied by Jackson Dawson, the Arnold Arboretum was examined. The trees and shrubs, both in the parkways and arboretum, were in splendid condition. The committee was later entertained at dinner at Clark's hotel, by Chairman J. K. M. L. Farquhar. A gold medal was awarded to the park department for excellence in landscape arrangement and to the Arnold Arboretum for work done for the advancement of horticulture. The committee consisted of J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Wm. Nicholson, D. W. Craig, T. J. Grey, T. D. Hatfield, H. Brackett, Dr. Kennedy, W. P. Rich and A. H. Fewkes. June 16 the committee inspected the rose and peony gardens of Wilton Lockwood, South Orleans, Mass. The collection of peonies, embracing 300 varieties, was in fine condition. Some of the rambler roses, such as Carmine Pillar and Jersey Beauty, were fine, while hybrid perpetuals and hybrid teas were just coming into flower.

James Philbrick, of Woburn, is a successful grower of Kaiserin roses and is sending fine daily shipments to the Boston Coöperative Market.

William Sim has invited the garden committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society to visit his Cliftondale establishment June 20. Sweet peas under glass and outdoors and tomatoes under glass will be special attractions. Mr. Sim never had such superb Spencer peas as at present. His collection includes every novelty procurable. He is picking tomatoes in quantity now and has his usual field of early sweet corn well advanced.

The stalls of all the rose salesmen at the Boston Flower Exchange are being zinc-lined, with a trough to carry off water. This is an improvement welcomed by all the rose men. The stand of McAlpine Bros., just completed, is now up to date.

W. R. Morris sends as many as 10,000 roses daily to the Boston Coöperative Market, chiefly Killarneys and Richmonds. These are all handled by B. J. McGinty.

The next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club has been postponed to Wednesday, June 25. This will be kept as ladies' night and the executive committee has prepared a splendid entertainment for the occasion.

Robert Montgomery, of Natick, has had a successful season with roses. His specialties are Killarney, White Killarney, Ward and Richmond. Mr. Montgomery will build one additional house this season.

W. R. Holden, Louis Small and Harry L. Shedd have just returned from a successful fishing trip in northern Maine. All gained flesh, Mr. Holden tipping the scales half a score pounds heavier on his return.

Geo. O. Bucknam, of Stoneham, is having unusual success with Spencer sweet peas under glass this season. His carnations are also holding out well.

At the various seed stores business continues quite good. Owing to the cold weather, many seeds failed to germinate and had to be resown. Trade in insecticides, lawn sprinklers, spraying outfits and bedding plants has been active of late.

A. G. Cartwright, of Clematis Brook, Waltham, and J. Streiferd & Son, of Weymouth, are now regular rose shippers to the Boston Coöperative Market. Killarneys and Richmonds are their specialties.

Fred L. Sly, of South Stoughton, who started in business last season, is now in the market with fine lots of Spencer peas and peonies.

The date of the sweet pea exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and American Sweet Pea Society, scheduled for July 5 and 6, has been postponed to July 12 and 13.

John McFarland, of North Easton, has had an active trade in lily of the valley for weddings this month. He is a large specialist in this. He is still getting some fine gardenias.

W. N. Craig.

THE BOWLING TROPHY.

The accompanying illustration shows the silver cup presented to its bowling squad by the Cook County Florists' Association. The bowlers have just completed their season, and the trophy goes to Al. Fisher, a well-known Chicago retail florist, who has the high average for the series. There are a large number of other prizes that are to be presented at the meeting at The Tavern, Chicago, June 19.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

The continued cool weather helped the quality of roses, carnations and daisies, all of which were looking better, but we jumped into the middle of summer last week and are likely to see the effects within a few days. Just at present, however, we are more interested in the much-needed rain. Most of the growers got their carnations hoed and the weather was just right to kill the weeds, but the growers can not make rain and it is badly needed. Much of the fruit was killed by frost; the strawberry crop was almost nothing, and unless we get rain at once the raspberry crop will also be a disappointment.

The wholesalers have been doing well. There are more really good flowers than we ever had before in June. Roses and carnations are fine. Beauties and sweet peas are fair. Some specially fine valley is coming in, as well as some good Spanish iris, white and yellow daisies and lilies, all of which are being moved as well as could be expected. Of course, quantities of useless stock are sure to be sent in, as there are still people who do not seem to realize that only limited quantities of outdoor stock can be sold and that must be good. The many out-of-town commencements keep the wholesale men at their wits' end trying to supply class flowers, and the class that selected the violet is having as much trouble as the one that selected the arbutus. The retail people are still helping out those young people who think June is the time to mate and some of the stores have really been quite busy. Taking the retailers as a whole, they are having a fair June trade.

I have been told that the planting of bedding stock seemed to cease rather suddenly and that there are more bedding plants unsold than usual, but a little quizzing brought the information that almost every plantsman increased his supply about 25 to 60 per cent. So, if there is a surplus it is not such a bad state of affairs.

Various Notes.

The E. C. Ludwig Floral Co. has been planting a great variety of lilies and hardy herbaceous flowers on the farm for the last two years and is now cutting quantities of fine hardy flowers. The beauty of it is, they have a class of customers whom they have educated to buy seasonable flowers and a handsome, large bunch of these can be sold for a reasonable price.

Mrs. E. A. Williams had a yellow window last week, containing yellow Spanish iris with stems two feet long. And, don't forget, there is a way to make iris attractive and this window proved it.

Among other good things last week, the McCallum Co. was receiving quantities of handsome English delphiniums.

Randolph & McClements had a handsome wedding decoration last week, in which the light blue delphiniums played a prominent part.

George Marshall moved his family out to his farm last week. He will visit them on Sundays. As his family consists of his father and mother, his friends think he may use some of his lonesome evenings in looking up an addition to his family.

Allen Langhans is now a commodore of the Oircanoe Club, the first canoe club to be established on the upper Ohio river. The club house is at Emsworth station, about seven miles below the city.

Fred Burki is now driving a Buick roadster, as he finds it more convenient than his big car for business purposes.

George Crissman and his two sons, of Punxsutawney, Pa., have been in the city enjoying the ball game.

You could not bluff V. A. Cowgill, of Salem, O., because it was Friday, June 13. He selected that date to see the Giants and Pirates play and brought a party of his neighbors. They occupied section 13 at Forbes Field and Mr. Cowgill took seat 13. He also rode in seat 13 on the chair car.

Jas. B. and Wm. B. Murdoch, of the firm of J. B. Murdoch & Co., wholesale florists at 122 Ninth street, wish to announce their retirement from the firm, and in the future they will devote their time to the growing of cut flowers at their greenhouses at Van Emaus station. W. H. Carney, the other member of the firm, will continue in the wholesale business at the same address as formerly. Clarke.

Morton Grove, Ill.—George Meyer, son of Jacob Meyer, the wholesale florist, and Miss Margaret Witty, of Evanston, were married June 10 in St. Paul's Roman Catholic church, at Park Ridge. The couple went south to spend their honeymoon. The young man is employed by C. Taube, at Park Ridge.

Aberdeen, Miss.—The Aberdeen Floral Co. has engaged J. B. Mabry to take charge of its greenhouses. Mr. Mabry is a thoroughly experienced grower, having been employed for the last eleven years by T. G. Owen, of Columbus, Miss. The Aberdeen Floral Co., which started business here a year or two ago with only about 500 square feet of glass, now has over 20,000 square feet and expects to have double that area by this time next year. The principal crops grown are roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, lilies and asparagus. Some business is done, also, in the shipping of wild smilax.

Results bring advertising.
 The Review brings results.

THE rose garden at Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., planted under the auspices of the American Rose Society, is making an excellent showing this month.

SURPLUSES, if sold below the regular rates, as almost always is the case, frequently are embarrassing to those who otherwise would not have to make a sacrifice.

THOSE who have surpluses of good bedding stock still can find buyers by using the Classified columns of The Review. The season is by no means over with all Review readers.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THERE has been an increased call, this season, for petunias for window box use, a good pink being the color wanted. It has been somewhat at the expense of geraniums. The petunia is too fragile a plant to recommend for exposed situations.

EUROPEAN visitors, returning from a visit to America, seldom fail to comment on the use made of ribbon by the florists on this side of the Atlantic. It is so much more lavish than anything known on the other side that the trade tourist always is impressed.

THERE proves to be considerable surplus bedding stock. It is not a general condition of surplus, but apparently a number of growers with a comparatively limited local outlet have produced larger quantities of stock than usual without doing anything to broaden their market. It is getting, and more so every season, that success depends as much on one's ability to find buyers as on his ability to produce stock.

It seems strange that shippers will send large quantities of stock, venturing considerable loss, without having first consulted the house to which the shipments are made. Conditions have changed and commission men no longer are willing to advance express charges on all sorts of unexpected consignments. The shippers of southern outdoor stock feel greatly aggrieved because this year hundreds upon hundreds of cases have been refused, but they do not stop to consider that they should have written first to see if the wholesaler wanted the stock. A penny postal sometimes saves many dollars.

LADIES' S. A. F.

The Ladies' Society of American Florists offers a yearly bowling prize of $25 to the lady having the highest score, said lady bowler to be a member of the Ladies' S. A. F.

Mrs. Chas. H. Maynard, Sec'y.

OBITUARY.

Emil Borchart.

Emil Borchart, of St. Paul, Minn., died last week of hemorrhage of the brain. The deceased was a member of the firm of L. Anderson & Co., operating greenhouses at University and Farrington avenues and a store in the Schubert theater building. He had been connected with that firm for the last three years; prior to that time he was with E. F. Lemke. Mr. Borchart's death was sudden and unexpected. When he reached home at night he complained of a headache, which was the result of a hot day spent in the greenhouses. During the night the hemorrhage occurred and he expired in the morning. He was 46 years of age and leaves to mourn his loss a wife and son. The funeral was well attended by the local florists. C. R. F.

THE TWO EXTREMES.

Perhaps there are those who will be interested in the fact that The Review gives first-class returns to its advertisers irrespective of the advertiser's location; it makes no difference how far the advertiser may be from the center of population; The Review brings him business just the same. Here are two letters from the two extremes of the country, one at the extreme Pacific northwest and the other the extreme Atlantic northeast, that tell the story:

In sending you our check we want to say that the advertisement is a humdinger for getting business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash., June 9, 1913.

Enclosed you will find my check for $34.60 to cover account to date. Sometimes we pay bills where we question the profit for us, but never so with a bill from The Review.—G. S. Ramsburg, Somersworth, N. H., June 7, 1913.

There is a further point that has real cash value if one wants to apply it: Neither of these advertisers is advertising in any other paper.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Following a week of extremely hot weather, the local market has been generally demoralized and has had to face not only a dropping off in demand but also an increase in the supply. This is only natural, however, and with the thermometer hitting the high marks for June it has been impossible to hold the crops back or handle them when they reach the market. The hot sun has likewise worked havoc with the quality of the stock and, while good stock still can be found, the greater part of the roses and carnations have passed the stage where they can be used for shipping purposes.

While the market appears loaded with both carnations and roses, there is no great supply of peonies that will warrant shipping. The condition of the market in this respect is exactly the reverse of last year, when the market was badly glutted with peonies of all kinds. They then commanded the market, but with the crops damaged by frost this season they have failed to figure to any great extent since Memorial day. Two days above 90 degrees have about finished the local cut and only small quantities have gone into storage.

Beauties are probably in greater abundance than they have been at any

Special Notice to Buyers of BEAUTIES

Now cutting 8,000 to 10,000 Beauties per day

BEAUTY buyers should arrange to get their supplies from us. While the present cut is not less than 8,000 per day, it soon will be much larger, and buyers can count on our being able to supply them next winter as well as this summer. For the next season we shall have the cut from something over 170,000 plants. Retailers can work up a business on these now and we can keep them supplied at all times. Prices are low, but it is fine stock we are offering, mostly cut from young plants—all lengths, good color, good heads, good foliage. Have a few Beauties from old plants that give longer stems for the money, but the young stock is best quality.

Short stems, $4.00 to $6.00 per 100; medium, $10.00 to $15.00 per 100; long, $20.00 per 100.

FANCY ROSES

You know that you can do business right along through the summer if you have the right grade of stock to offer. You will find our roses right. Our growers know how to produce the goods that will meet the summer demand. We want your order now, because we know that once you have tried our roses you will use them all summer. We have arranged for large summer crops. Now offering special values in

Roses, our selection, $20.00 per 1000

We have built up an enormous business on sweet peas because of the quality of stock we offer. There are no better peas, and few as good. We can supply thousand lots of one color.

FANCY VALLEY

You can depend upon us at all times for valley. If you run short, a wire to Amling will bring the valley you need.

ORCHIDS

Our Cattleyas are not surpassed for quality by those to be found anywhere else in this country. It is home-grown stock and will reach you fresh, with full keeping quality.

PEONIES

We can still supply first-class peonies, though the bulk of the stock now in market is not of a dependable quality.

CARNATIONS

The weather has been unfavorable for carnations, but we still have some first-class stock.

We can supply fine Easter Lilies in large quantity every day in the year.

time this year, and the huge crops now being cut have made it hard for the wholesalers to secure anything better than moderate prices. The quality, too, has suffered, and many show the effects of the hot sun. So far as foliage is concerned they are excellent, but as to bud it is necessary to exercise care to pick out the good ones. Killarneys are also abundant and, while many growers have thrown out most of the old plants, there are still more than the wholesalers can find legitimate use for. This is more especially true of the shorter ones. In the longer lengths the call is more nearly equal to the supply of good stock. The same is true of Richmonds, while there appears to be no oversupply in yellows. June weddings have carried off the surplus in these, and with the early spring all yellow roses have found a popular demand. Most of the roses received at the opening of this week were wide open because of the heat, and the crop is expected to be run off in a few days.

In carnations the market is exceedingly short of the better grades, and it is hard to find really good shipping stock. The sun has produced its usual effect, and the majority of the large quantities now being cut show poor quality, the flowers being small, soft and sleepy. The quantities arriving have fairly swamped the local market, and street men have cleaned out ice-boxes at their own offer. These flowers are peddled to the public at 10 cents per bunch.

Sweet peas appear to be in better condition than one would expect. Large quantities have been picked during the last few days and they move well, although at extremely low prices. Lilies are abundant, and valley is fully equal to the supply. Cattleyas are arriving in larger numbers, but no change in price has been noted as yet. The market is heavily loaded with miscellaneous stock, which sells only at low prices.

New crop hardy cut ferns are more plentiful and prices are falling.

A case now occupying the attention of the County court is a suit for damages brought against the city by the Foley Mfg. Co. Some time ago the city council passed an ordinance requiring the C. B. & Q. R. R. to elevate its tracks

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The third week in June brought the hottest weather of the season without completely upsetting the market. The demand for commencements has undoubtedly fallen off, but there are many other ways in which flowers are used that have more than made up for this loss. More flowers are used for weddings than in the past, and many more for parties at the suburban clubs and at the country houses. There has been heavy shipping of valley, carnations, roses and asparagus. The stock good enough to qualify for such orders has brought an excellent price, but much stock is not good enough to qualify and this has to be sold at an exceedingly low price to dispose of it at all. There has been quite a lot of funeral work that has made white roses in request. Sweet peas, outdoor grown, are in full crop. They are freely used, at declining prices.

The market, compared with the first three weeks in June last year, shows fully as much business, with so many more flowers that prices are much lower for all except select stock.

The Club Outing.

Thursday, June 19, will long be remembered as a red-letter day in the history of the Florists' Club. The second annual outing on the Delaware river to Washington park took place. I say "took place" because you will read this after the fun is all over, although it is written just before anybody has started for the Arch street wharf. The attractive program of events will give you some idea of what was planned. To this you must add the best of fellowship and that holiday spirit, heightened by the presence of the fair sex and the rollicking alike of grownups and of children. The program:

He visited forty of the principal cities on the continent and saw all his correspondents and many sights of interest. Mr. Eschner was struck by the low wages paid for many kinds of work, and by the long hours. The flower market in Brussels, an open square, where produce is sold from 4 to 6 a. m. and flowers afterwards, chiefly by women, was interesting. The flowers are offered in bunches on trays at buyers' prices. The sight is a pretty one. An umbrella-shaped Crimson Rambler in full bloom

The day Mr. Eschner reached London was a day of rejoicing; flags were flying as for a great holiday. It was Mr. Eschner's birthday. Somewhat surprised, he modestly inquired why the city celebrated. It was also the king's birthday. Then came Derby day, the sporting event of the year on the English turf, with its wonderful crowds and sights. Mr. and Mrs. Eschner were good sailors, making a good start and a good finish to their pleasant trip, that combined pleasure with business. Mr. Eschner again emphasizes his statement that America has no European rival in her flower stores.

In Milan the mourners walked at a funeral, while the hearse was hidden by wreaths. One wreath was made of cypresses of great length, with a few flowers tied at the base by a sash fully fifteen inches wide. Gilt letters on the sash gave almost a life history of the deceased. Beech sprays were used in all colors.

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The local cut flower market had a good week, as the demand of the retailers was quite large, owing to much graduating work and a number of fashionable weddings. The season is considered practically over for social work of any kind. The growers all say they are in a bad way for rain, and field stock is suffering much for the want of a heavy downpour. All outdoor cut stock coming in shows the effects of the dry spell.

In looking over the stock last week we found plenty of everything seasonable, but the quality generally was poor and prices suffered greatly. Roses are in great demand. Killarneys are in the majority. Carnations are small, but the best commanded $3 per hundred. Sweet peas were more plentiful than the previous week and the demand excellent at all times. Gladioli stacked up greatly last week. The dry weather is holding them back. Valley and Easter lilies cleaned up almost daily. There were a great many asters in the market, and the demand was good. Fancy ferns continue scarce, which caused a large demand for other greens.

Club Meeting.

June 12 the twenty-seventh anniversary meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club was held in the graduate lecture room at the Missouri Botanical Garden, and it proved to be the largest of the year. When the meeting opened, with ex-President Ammann in the chair, sixty-five members were present. Mr.

MICHELL'S GIANT PANSY SEEDS

To prove quality to myself I have been making tests of various sowings of Pansy seed bought from different firms in this country and in England. Am pleased to be able to say, "Your Giant Exhibition Strain of Pansy is by far the best." They are simply magnificent in color and size and have a good long stem. They are far ahead of any other. Thinking this might interest you, I am penning these lines.
 Yours very truly, STEPHEN AGER.

Ammann was afterward relieved by Vice-President Chas. Young. Chairman Ossick, of the trustees, reported that they had made arrangements for the annual picnic, to take place at Romona park, in St. Louis county, Thursday, July 17. The report was accepted and a donation of $50 was made by the club. The publicity committee made a report, which brought out a big discussion. The committee was continued.

State Vice-president Denker, of the S. A. F., made a report as to transportation for the convention. The fare will be $19.50 for the round trip to Minneapolis over any of the roads, and a boat trip up the river to St. Paul will cost $28 round trip. The latter trip seems much in favor with the members. The July meeting will settle this question.

A letter was read from the management of the Coliseum regarding a fall flower show. Frank M. Robinson, the new manager, was present, and laid the plans before the members. The chair appointed a committee to confer with the directors of the Coliseum and report at the next meeting. The following were appointed: H. C. Irish, chairman; J. F. Ammann, Fred W. Bruenig, W. C. Smith and R. J. Windler.

Hugo Scheff, head gardener for the board of education, and James F. Fox, of the Fox Clay Pottery Co., were elected to membership. A vote of thanks was extended to Dr. Moore, director of the garden, for the invitation to hold the meeting at such a beautiful place. Treasurer Smith's report showed the club in a healthy condition financially.

The next meeting will be July 10. The nomination of officers will take place at this meeting and the election at the August meeting.

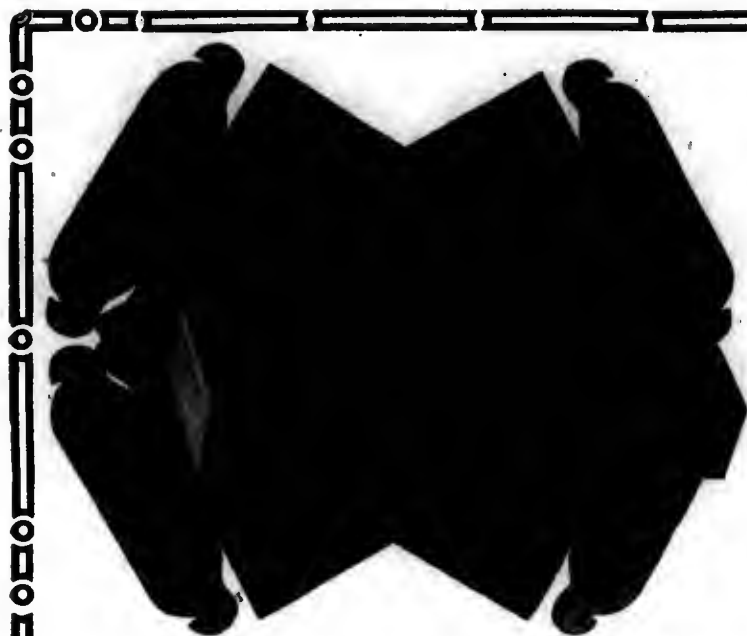

After the meeting adjourned the members were taken in hand by W. S. Wells and shown through the garden. The large conservatories just completed were of great interest to all the members. After this the members visited the establishment of the Bourdet Floral Co., which is close by, where refreshments were served. The weather was fine, and all said they spent a most pleasant afternoon. The only regret was that the other thirty-eight members of the club were not in attendance.

The Market.

The market in all lines of cut flowers underwent a change about June 2 that has everyone in the business guessing where it will end. Business has been fair for this time of the year. The sales have been running up to previous years in totals, but the quantity of stock coming in has been, it seems, about ten times the amount that has ever been shipped to this market in one season.

There is fine stock to be had in all lines and the buyer has his choice at his own figure. Roses are plentiful and it is impossible to clean them up. The good stock has been doing remarkably well and is holding nicely. The shorter stock is a problem and to keep this grade moving is a trick that so been satisfactory. Sweet peas are here by the thousands and the prices have dropped on all grades. We are getting in some fine stock and it is too bad that the trade will not be able to use a good part of them.

Carnations are a glut and seem to have lost their grip entirely. The prices on the best stock have reached $2 per hundred; the poorer grades have brought from $1 per hundred down.

Easter lilies are fine and in large supply. The demand for these has not been equal to the supply and there is a big loss here to the grower. It seems that in this line there is an oversupply or none at all and the writer thinks the growers should get together on this item and post each other so that the big glut could be overcome.

There is a big supply of snapdragons and candytuft that missed Memorial day and all this helps to crowd the market. Lily of the valley is fine and in heavy supply. Green goods are holding firm and fancy ferns are rather scarce.

This has been a good year for the plant growers and they all report clean-up sales. Vincas have brought as high as $20 to $25 in the last week.

Various Notes.

Robert Unger, who has been for several years in charge of the greenhouses and conservatory on Belle Isle park, has lost his position through a recent change in administration. The position of head gardener, which Mr. Unger held, has been done away with entirely and Robert Flowerday, former superintendent of parks and boulevards, has been appointed general overseer of Belle Isle park.

The members of the Detroit Florists' Club will in the near future receive an invitation to hold an outdoor meeting at Thos. Browne's greenhouses, at Greenfield, Mich. Looking back over the club's records, we find that the most enjoyable of all our gatherings were those at which we met outdoors, as the guests of some one of our hospitable members; we may, therefore, look forward to a most enjoyable evening at Mr. Browne's. The exact date will be announced later.

This is the first time this section has been visited by a frost in June in twenty-nine years, the last instance being June 15, 1884, when much damage was done. The exhibition committee of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society has issued its schedule of premiums for the year. There are four exhibitions arranged for, in June, July, September and November, with positive lines drawn for each as to the character of the exhibitions. For a number of years the exhibitions have formed a lodging place for all manner of display, with little attempt at classification or elimination. The June exhibition, which will be held in the parlors of the Mathewson Street church, will

The Market.

Business as a whole during the last week has been quiet, although there has been a demand for flowers in connection with the numerous commencement exercises held here during the month and the banquets of the police chiefs of the United States and Canada and of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, who have been in session in this city. Funeral work has been plentiful, but the lack of the large dinner and tea decorations, so plentiful in the cool months, has been felt by many of the establishments.

The lack of rain and the changeable weather conditions have had an ill effect upon all outdoor stock and the intense heat has caused the markets to be flooded with wide open roses, with the result that for the best stock there is a demand, while a large percentage of the balance finds its way to the refuse pile. Several of the dealers are having their carnations go out of crop and many of these flowers now coming in are absolutely worthless and can be had at any price. There is some good stock to be had, however, and there is enough to supply all demands.

Locally grown American Beauty roses are, in the main, in poor shape, on account of the ravages of thrips, and several of the local florists would appreciate suggestions for the extermination of the pest. One grower reports that thrips can be overcome in the houses for but a day at a time, as the adjacent vegetation is alive with them and conditions are such that these weeds cannot be destroyed. No screen is fine enough to prevent their entrance into the houses and so the growers are up against it. Blossoms come into market all scalloped at the edges where, when first forming into bud, the tender petals had been eaten.

Gardenias are exceptionally good and are being shipped to northern and eastern markets in large quantities.

Various Notes.

Rose-pink Enchantress and Enchantress, White Perfection, Beacon and Winsor, all with from two to four leads, are among the varieties of carnations offered this week by F. H. Kramer at 5 cents per plant. There

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Business is quiet and, were it not for several wedding decorations, would be really dull. Stock is plentiful; carnations more so than for a long time. Some fine orchids are on sale. Outdoor roses are good and sell fairly well.

Various Notes.

The H. Harrington Co. has moved its main store from Second avenue up to Pike street, between Second and Third avenues, and opened for business this week. The premises are fine and the firm is making a good display. Second avenue, once the only street with florists' stores, has now only two below Pike street.

At the monthly meeting of the Florists' Club, June 10, there was a good attendance and several new members were admitted. As usual, most of them were growers. What's the reason more of the retailers do not come in? A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the annual picnic. It is hoped Tacoma will join with us again and regain their laurels at baseball and Marathon. Laurels or not, we want to get together.

Ivan Risdon is planning to build a greenhouse on property contiguous to Ralph Richardson's place at Brighton.

Jack Sahli, his wife and daughter, Carl Melby and his intended, C. Sandahl and C. Hoffmeister were Seattle visitors at the Portland rose carnival last week.

Owing to the comparative lateness of the season for outdoor roses, the committee of the Mount Baker Improvement Club has been compelled to postpone the rose show to Saturday, June 21. Indications point to a first-class display. T. W.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

June weddings and the festivities in connection with them have helped the market materially and stock has cleaned up much better during the last two weeks. The finest thing in the market now, undoubtedly, is the splendid Brunner stock coming in from the north. As a well known retailer remarks, "Beauties are no good alongside these." The flowers are large and of perfect outline; the foliage is deep green and the whole thing stands well. Even the shorts sell well, as they last several days longer than even the hardest-grown Beauties. The local growers, too, are in with fine outdoor roses; indeed, there has seldom been a time when the retailer has had so good a selection.

Funeral work has also kept up well and the pieces turned out here are far better than formerly. However, I should like to see better methods of delivery. Motorcycles and bicycles are all very well as means of locomotion, but there are better things for delivering choice flowers on. The dull weather has kept the color in the outdoor flowers, but it has been too cool at night for tea and hybrid tea roses to open freely. Centaureas were never better. Sweet peas are variable—some good, others poor. Carnations are overplentiful and are lacking in quality. The old-fashioned moss roses, pink and white, have been shown in the stores in considerable numbers of late. Japanese irises are also good.

Various Notes.

Unless all signs fail, the name of W. Armacost & Co., of Ocean Park, is destined to become exceedingly well known in horticultural circles. I had occasion to visit the greenhouses at Sawtelle recently, and although I had known before that considerable additions were to be made, I hardly expected to see the place being doubled in size, but this is what it amounts to. Two houses 20x105 feet, one 10x105, one 23x105, four 26x105, one 20x185, one 15x185 and a lean-to 10x185 comprise the additions being made this year. Besides growing for the retail stores at Ocean Park and Venice, Mr. Armacost intends to grow more stock for local markets and shipping trade and is going more largely than ever into plants as well as cut flowers. Fine batches of cyclamens, Begonia Gloire de Lorraine and Glory of Cincinnati, crotons, ferns, asparagus and palms are all thriving and healthy, while the area devoted to roses and carnations under glass is just doubled. While space is too short to do them justice, I must just mention the roses here. They are in elegant order, several of the new ones having been planted, and the quality of the flowers being cut is more reminiscent of midwinter than midsummer. Irish Fire Flame is as beautiful in foliage as in flower.

At the establishment of Murata & Co. I noticed a large number of Iris Kämpferi being shipped and Mr. Murata says they will be leaders here for some time. The flowers are large and particularly good in color.

Hubert Morton, of Long Beach, has been ill and it was feared he would have to undergo an operation for gall stones, but this has been found unnecessary and he is looking much better.

While I am not much given to superlatives, I do not think I ever saw finer Ulrich Brunner roses than those shown by Frank Lichtenberg.

Duncan Murdoch has supervision of the alterations at the Gillette place, recently purchased by Mr. Gillette from Senator Jones, at Santa Monica. There are many fine old specimen plants and trees on the place and great care is being taken that none of these are injured. New lawns are to be sown and much other work is to be carried out. The house and grounds are in the beautiful Palisade district.

Calling at The Orchid, at Pasadena, I found all hands busy on graduation baskets and Mr. Wolfskill says that trade at both stores is fine.

The collection of orchids at the Craven place, at South Orange Grove and Madeline avenues, Pasadena, has long been famous. R. Mackenzie, the capable grower in charge, has wonderful success with some of the rarer and more valuable hybrids, and on a recent visit I noted many choice and beautiful kinds in flower. The collection is rich in hybrids having Brassavola Digbyana and a Cattleya or Laelia as parents—those with the finely fimbriated lip that have been so much admired. One of these is before me now, a large flower, nine inches across, rosy white, with a broad fimbriated lip, delicately edged with rosy lavender. This was cut over a week ago and is still fresh. It is the result of crossing B. Digbyana and Laelia purpurata. Another lovely form is from Laelia grandis tenebrosa crossed with Cattleya aurea and contains the bright combinations of coloring for which these crosses are noted. A fine new range of houses has been built to take care of this choice collection of orchids and a number of fine specimen ferns, mostly *adiantum*s, in the culture of which Mr. Mackenzie excels. He has also a superb collection of photographs of these orchids, which is most interesting.

A recent call at the Huntington place was just in time to catch W. Hertrich as he returned from a trip to San Diego in his automobile. With his usual good nature, he took me all around before attending to any other business. During his recent visit to the east, many fine new purchases were made, including some superb kentias of immense size, rare acacias and cycads and a number of other choice things. The work at the adjoining hotel property is a big undertaking, and Mr. Hertrich has it well under way. Another Japanese garden is to be made here, as the one at the Huntington place has proved to be exceedingly popular among tourists.

Seeing some magnificent pentstemons at the store of Morris & Snow, on Main street, inquiry led to the fact that these were grown by our old friend, W. W. Felgate. "Billy" certainly does not confine all his attention to raising fine chickens and shooting coyotes. And this reminds me that he has succeeded in naturalizing the beautiful African Nemesia strumosa in Sierra Madre. It comes up all over, from volunteer or self-sown seeds, and the dry atmosphere here seems to suit it perfectly. There is a tip here to those who are looking for a showy and choice annual for southern California.

J. Whitehead, who has been with Dieterich & Turner for nearly three years, left Montebello, June 15, for San Diego, where he is to take charge of the Boyle & Darnaud growing establishment. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

School commencements have played an important part in the business of the florists for the last two weeks, and these, with a goodly number of June weddings, have used up a lot of surplus stock. Everything in the flower line is at a low ebb, however, as far as prices are concerned. The mild weather has a tendency to make inside and outside stock both plentiful and good. The keeping qualities of all kinds of stock are much better than they usually are at this season of the year. It is hardly worth while to quote prices on anything. Usually the grower is willing to take almost anything the retailer chooses to give. Not that there are no specified rates, for there are, but they are more honored in the breach than in the observance. Never for the last ten years has maidenhair fern been so cheap as it is now, and it is likely that some of the glass that is devoted to adiantum culture will in the near future be planted to something else. Outside flowers of the common sorts are at their best and the street hucksters are reaping their summer harvest.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business in general has held out well. There is an abundance of stock of all varieties. Carnations are a glut and it is hard to keep them moving. Yet it will only be a matter of a few weeks, as the stock is rapidly being thrown out. The field stock is small and some time will elapse before it will be ready to transplant. Roses are in heavy crop, but the quality is gradually being reduced by the effects of the warm weather. Sweet peas are improving in quality, with an increasing demand. In miscellaneous stock there is a plenty—gaillardias, delphiniums, daisies, stocks and lupines. Peonies are rapidly passing out of the market; the stock remaining is hardly fit to send out on orders. Green goods of all kinds are plentiful, maidenhair particularly so.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held June 16. Considerable business was before the house. In commencing the second year of its existence, officers were elected: President, F. A. Van Kirk; vice-president, Jas. Forbes; secretary, R. M. Bodley; treasurer, A. J. Clark. The latter two succeeded themselves. Three trustees were also to be chosen. J. G. Bacher and Julius Dorsche were elected, while E. O'Hara and L. W. Scott tied for third choice, which will be decided later.

The Rose Carnival.

The annual rose fiesta was held here last week, and also a grand show of outside roses was held at the armory. Many beautiful specimens were exhibited. The Mildred Grant won the Society's cup, the blooms exhibited measuring eight inches in diameter. J. B. Clark, Caroline Testout, La France and Cochet came in for their share of ribbons. Special features of the carnival were various parades and the decorated autos of PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION.

"The liveliest exhibit that has ever been made at any exposition," is the brief description given to the horticultural display in the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, by George A. Dennison, whose appointment as chief of the Department of Horticulture for the exposition has just been announced.

In a recent interview Mr. Dennison made the following statement with reference to the scope of the horticultural exhibition: "Landscape architecture, which will be ably represented by exhibits from the leading architects in America, goes hand in hand with plant origination. Indeed, plant origination, a scientific undertaking, has developed into a regular occupation. Where plant breeding was once a mystery, we now have associations and plant breeding stations all over the country. The product of the workers along this line, meeting a great requirement and giving the world a creation that fulfills the demands of a necessity, I shall endeavor to include in the exhibition.

"Among the unusual exhibits to be made in the exposition will be the most magnificent display of orchids ever brought together. This will be a complete collection of all the varieties found in the Philippines, and will be made by F. W. Taylor, director in chief of the Philippine commission. There will be between 400 and 500 varieties, botanically classified especially for the information of the collector, but arranged so that their beauty may be enjoyed by all visitors.

"The exposition has received assurance of cooperation from a number of the most prominent horticulturists in the United States. There will be a comprehensive exhibit of the remarkable results in the improvement of fruit varieties by Luther Burbank and Albert Etter, and the unique results of Carl Purdy's domestication of the wild flora.

"While Holland will be represented in the World's Fair with a wonderful display of bulbs, which is promised to outdo any previous exposition display in the world, other equally enthusiastic bulb growers have promised brilliant displays. Some of the world's most famous growers of gladioli, Bermuda lilies, roses, delphiniums and rhododendrons will be sumptuously represented in the exhibits, and Hawaii has prepared for a magnificent collection of over 200 varieties of hibiscus and tree ferns. These are but a few of the many interesting nursery and floral exhibits already arranged for. Numerous others, equally beautiful, are promised.

"The trophy cup, valued at $1,000, offered by the exposition to the creator of the finest unnamed rose shown in 1915, has interested rose originators all over the world, and already some of the greatest cultivators in the great

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade?
Is it moving as it should?
No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

J. G. HARRISON & SONS, Berlin, Md., will entertain on the lawn of Mayor Orlando Harrison, July 31, the Maryland State Horticultural Society and the Peninsula Horticultural Society. Invitations will also be extended to members and officers of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia and West Virginia horticultural societies.

"ON account of the decrease in the number of large orchards, especially of apple trees, planted during the last year," say J. G. Harrison & Sons, Berlin, Md., "our business has, of course, in that line materially decreased. However, the ornamental trade has been better and we look forward to a large business in that line the coming season."

EASTERN nurserymen en route to Portland, Ore., for the thirty-eighth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, passed through Chicago June 13. The party was headed by Thomas B. Meehan, of Dresher, Pa., president of the association. Others in the party were Secretary John Hall, of Rochester, N. Y.; Howard Davis, Baltimore; John C. Chase, Derry, N. H.; C. M. Peters and wife, Salisbury, Md.; W. L. Hart, Fredonia, N. Y.; Ralph T. Olcott, editor American Fruits, Rochester, N. Y.; T. I. Ilgenfritz, Monroe, Mich.; Joseph Charlton, Rochester, N. Y.; J. B. Morey, Dansville, N. Y.; George Perkins, Newark, N. Y.; C. R. Burr, Manchester, Conn.; J. F. McClare, Brooklyn, N. Y.; G. Hale Harrison, Berlin, Md.; Albert F. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., and L. J. Farmer and wife, of Pulaski, N. Y.

THE PORTLAND CONVENTION.

A Gala Event.

The American Association of Nurserymen is this week meeting on the Pacific coast for the first time in its history, and certainly never in its long and honorable career has it been received with so great enthusiasm. Never has the convention attracted so much attention from the public, and never have the arrangements for reception and entertainment partaken so much of the social character. The A. A. N. is a business body; it puts on no frills or feathers, but Portland people were so glad to see their guests that the headquarters at the Multnomah hotel had been lavishly decorated by the local florists. There also is an unusually large display of fruits, flowers, nursery stock and nursery supplies, adding not a little to the festival appearance of the building.

With the thirty-eighth annual convention of the A. A. N. the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen is holding its eleventh annual meeting. The Pacific coast organization is the largest and most intensely active of the many district associations of nurserymen, and its large membership justified the national body's long journey west. To the florists and seedsmen the special interest in the Portland meeting will attach to the fact that movements are on foot to take all three trade bodies to San Francisco in 1915. Of course, at that time there will be the added attraction of the exposition and low railroad rates to stimulate attendance, but there also will be the lure of the exposition and sight-seeing to distract attention from the business meetings. In the case of the A. A. N. this year it has proved that the attendance from the east and middle west is negligible; only a handful of the regulars from east of the Mississippi are on hand, but on the whole the attendance is nearly up to the best records, as there were on the opening day 120 present from the Pacific coast states, few of whom ever before had attended a convention of the A. A. N.

Pacific Coast Business Session.

The Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen was given charge of the opening session, held Tuesday morning, June 17. It took the form of a reception, with music by the Portland Ad Club Quartette. This was followed by a business session of the Pacific coast body, under the chairmanship of President Albert Brownell, at which the visitors from the east were interested spectators. Reports of officers and committees carried this into the afternoon, when officers were elected for the next year, as follows:

President—Richard Layritz, Vancouver, B. C.

Vice-president—Charles Trotter, Vancouver, B. C.

Secretary-treasurer—C. A. Tonneson, Tacoma, Wash.

The 1914 meeting—Vancouver, B. C.

Conditions on the Coast.

A summing up of the reports shows a decreased planting of nursery stock in the far west, especially apple. It is the consensus of opinion that more attention should be devoted to studying the needs of the planters and to developing the markets for the products of nursery products, also to the development of aesthetic horticulture. On legislation the reports from the different states varied. In California great activity is manifest by the authorities, and the trade is somewhat embarrassed by too many regulations, but progress appears to be made. In Washington the laws have been completely changed, the department of agriculture now being in charge of all matters to promote nursery and fruit-growing interests. In Montana the horticultural law is before the courts on the question of licenses and charges. In the last year $4,000 has been subscribed for legal purposes. It was the consensus of opinion that a federal law, uniform for all the states, should regulate inspection.

A Joint Session.

Wednesday morning, June 18, there was a joint session of the two associations, with President Brownell seated at the right of President Meehan. There were addresses of welcome and responses. Then the two presidents read their annual addresses, recounting the year's work and indicating, as the result of the year's experience, what appears to be the course for the future.

Then came probably the longest program of essays and discussions either association ever has been called on to consider. Not all the papers shown in the program were presented, but in place of those who did not come were others who had matters of importance they wanted threshed out. The papers were as follows:

"Uniform Horticultural Laws; their Enforcement and Benefit," by A. J. Cook, Commissioner of Horticulture, Sacramento, Cal.

"Between the Nurseryman and Fruit Grower," by Prof. O. M. Morris, Pullman, Wash.

"What Shall the Future of Horticulture Be?" by E. W. Kirkpatrick, McKinney, Tex.

"Park Making on the Pacific Coast," by E. F. Mische, Portland, Ore.

"Care of Small Fruit Plants; Duty of Nurseryman and Planter," by J. L. Farmer, Pulaski, N. Y.

"Working and Results of the New Federal Horticultural Law," by J. McHutchison, New York.

"Horticultural Laws," by Geo. C. Roeding, Fresno, Cal.

"Oregon's New Quarantine Law," discussion opened by W. K. Newell, Easton, Ore.

"Nurserymen's Problems in Fungus and Bacterial Diseases," by Prof. H. S. Jackson, Oregon Agricultural College.

A. A. N. Business Session.

The conclusion of the several long joint sessions of the two organizations, largely devoted to discussions of horticultural laws, was followed by the business session of the American Association of Nurserymen. Coming at the close of the convention instead of at the start, and with so many of the old guard absent, the routine work was not of a character to occupy much time. The last act of the convention will be the election of officers.

Secretary's Report.

Secretary John Hall, of Rochester, in his report, prepared in advance of the convention, said:

"We have approached this convention with considerable anxiety from the fact that a peculiar combination of circumstances has prevented many of our members from attending this anniversary. One of the main explanations for this condition is that the meetings of the association, it is claimed, are held at an inopportune time. The spring packing season has barely closed by the time for which this annual gathering is scheduled, and the work which follows the packing season demands such close attention that members cannot leave home without incurring loss. Besides, they have no intelligent idea at that early date of what stock they have on hand and what their future wants will be. Quite a number of members have expressed themselves as favoring a later date, suggestions varying from two weeks to two months later than the constitutional date.

"Then, too, the Panama-Pacific International Exposition of 1915 in San Francisco is claiming the attention of many members to the extent of their letting this convention pass. There are still others who had planned to be present who are prevented from doing so by sickness, either of themselves or members of their families. There is also a strong feeling that the annual convention should be held at some more cen-

"Never, we believe, in the history of the association have the receipts of the secretary been so large as this year. We report a total income of over $3,300, and we hope to receive at this convention a number of new members.

"Another feature which gives us pleasure to mention is the large addition which has been made to the membership through the earnest efforts of James McHutchison, who was appointed a committee for this purpose by President Meehan."

The secretary closed by reporting the deaths of ten members since the last meeting.

The Tariff.

For the committee on tariff, Irving Rouse, chairman, Rochester, had prepared the following report:

"After a good deal of correspondence and consultation, it was decided that we should present as strong an argument as possible in favor of keeping the rates as they were in the last tariff act, and that especial emphasis be laid on retaining the specific features, which had worked out so satisfactorily under the Payne bill.

"A hearing before the House committee was arranged for, which was attended by Messrs. Pitkin, Meehan, Dayton and the chairman. This was fortunate, as no hearings have been held in the Senate except before a subcommittee, and from present appearances no changes are likely to be made. The bill as passed by the House cuts the rates on trees and nursery stock from twenty-five to fifteen per cent, and on apple, pear, quince and St. Julian stocks from $2 per thousand to $1 per thousand. It leaves the rates on roses, rose stocks, Mahaleb, Mazzard and Myrobolan the same as in the Payne act.

"If the bill is not changed in the Senate, and the chances are that it will not be, your committee feels that the trade generally has fared better than was expected and better than other more important schedules which could and did bring much greater influence to bear. This result was largely due to the fact that there was no division in the ranks of the nurserymen. Those good Democrats who believe in a tariff for revenue only kept quiet and allowed your committee a free hand, and while the result is not all the high protectionists wanted, the nursery schedule is certainly a fair proposition and, we believe, will be satisfactory to the trade generally."

Legislation.

There were three reports on legislation, and legal action to test the constitutionality of legislation. Peter Youngers, of York, Neb., and D. T. Tighe, of Billings, Mont., each reported on "the Montana case," as it is known. April 5, 1913, E. S. Welch, of Shenandoah, Ia., had a car of trees held up at Billings by R. E. Bancroft, horticultural inspector, for failure to pay $25 license fee. Bond was furnished and action commenced to enjoin the Montana authorities from interfering with Mr. Welch doing business in the state of Montana without license. "The court issued a restraining order and mandatory injunction requiring the inspector to issue certificate, which enabled Mr. Welch to deliver the trees, and the case is now in court, as both sides have filed briefs, and we hope to have a decision on the injunction suit soon." Mr. Peters, also told of the Reed case, in Colorado, with which readers of The Review are familiar.

Wm. Pitkin for the eastern committee gave the history of the federal quarantine law and the regulations for its enforcement. He emphasized the point that this law is not a federal inspection law, as many appear to think, but quarantine law pure and simple, giving a broad authority to establish both foreign and domestic quarantines. The report stated that everything has worked smoothly thus far, but added: "It is, of course, hoped that the law will be administered wisely and with good judgment. If it is, perhaps no serious difficulties will result, but the law lodges in the hands of the federal horticultural board the power to absolutely control the importation of nursery stock from foreign countries, and to absolutely prevent you from shipping out your goods at any time when in the judgment of the board it may seem proper to do so. The other provisions of the law, for applications and permits, are matters of detail. The substance of the law is quarantine—foreign and domestic. In the opinion of your committee, the enactment of this law is not a subject of congratulation by the nurseryman, but rather one that should be viewed with regret and with the fear that some day it may be so administered as to cause us serious trouble and loss. Your committee feels that the present board has treated us fairly and reasonably, and expects that this condition will continue, but the risk is and will be ever present."

PEONY

Our stock is guaranteed true to description and we will REPLACE WITH THREE any that prove true. We can make this UNPARALLELED guarantee because of the extreme care we have always used in growing our stock. Any peony is much surer to bloom, and will be twenty per cent stronger, if moved in September, so that new rootlets may form before freezing down. This gives a great advantage to home-grown stock over imported plants, which invariably come too late. All are listed under colors in the order of their blooming and described as by the American Peony Society.

The prices in our list are for stock packed for shipment. We begin filling orders early in September.

Mr. Pitkin also reviewed the situation in eastern states. The objectionable New York bill, he said, is dead, but may come to life at any moment. The new West Virginia law was pronounced reasonable, except for the matter of licenses. In Maine the committee won a case which resulted in amending the law in such a way as to legalize a license fee of $5 for agents. In Pennsylvania a bill recently was introduced to provide a method whereby the purchaser of nursery stock can be guaranteed stock true to name. The plan is involved and intricate and "there is nothing in the bill which, if it becomes a law, will compel the nurseryman to give bond and thus insure his trees, but the law makes it the duty of the secretary of agriculture 'to report to all inquirers and make special published mention, at least once per year, of all nurserymen who shall take advantage of this opportunity to bond themselves in Pennsylvania, and no grower shall make claim for damages under this act who has not purchased his trees of a properly bonded dealer.' The last paragraph shows what they are trying to do. In plain English, they propose to establish a list of 'good' nurserymen and advertise such a list generally throughout the state, and warn their citizens that they must buy of the nurserymen represented in this list, otherwise they will have no redress should varieties prove untrue, indirectly attempting to force every nurseryman to file a bond for fear he will be on the black list and Transportation.

Charles J. Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., prepared an elaborate report for the committee on transportation, in which he recounted the work done on freight matters. Many complaints had been satisfactorily adjusted.

"During the last year your committee has succeeded in having the uniform classification of nursery stock embodied in the Official, Southern, Western and Illinois classifications, and we believe that within the next year all of the other minor state classifications will adopt the same rulings and descriptions. The next step, and by far the most important along the lines of the last year, that is, from sixth class to fifth class on earloads and from fourth class to third class on less than earload shipments, your committee on transportation are constrained to believe there is a quiet move on foot among the carriers to do more or less unifying the ratings than would appear at a glance.

"If the carriers have in mind to make nursery shipments in ear lots fifth class all over the country, the association can readily see how the rates would be increased in Western Classification territory. If the ear rate from New York to California is set up to fifth class, it will make an increase of $60.80 per ear. If from New York to Spokane, it will make an increase of $46.40 per ear, and if from St. Louis to Spokane it will be $46.40 per ear."

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-first annual convention at Cleveland, June
24 to 26, 1913.

STUMPP & WALTER CO., New York, has leased the 6-story building at 30 and 32 Barclay street and will remove to it about September 1.

WHILE the seed trade organizations hold their periodical conventions behind closed doors can there be any complaint at legislative regulation of the seed business?

BRITISH trade papers lay the high prices of Roman hyacinths to the demand from America and believe that if prices have now reached a point where America will not buy heavily an early fall in prices will result.

ARTICLES of incorporation have been filed for the Rosenstiel Co., Freeport, Ill., to do a wholesale and retail business in seeds, grain, fuel, and building materials. The incorporators are E. O. Rosenstiel, J. H. Rosenstiel and Grace Rosenstiel. The amount of capitalization is $30,000.

THE Amzi Godden Seed Co., of Birmingham, Ala., recently filed with the city commissioners a request that the so-called restricted district be abolished. In the request it was stated that the firm was unable to sell some of its property at a satisfactory price because the restricted district is located across the street.

AT a recent meeting of the stockholders of the North Wisconsin Seed Co., held at Eau Claire, the prospects for this year were reported to be excellent. The warehouse and seed farm of this company are at Courath, in Rusk county; the offices are at Chetek, Weyerhaeuser and Eau Claire. The officers are: President, B. F. Faast; vice-president, C. W. Dinger; secretary, C. H. Paris; treasurer, John Bauman.

REPRESENTATIVE HINEBAUGH, of Illinois, has introduced into Congress a bill (H. R. 5308) under the provisions of which all persons, firms or corporations in the United States conducting a mail-order business interstate for the purpose of selling merchandise direct to the consumer shall pay a tax of one per cent upon the total cash value of all merchandise sold within any state. This would affect the interstate business of the catalogue seed and bulb houses and would result in quite an expense to them.

THE United States Civil Service Commission has announced that an examination will be held in various parts of the country July 16 to secure a seed warehouseman for the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, at Washington, at from $900 to $1,200 a year. The duties of the position will be the receiving, weighing, sampling, storing, stacking, cleaning, identifying and putting up seeds in packages varying in size from a fraction of an ounce to one bushel and comprising several hundred varieties. Actual experience in the handling of seed in a seed warehouse is a prerequisite for consideration for the position. The age of applicants should be between 18 and 40 years.

SEEDSMEN should print in their catalogues a conspicuous notice to customers who remit in postage stamps to buy parcel post stamps instead of the ordinary kind.

THE officers of the Breck corporation, Boston, which was established in 1822, now are: President, Charles H. Breck; treasurer, Joseph F. Breck; secretary, Arthur D. Forbush; general manager, Edward O. Hatch; manager seed department, Russell O. Gardner.

A BUSINESS COUNSEL'S VIEW.

Says Frank B. White, who has been called in consultation by many seedsmen:

"We do not want to be pessimistic, but conditions will not permit us to be overly optimistic. Seedsmen, nurserymen, incubator manufacturers, poultrymen, as well as other interested and strictly farm lines, have not had a 'bumper crop' from their advertising expenditure during the past season. On the other hand, farm machinery manufacturers, in most instances, report a fairly good business. But few of them, however, consider the trade equal to 1912. With prospects so favorable for crops this year, we are all expecting advertising results another season."

POSITION OF DISCLAIMER.

Is the seed trade abandoning the non-warranty, the disclaimer? A member of the trade raised the question while going over a morning's mail. There were nine letters from well-known retail catalogue seed houses. Of these, four letter-heads carried no non-warranty clause—were absolutely silent on the subject. Five had the usual disclaimer in the usual form: "We give no warranty, express or implied, as to description, quality, productiveness or any other matter of any seeds, bulbs or plants we send out, and we will not be responsible for the crop, etc."—but only three let it go at that; the other two prefix a story about their efforts to provide quality, and one definitely accepts responsibility to the extent of the money paid for the seeds. That the disclaimer is not given the careful attention it was a few years ago is shown by its position on the five letter-heads. Following the action of The Review in calling attention to certain legal decisions and the custom in other trades, the American Seed Trade Association appointed a committee to investigate and report on the matter. The committee obtained a legal opinion on the case cited by The Review and reported that the disclaimer, to be of effect, either must be printed between salutation and signature of a letter or be referred to in the body of the letter if printed elsewhere on the letter-head. Of the nine letter-heads under examination only one had the disclaimer between date and signature. Three had it across the top and one across the bottom of the letter-head, while one had it mixed in with miscellaneous in-

Few growers agree on any one standard variety of forcing tomato. Perhaps the varieties best suited for this section are: Sutton's Best of All, Langdon's Earliana, Stokes' Bonny Best and a good strain of the Comet. Other varieties have been experimented with, but all have been discarded. English varieties set well, but the fruit is entirely too small for market requirements in the northwest. A winter crop should be profitable, providing the plants are started sufficiently early in

The growing of head lettuce is still in the experimental stages in the north-results in one locality may apparently be a failure in another. The best way to do is to buy a small amount of seed

September 1, the crop should be ready for market November 1 to 15. The Grand Rapids variety matures earlier. F. E. Mojonnier.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The week has been peculiar in that it was really cold the first half. Since then it has gradually warmed up and it closed about normal. There has been no rain, though it was needed badly. There have been no commencements to make business this week, but funeral business has more than made up the lack.

It has been a long time since any one funeral has used so many flowers as were used at that of the Dudley sisters. The prominence of the family and the tragic way in which they were killed, being crushed in an automobile by a fast express train, combined to bring this result. More than a dozen wagon-loads of designs were taken to the cemetery. This is said to be the largest floral offering ever seen at a Nashville funeral.

Roses were off crop this week, but promise to be in larger supply next week again. They were wholesaling at from $5 to $8 per hundred. My Marylands and Kaiserins were the most in evidence. Some of our growers have thrown out most of their carnations, but others are still cutting a good supply. They moved readily at from $3 to $5 wholesale. Peas are growing rather scarce, though some of the growers have fine ones. The season has been too dry for good results outdoors.

Various Notes.

Hillcrest School Farm reports being hard hit by dry weather and that bulbs and shrubbery are suffering. They plan to begin the erection of their new greenhouse in a week.

Haury & Sons have been selling some good gloxinias of late. These plants are becoming more popular here. On the other hand, we do not see so many tuberous-rooted begonias as we did last summer. Hydrangeas continue to be the most popular summer pot plant.

Geny Bros. report a busy week. They still have a supply of carnations that are good for the time of year. Their new houses are completed and planted.

J. C. Corbett is selling a lot of fine tomato plants this week. We did not have frosts to cause repeat orders, but did have insect pests all over the country that brought the same results.

McIntyre Bros. say there has been no special feature to the last two weeks' business, but that they have had plenty of work.

We were much pleased with the work the Mt. Olivet Cemetery greenhouses have done in planting the cemetery this season. Their houses are almost empty, save for the benches that have been planted to mums, but they have certainly produced results.

Mr. McBride, superintendent of the city parks, is to be commended for the good work he is doing this season. I think I have never before seen as good results with pansies in this climate as he has had in the park beds this spring, and they are still a joy to behold. The spring, however, has been an abnormally cool one.

The Joy Floral Co. says it has never before done so much funeral work in a single month as in May and that June has been fully as good thus far. The company has thrown out all its carnations and is cutting gladioli heavily. F. B.

Fremont, Neb.—Chas. H. Green has started construction on another greenhouse at his plant in the northwest part of the city. The house will be 30x120 feet, and when completed will be used entirely for carnations.

West Bend, Wis.—Fred C. Kesting, who left ostensibly for St. Paul May 30, has written his wife from Chicago that, on account of the pressure of his financial embarrassments, he does not intend to return. Mrs. Kesting, who has four children dependent upon her, intends to continue the florists' business.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The spring rush, as the greenhouse man calls the busy season, is about at an end. More of everything was used this year and the gradual increase in trade was manifest. Vincas and geraniums in flower are almost impossible to get. The increased number of window and veranda boxes used such a vast amount of this stock that growers were searching early for any stock available. The large planting jobs are not so numerous as in other years, but the increasing number of small plantings far surpasses the large occasional job. This is proved by the fact that one firm disposed of over 32,000 geraniums in four weeks and had no planting job over $100. The bulk of the stock went out in lots of one, two, three and four dozen, the balance in pots and vases. Cannas and caladiums have not sold as well this year, and we have noticed a gradual decline in their use the last few years. The store trade has been rather spasmodic. The usual June weddings have helped considerably and the lower price of stock has aided the sale of carnations and roses. R. A. S.

INDEPENDENCE, MO.

R. B. Tindall has had a big business in bedding stock and vegetable plants. E. H. Frandsen suffered a large loss at his greenhouses on the Spring Branch road. His boiler shed and a large part of his glass were destroyed by fire June 8. His loss is estimated at about $1,500. He is rebuilding. S. Bryson Ayres reports a fine business last week.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

During the last week there has not been much change in the condition of business, although it has been satisfactory. Graduations, weddings and anniversaries help wonderfully to keep things lively, and the results obtained are gratifying. Stock in all seasonable varieties is plentiful, but this week will exhaust the peony supply. Last week the weather was ideal.

Various Notes.

P. J. Agnew, formerly in the florists' business at Springfield, O., and at present connected with the greenhouses of the National Cash Register Co., celebrated the marriage of his daughter, Catherine, to Victor Smith, Wednesday, June 18. After the ceremony the young couple left for Canada, where they will visit friends and relatives.

M. Anderson has just returned from a business trip to Cleveland, O. He has his Arcade store back to what it was before the recent calamity.

Mr. and Mrs. Norval Kiger, of Marietta, O., spent several days in Dayton last week visiting friends among the trade. From here they went to Springfield and then on to Columbus, where they intend to spend most of their time among the florists. They report business to be fine in Marietta; they also tell us that their town was visited by the recent flood, but, being on the Ohio river, they are used to such calamities and were, therefore, prepared for its arrival.

George Bartholomew is just commencing to pick some fine Spencer sweet peas.

Mrs. Elizabeth Young was able to be at her store for a few hours last Saturday, June 14, for the first time in eight months.

Warren G. Matthews tells us that he is kept busy with June wedding orders.

Gerald Haschke graduated from high school June 19, and now intends to assist his mother, Mrs. B. Haschke, in the florists' business.

Mrs. Elizabeth Phebus has not a word of complaint to offer about the condition of business. She says she is getting her full share.

Last week's visitors were: D. Rusconi and son, from Cincinnati, O.; Mr. Kennedy, of J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., Cincinnati, O.; Philip Schupp, of J. A. Budlong's, Chicago, and Mrs. J. J. Lampert, of Xenia, O. R. A. L.

Akron, O.—J. Emmet Gilbo and Besie T. Miller, who were recently married here, were both members of the florists' trade.

These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to look us up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

GERANIUMS

THE report comes from all sections that Geraniums are more in demand this season than ever and that all good stock will be cleaned up. We have an excellent lot of young stock ready to ship out, if you wish to grow your own stock for another season, but why bother with it, as we make it our business to provide your stock for you, to be shipped any time in the fall or winter you have the room, after Chrysanthemums or other crops have been removed? Our stock houses of Standard sorts alone, as now planted, contain 300,000 plants, as pretty as you ever saw. Then we have Novelty stock, Ivy-leaved sorts, Scented and Variegated varieties to the extent that we are confident we can take care of any order you may place with us. Think it over. Can you afford to bother with the stock yourself for $18.50 per 1000 for 2-inch plants?

The Market.

So far the June business has been satisfactory to all the shops in town, as there have been a number of weddings during the last two weeks, and the latter part of the month looks still more promising.
On Monday evening, June 9, one of the large college dances took place at Rossmere and all the flower shops were kept busy with corsage bouquets. Many orchids, valley and yellow roses were used in striking combinations which made an attractive showing on the dance floor.

Various Notes.

Schroyer's North Duke street store makes an attractive show room and is always neatly decorated.
Owing to the increasing business the Rosery Flower Shop has added a new automobile delivery car, which is always on the move. They can now get to all near-by points in town on short notice.
At Barr's store things look prosperous. The window has been handsomely decorated with cut Crimson Rambler roses, gaillardias and gladioli as a background, and a large bridal shower bouquet of lily of the valley and orchids, which has attracted much attention. They also had a large decoration at Rossmere for the F. & M. college dance.
D. T. Connor, representing Lord & Burnham Co., was in town recently.

ELGIN, ILL.

Important realty deals between William Grote and Jay Legge have recently been completed.
Mr. Legge has closed the articles with Mr. Grote whereby the former purchases the flats in North Spring street next to the Clark property from Mr. Grote for a consideration of $6,000. At the same time a deal was closed in which Mr. Legge transferred to Mr. Grote his greenhouses, buildings and an entire block of property on which they are located, in Highland avenue, for $5,200. The property consists of twenty-three lots.
A day later Mr. Grote purchased Mr. Legge's greenhouse, residence and property on Main street, South Elgin. In exchange he gave six lots about the city, selected by Mr. Legge, valued at $1,700, and $3,300 in cash.
Mr. Grote has leased the property and greenhouses in Highland avenue to M. J. Morgan. His new greenhouse and property in South Elgin are leased by Harry Santee.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

When Writing Advertisers

ST. PAUL, MINN.

The Market.

Business last week continued to keep the retailers hustling. The general business is good. Funeral work is plentiful and all are getting their share of the June weddings, which are numerous. Stock of all kinds is abundant. In roses the market is a little overstocked, but not sufficiently to cause any anxiety to the growers. Carnations hold out well. Sweet peas are good; so, also, are all varieties of orchids. The orchids are good sellers. Some fine peonies, local-grown stock, are on the market and they move readily.

The outside planting season is about over and all florists report a busy season, short but sweet. The growers are busy with their houses, getting ready for next season.

Various Notes.

Superintendent Nussbaumer, of the city parks, has been doing his utmost to procure a new range of houses at Como park and his efforts have been rewarded by the Assembly, which has authorized a bond issue of $57,000 for the erection of new structures. New houses are much needed, as the old ones are in bad shape.

The annual midsummer meeting of the Minnesota Horticultural Society will take the form of a picnic at the University Farm, Friday, June 20. Exhibits of peonies, roses and other summer-blooming stock are to be sent to the station and will be entered for a large number of premiums offered by the society. The meeting will be open to all interested in flowers. There will be demonstrations in spraying devices for various insects; these demonstrations should prove interesting to all in the trade. Prof. Le Roy Cady is arranging for the picnic.

Ernest Holmstrom, recently of Holm & Olson, has leased for a term of years the Schulze greenhouses, on La Fond street. Mr. Holmstrom will continue the same general line of stock. All in the trade wish him success in his new enterprise.

Mr. Plemen, of the Plemen Floral Co., of Staples, was a caller last week and visited the various establishments.

Frank McCabe, of the A. L. Randall Co., spent a few days calling on the trade.

The death of Emil Borchart, of the firm of L. Anderson & Co., is reported in this week's obituary column.

SURPLUS, BETTER AND CHEAPER THAN EVER

AFTER DECORATION DAY all florists and growers have empty benches. What shall we do with them? Have them empty? Sure not; no prosperous florist would think of such a thing. Don't let your money rust in the bank; nothing else in the world will pay you better than to invest the right kind, such as Godfrey Aschmann grows, the Genuine Crego Asters. These bear an abundance of large trusses of big flowers, suitable to cut and use in bouquets, vases, table decorations, funeral designs; these asters are also excellent for pot culture. We have them in separate colors, Pink, White, Shell-pink, Cardinal-blue, Lavender. We are well provided and can meet the rush. 50,000 in 2½-inch pots, large, strong plants, ready for immediate shipment, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000. Take the hint and consider what a profit you can make growing these Crego Asters. In the latter part of July and August your Asters are ripe to cut. Then what? Empty benches again! Then we can raise another crop—replace the Asters with stock for fall and Christmas sales, such as Nephrolepis of all kinds, Poinsettias, Cyclamen, Begonia Gloire de Hollande and other winter-blooming Begonias, Rubbers, Solanums, Chinese and Obconica Primroses, etc. This is what we call astling—utilizing your bench room to best advantage. If you want to be successful as a grower, you must be wide-awake and utilize to best advantage every part of your bench room at all times; every square foot of your bench space must bring you from $2.00 to $3.00 per year.

ARAUCARIA EXCELSA OUR SPECIALTY, April, 1912, importation, 5½, 6, 7 tiers, 25, 30 to 35 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00.

JUST ARRIVED from Ghent, Belgium, a new consignment of Araucaria Excelsa, suitable for 5, 5½, and 6-in. pots, 3, 4, 5 and 6 tiers, 12, 14, 16 and 18 in. high, at 40c, 50c, 60c and 75c; Compacta Robusta or Excelsa Glauca, $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50.

Don't miss the chance! A big slaughter in our so well known MOONVINE, IPOMOEA NOCTIFLORA. To clean up and make room for our importation of Araucarias, we decided to cut the price down from 15c for large 4-in. plants to only 10c, $10.00 per 100; large 2½-in., look, from $5.00 per 100 to $3.00 per 100. Now is moonvine time.

BEGONIAS. Our so well known strain of improved dark Begonia Vernon and the beautiful pink Erfordii beat all the old types of Vernon to a standstill; they grow small foliage, but they flower and flower and nothing but flower—when geraniums fail to bloom, our Begonias will do the work. 4-inch, $8.00 per 100; 3-inch, $5.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $3.00 per 100.

It is semi-double, medium dwarf, of stately shape. It has come to stay as a money maker. PEONIES.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

THE FUEL MARKET.

The market for Pocahontas coal is influenced both as to spot and contract business by the possibilities of labor trouble. A short time ago it seemed entirely possible that all of this labor trouble was at an end. Just at the time when local officials, leaders of the miners, and local operators had succeeded in quieting things down and in stopping an expensive war, the United States Senate saw fit to appoint a commission to investigate. They have begun to take testimony and this testimony is reviving the old points of controversy, rejuvenating the old spirit of antagonism, and extending the zone of discontent into fields not heretofore affected. As a consequence it is en-

Dear Sir:

It is with pleasure that we add a word of praise for the Morehead Trap System which we installed in our plant last fall.

We feel that the results obtained fully justify the cost of the system; in fact, we have already saved the cost of the machines in a saving of fuel, in-as-much as we have used no more coal this winter, which has been an extremely long and severe one, than we did last winter which was an unusually mild one.

We have been put to no expense in its upkeep and has given us no trouble whatever.

Wishing you all the success that your system deserves,

We are,

Yours very truly,

55 degrees in zero weather. A hot water system will be used and the boiler is rated for 1,500 square feet.
H. E. K.

To heat a greenhouse to 55 degrees with hot water, in zero weather, one square foot of radiation to three and one-half square feet of glass should be used, and at that rate seven lines of 2-inch return pipes will be required. If the house is well built and is in a location where it is somewhat sheltered from the prevailing cold winds, six lines of pipe would be sufficient except when the temperature is below zero outside, and then the temperature could be kept up with a little extra attention to firing.

A SMALL CARNATION HOUSE.

I am building a small greenhouse in which to grow carnations and I expect to heat the house from a heater in my residence. The size of the house is 20x40 feet. It will be about thirty feet from the heater. The floor of the greenhouse will be about on a level with the top of the heater. Do you think that I can heat the house in this way? If so, what size of pipes will be needed, and how many? Where should they be placed? I shall use a hot water heater. The outdoor temperature in this part of North Carolina seldom drops lower than 16 degrees above zero. I shall want a temperature of about 50 degrees at night. The greenhouse will be modern in every respect.
J. A. W.

There should be no difficulty in heating the greenhouse from the heater in the basement of the dwelling. Run 2½-inch flow and return pipes to the greenhouse and extend the flow to the farther end, carrying it at a slight slope about two feet below the ridge. For returns use three 2-inch pipes on each wall. In case the end of the house is much exposed, it might be well to start the coils under the end of the flow pipe and carry them along the end as well as down the sides of the house.

Good results should be obtained by planting strong, field-grown plants in the last part of August, although if the weather is warm it might be better, in your latitude, to delay planting three or four weeks. Keep the plants shaded, and sprinkle and ventilate until they are established.

Nazareth, Pa.—Johnson & Garland have filed a bill in equity in a local court against the Slate Belt Street Railway Co., for the purpose of obtaining an order directing the trolley company to carry freight.

Do you want true heating values for your money? Many florists, to their sorrow, have made the mistake of buying cast iron boilers, which, because of their ratings, appeared to be cheaper than the Kroeschell boiler.

The extravagant ratings of cast iron boilers are misleading, and have been the cause of much disappointment and serious trouble to many growers. The fuel waste is enormous when cast iron boilers are used for commercial purposes, such as greenhouse heating.

Kroeschell vs. Cast Iron Boilers

Over 1500 Cast Iron Boilers were replaced by the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler during the past six years. It is a common occurrence for a Kroeschell to replace two to four cast iron boilers at a single place; this is the CENTRAL HEATING SYSTEM PLAN, and has saved many florists hundreds of dollars per season in fuel alone, besides a big saving in labor.

OUR HEATING ENGINEER has probably had more practical experience in this line than any other greenhouse man, and we place his experience at your service.

THE KROESCHELL GREENHOUSE BOILER

Here is the boiler that is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists and gardeners who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler the highest praise.

10,788,000 square feet of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years. You will find the new 1910 model Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler in every state in the Union and Canada.

Our Eastern business has been exceedingly heavy the past season.

Cast Iron Boilers Cause Freeze-out—Kroeschell Boilers no Worry

I bought a No. 2 boiler in 1902. Takes care of 7000 sq.-ft. of glass—would take care of 2000 more. I have had a cast iron boiler, but it broke down twice in four years, always in the coldest weather. It broke down Dec. 29, 1904, and I lost all my stock in consequence. I have now two No. 2 and one No. 6 Kroeschell boilers, and do not worry about their breaking down.

Cast Iron Boiler Cracked in Two Years

We have a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler. It takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass; it would take care of twice that amount.
I first had a new cast iron boiler which lasted two years, when it cracked to pieces. The second was a second-hand boiler. I consider your boiler the best paying investment I ever made. You can refer anyone to us.

Cast Iron Boilers Crack

I want to thank you for your promptness in shipping the boiler I ordered of you on January 13. I had a breakdown, one of a battery of two cast iron boilers cracked so it was impossible to use same, so I got you on the telephone at 8:30 a. m., January 13, and ordered one of your hot water boilers. Same was put in my boiler room in the afternoon of January 15, after which we built foundation and connected up. Since that time the boiler has taken care of same glass as the two cast iron boilers and does it easier and better in every way.

In case the end of the house is much exposed, it might be well to start the coils under the end of the flow pipe and carry them along the end as well as down the sides of the house.

Good results should be obtained by planting strong, field-grown plants in the last part of August, although if the weather is warm it might be better, in your latitude, to delay planting three or four weeks. Keep the plants shaded, and sprinkle and ventilate until they are established.

Do you want true heating values for your money? Many florists, to their sorrow, have made the mistake of buying cast iron boilers, which, because of their ratings, appeared to be cheaper than the Kroeschell boiler.

The extravagant ratings of cast iron boilers are misleading, and have been the cause of much disappointment and serious trouble to many growers. The fuel waste is enormous when cast iron boilers are used for commercial purposes, such as greenhouse heating.

Kroeschell vs. Cast Iron Boilers

Over 1600 Cast Iron Boilers were replaced by the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler during the past six years. It is a common occurrence for a Kroeschell to replace two to four cast iron boilers at a single place; this is the CENTRAL HEATING SYSTEM PLAN, and has saved many florists hundreds of dollars per season in fuel alone, besides a big saving in labor.

OUR HEATING ENGINEER has probably had more practical experience in this line than any other greenhouse man, and we place his experience at your service.

THE KROESCHELL GREENHOUSE BOILER

Here is the boiler that is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists and gardeners who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler the highest praise.

10,786,000 square feet of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years. You will find the new 1910 model Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler in every state in the Union and Canada.

Our Eastern business has been exceedingly heavy the past season.

Cast Iron Boilers Cause Freeze-out—Kroeschell Boilers no Worry

I bought a No. 2 boiler in 1902. Takes care of 7000 sq.-ft. of glass—would take care of 2000 more. I have had a cast iron boiler, but it broke down twice in four years, always in the coldest weather. It broke down Dec. 29, 1904, and I lost all my stock in consequence. I have now two No. 2 and one No. 6 Kroeschell boilers, and do not worry about their breaking down.

Cast Iron Boiler Cracked in Two Years

We have a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler. It takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass; it would take care of twice that amount.

I first had a new cast iron boiler which lasted two years, when it cracked to pieces. The second was a second-hand boiler.

I consider your boiler the best paying investment I ever made. You can refer anyone to us.

Cast Iron Boilers Crack

I want to thank you for your promptness in shipping the boiler I ordered of you on January 13. I had a breakdown, one of a battery of two cast iron boilers cracked so it was impossible to use same, so I got you on the telephone at 8:30 a.m., January 13, and ordered one of your hot water boilers. Same was put in my boiler room in the afternoon of January 15, after which we built foundation and connected up. Since that time the boiler has taken care of same glass as the two cast iron boilers and does it easier and better in every way.

Signed ANDREW BATHER, Clinton, Iowa.

Do not make a mistake when selecting your new boiler; get a Kroeschell and you will never be disappointed.

The Market.

The cut flower market for last week has made the prices of stock increase, as the demand was heavy. This is accounted for by the school graduating exercises and the abundance of funeral work. The demand for cut flowers in the graduating exercises has increased somewhat. Red roses and carnations held the lead over other colors.

There was an abundant supply of roses, which went well, and none were left on hand at the close of last week. Roses are still holding up well, while carnations have gone backward considerably. A good supply of cut lilies has just commenced to come in and they are the best that have been on the market for some time. Sweet peas are plentiful and better than usual for this time of the year.

Various Notes.

Samuel Murray says that the commencement exercises are demanding more stock each year and that he has had a large increase over last year.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. is sending in some exceptionally fine carnations, roses and cut lilies. The company reports that decorating was heavy last week.

The Peterson Floral Co. is still busy planting out bedding stock and says that business has been good for the last several weeks.

Arthur Newell was busy all week. The graduating exercises almost cleaned him up in the cut flower line; his business doubled over last year's of this kind.

Roses went well with Henry Kusik & Co. last week. Carnations are moving more slowly. The firm is receiving some exceptionally good consignments of lilies, which are going fast.

The Alpha Floral Co. is going to put a refrigerating plant of its own in the store, which will be a great improvement.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. had several nice decorations last week. Carnations are holding up well, but roses are a little off crop. This company received a nice shipment of palms recently.

Visitors in the city last week included Mr. Mangelsdorf, of Atchison, Kan. W. J. B.

Lincoln, Neb.—J. K. Hiltner is building another greenhouse at Fifteenth and Marion streets.

Business has been exceedingly good, but is beginning to slack up somewhat. The weather is hot and dry and little is doing except work for funerals and weddings, of which there have been a good many. Flowers of all kinds show the effects of the hot weather.

Various Notes.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. has been kept busy all along. George Blackman says business has kept up unusually well this spring. They are cutting a large number of excellent roses and carnations. A good variety of plants is kept in the store at all times. At the greenhouses they are drying off part of the roses and cleaning out the old carnations.

Julius Niednagel, with a party of forty others, has left for a trip to Europe. Miss Elsie Niednagel has gone to New York for the summer, visiting relatives. Business is slackening up, but they are busy cleaning out the carnation houses and doing other necessary summer work. Most of the roses are being dried off.

C. L. Niednagel has his new addition planted to Killarney and several new varieties which will be given a trial. The plants are growing nicely. The rest of the roses are being dried off.

The Evansville Floral Co. has sold out to Castle & Welch, of this locality, who will carry on the business.

Miss Nellie Goodge has been quite busy with weddings and funerals.

Henry Seymour is busy getting the benches repaired in order to replant with carnations. The young plants are in the best of condition.

Karl Zeidler has planted part of one house to roses and will put in smilax also.

J. C. Elsperrmann is in the midst of summer conditions, with plenty of work ahead.

Louis Fritsch is about ready to replant his carnation houses. He expects to plant some roses, too.

Royston & Fenton are busy with some necessary repair work. E. L. F.

RINGMETER—The Garden Hose for FLORISTS' Use BECAUSE:

It is made in continuous lengths of 500 feet furnished on reels—no need of thinking of wasteful short ends.

Rings of rubber appear every foot and being spaced exactly one foot apart makes it self-measuring. Just count one ring for every foot as you unwind the reel. Quick and accurate. Does away with mistakes.

The utmost care enters into the construction; only the best of materials and workmanship are used, in conjunction with the latest improved machinery.

Prices are right. RINGMETER is the Garden Hose to show you economy. Strong, durable and quality that spells long service.

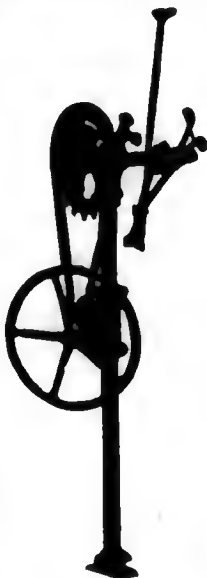

Made in three sizes: $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch, $\frac{5}{8}$ -inch and $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch.

DO YOU KNOW

that we are universally acknowledged as the leading manufacturers of ventilating apparatus and greenhouse fittings? Did you ever stop to reason why this is? There are older manufacturers than we, in fact we are practically the youngest in the field. Don't you think that we must have lots of things a lot better? It will be worth your time to thoroughly investigate. Let us send you a catalogue; drop us a card now.

Maquoketa, Ia.—Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas, owners and managers of the Odgers greenhouses, have opened a store in the new Rice block, with Mrs. Cora Rice-Brown in charge.

RE-GLAZING A HEAVY EXPENSE.

Do you know, Mr. Greenhouse Man, that Cypress holds glazing "points" better than does any or all of the kinds of lumber sometimes substituted for "the Wood Eternal"? It is a fact, and to you an important fact.

These "points" may be pushed into some of substitute woods with your fingers; in Cypress you have to use a hammer. Frost pulls these "points" out of the softer woods, and then the "deuce is to pay."

So it is with putty. Cypress is the wood that takes putty kindly, and keeps the glass well puttied-in. Frost, like wet and dry, heat and cold, has small effect on Cypress.

These suggestions are worth good money to you, Mr. Greenhouse Man. Re-glazing is a source of heavy expense, especially when it has to be done every Spring.

CYPRESS TRULY AVERTS REPAIR BILLS

A BOOK, PLEASE

Vol. 3, CYPRESS Pocket Library, tells a lot about greenhouse construction; Vols. 4 and 20 are for the farmer. They contain plans for all out-buildings, and they are absolutely free. There are 36 of these books, and you would better help yourself to them.

The only boiler with the flexible fire travel.
"Keeps heat in the houses and coal in the bin."

"HOT STUFF"

NOW COMES SOME REAL BOILER TALK

RIGHT DOWN TO BRASS TACKS AND NO "FLIMFLAM" ABOUT IT

You don't care to read a lot of testimonials without dates. Some of these may be several years old, and the men who wrote them may have changed boilers twice over. You are looking for good, hard facts when you buy a boiler, and you want to know the truth with no "beating around the bush." Next week in this space we are going to print some signed and dated statements with the signatures photographed. We have written a large number of boiler users and we are going to print some of the answers just as they were received by us. You will be interested in this series. We are going to name these advertisements "HOT STUFF." You can keep everything hot if you get the right boiler, and of course that's a Moninger.

CINERARIA SEED

This strain of Prize Cineraria is grown for us by a famous English seed specialist. The flowers seldom measure less than 3 inches in diameter, comprising the following colors: White, rose, flesh, crimson, blue, violet, etc. The plants are of a very robust dwarf habit, which, combined with the mass of giant blooms, makes this strain exceedingly valuable.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

GRUBWORMS IN MANURE.

We have a lot of well rotted cow manure that we wish to use in our mum benches, but it is full of grubworms. Is there any way to get rid of these without injuring the manure for early use? W. V. F. C.

It is somewhat difficult to know exactly what is meant by grubworms in this case. If they are the common earthworms, there need be no uneasiness regarding the use of the rotted cow manure, as an application of lime will easily destroy them. If, however, the worms mentioned are the larvæ of the May bug or cockchafer, Melolontha vulgaris, the proposition is an entirely different one. These grubs are about an inch and a half long, dirty white in color, with a black head and black tail. These are a destructive pest and the only absolutely certain way of getting rid of them is to pick out every one of them from the soil or manure, before using, or they will go all through the bench and destroy every plant. This picking out will take some time, but it will be time well spent. Heavy applications of Scotch soot or lime on the manure will kill many of the grubs, but not all. Hand-picking, as far as I know, is the only remedy.

Chas. H. Totty.

TARNISH BUGS ON MUMS.

Please tell me what I can do to stop the ravages of a brown fly which destroys my mums. Some call it the tarnish bug. I have been picking the pests off in the morning and at night, but can not get rid of them. In the daytime they fly from one plant to another or drop to the ground. I notice that they are working more on some varieties than on others. Would Paris green do any good? I have about 10,000 chrysanthemums planted outside here, a short distance south of California, and covered with cheesecloth.

C. M.

The tarnish bug is a difficult pest to control. We have had fairly good success by using Paris green, spraying the plants copiously in the evening and using the most minute quantity of Paris green. Half a teaspoonful in a pail, so that the water is tinged ever so slightly, is sufficient. Paris green contains arsenic in its composition and burns badly if not used with extreme caution. Tobacco extracts, sprayed in liquid form, are good, but unless the insects are directly hit by the solution it does not accomplish much, whereas Paris green will remain on the leaves and tips and sooner or later will do its work.

Chas. H. Totty.

Hebron, Neb.—Mrs. Mary F. Lindsey says that each year shows an increase in the demand for plants and cut flowers, especially at Memorial day. The sales this year far exceeded anything in her experience.

A CONCRETE TAMPING BLOCK.

Where is there a greenhouse that does not see frequent need for a tamping block, a soil firmer? Probably there is no more universally used instrument; it is almost as necessary as the coal scoop. If a batch of cuttings is to turn out a good strike the sand must be firmed, and frequently the young stock in the benches does not take hold as it should until the soil is gone over and given another firming.

When the average grower wants a tamping block he hunts around for a brick; when he is through he throws it down, and when he wants it again he finds another. But a brick is not the nicest of things to work with, perhaps for hours at a stretch. To W. C. Scovell, of Malta, O., it appeared that there was plenty of room for improvement, so he made a brick with a handle. First he made a form of wood, 2x4x8 inches. This was placed on a pane of window glass and partly filled with a rich, soft mixture of concrete. Then a handle from an ordinary flatiron was set in the concrete and the mold filled up. When the concrete had set the mold was knocked away and the tamping block set out to dry thoroughly. The glass bottom gave a perfectly smooth surface. The block, 2x4x8, weighed five and one-half pounds. This was found much more convenient to use than the rough, handleless brick, and it can be hung up by the handle, would bring the handle to the point to give the right balance, it would provide a wood handle open at one end.

PANSY QUERIES.

I should like to ask you a few questions about pansy plants for commercial use. I would like to raise quite a number this fall and next spring for spring sales. Is there any difference between Improved Trimardeau and Giant Trimardeau? What is another good variety besides Giant Trimardeau? What is the best winter protection for pansy plants in the field? I have heard that straw will rot the plants if heavy enough for protection. Would muslin sashes be much protection for those in coldframes? About what date could the protection be removed? Will a frost kill the young plants? W. D. M.

Improved Trimardeau and Giant Trimardeau are probably one and the same. The seedsmen usually add such words as Improved, Specially Select, Giant, or Superb to draw special attention to their strains. While a really good selection of Trimardeau is hard to beat, there are others which are fine. The Mme. Perret giant hybrids, with long-stemmed flowers, mostly red or wine shades, are superb. So are Cassier's and Bugnot's, but the strains of some of the American specialists are hard to beat.

For protection, fresh leaves are ideal if they can be kept in place. Next to them comes meadow hay. Straw can be used, but is not so good as hay. Pine needles are splendid if you only have a small area to cover. In coldframes, scatter a few dry leaves over the plants. Burlap would make a stronger cover than cheesecloth or muslin, which would not stand snow. Glass sashes are, of course, the best. Sashes could be removed with safety about April 1. By out of the way, but where it will be right at hand when wanted—provided this is one of the establishments where everything has a place and everything is in its place.

Another good way would be to use an ordinary plasterer's trowel for the handle. If the mold were partly filled with concrete and the trowel set with the blade partly cut off, so that it leaving them on later, however, you could secure earlier flowers. Young pansy plants withstand severe frost. The hot sun and constant thaws and freezings which heave the ground in late winter do the real damage.

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

SEND THE FLOWERS NOW.

I've noticed when a fellow dies, no matter what he's been—
A saintly chap or one whose life was darkly steeped in sin—
His friends forget the bitter words they spoke but yesterday,
And now they find a multitude of pretty things to say.
I fancy when I go to rest someone will bring to light
Some kindly word or goodly act long buried out of sight;
But, if it's all the same to you, just give to me instead
The bouquets while I'm living and the knocking when I'm dead.
Don't save your kisses to imprint upon my marble brow,
While countless maledictions are hurled upon me now;
Say just one kindly word to me while I mourn here alone,
And don't save all your eulogy to carve upon a stone!
What do I care if when I'm dead the Bloomingdale Gazette
Gives me a write-up with a cut in mourning borders set?
It will not flatter me a bit, no matter what is said.
So kindly throw your bouquets now and knock me when I'm dead.
It may be fine, when one is dead, to have the folks talk so,
To have the flowers come in loads from relatives, you know;
It may be nice to have these things for those you leave behind,
But just as far as I'm concerned, I really do not mind.
I'm quite alive and well today, and while I linger here,
Lend me a helping hand at times—give me a word of cheer,
Just change the game a little bit; just kindly swap the decks,
For I will be no judge of flowers when I've cashed in my checks. —New York Sun.

A PRIZE-WINNING CAR.

The decorated automobile shown in the accompanying illustration is of interest because the decoration was entirely with natural flowers and because in the picture there appear two well-known florists of Oakland, Cal. The picture was taken at Portland June 11, just before the start of the big, annual floral parade. The car won second prize. The florist who had the order was J. Seulberger, who is seen in the picture wearing the white suit. He made the trip to Portland to do the job, accompanied by his decorator, A. Rossi, who is seen in the rear. H. Hefty, well known to Pacific florists, stands in the foreground. All the stock used on the car was brought by them from California to Portland.

AN INDOOR WINDOW BOX.

The lower illustration on page 9 was reproduced from a photograph of an oddly constructed canoe, which was filled by E. L. Johnson, Palmer, Mass., with Adiantum Farleyense, selaginellas, Boston ferns and some others of the Boston family. This particular window box was used by Mr. Johnson as a display piece at an exhibition, hence the flags, but there is a steady call for plant arrangements for this purpose and any retailer will do well to have one or more constantly on exhibition in his store. With the flower business fully as much as with any other, it is "out of sight, out of mind." Show the people what you have to sell and the people will buy..

FOR A FLORIST'S FUNERAL.

The upper picture on page 9 will be of interest because it was sent to the funeral of a florist by the florists of St. Paul. Emil Borchart, a member of the firm of L. Anderson & Co., St. Paul, died suddenly. The firm had rather large interests, including greenhouses and store, and Mr. Borchart was known to everyone in the trade in St. Paul. The florists not only attended his funeral almost to a man, but were represented by the wreath shown in the illustration. Although not apparent in the picture, the wreath was mounted on a wire easel, the tripod being wound with smilax. It is apparent that the body of the wreath was made solid of white carnations, with the giant cluster of roses and lilies at the top. The wreath was wider at the bottom than at the top. The inscription was in gold letters on the chiffon bow. The piece stood almost to man's height and was of a character that would command attention wherever seen.

KEROSENE EMULSION.

One gallon of kerosene emulsified with one-half pound of Ivory soap and one gallon of water, and mixed with twenty gallons of water, will kill red spider. Will this emulsion injure carnations, roses and mums if washed off one hour after applying? Spraying with clear water, even with good pressure, only seems to scatter red spider.
R. E. M.

I am glad to know you have been able to kill red spider with your kerosene emulsion. This is a hard pest to control, once it has gained a foothold. Cold water, properly directed through a spray nozzle, at good pressure through the hose, has been found by many good growers to be the simplest and most effective way to fight red spider. The kerosene emulsion will not harm the plants named unless you give it to them too strong. Apply it in the evening, preferably when the temperature is low rather than high.

report, the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's schedule amounts to about $500 and we are expecting to apportion a similar amount from our own treasury. With the special prizes offered, this will make an attractive schedule and should be productive of the best exhibition ever held under our auspices.

The following firms and gentlemen have contributed generously toward the prize and general fund: The W. Atlee Burpee Co., Peter Henderson & Co., Arthur T. Boddington, Thomas Roland, William Sim, C. C. Morse & Co., the Aphine Mfg. Co. and Duncan Finlayson.

We are still open to receive additional special prizes and contributions toward the general fund, which should reach me not later than next week.

VARIOUS QUERIES.

Please answer the following questions in your next issue: Can the tall marigolds be pinched back? Is it all right to pick off fading flowers of petunias? Would you advise planting geraniums with the pots buried? Will you kindly name four or five kinds of perennials that could be sown now and wintered over in a coldframe, and that would bloom next year all summer? I have several plants of Shasta daisy Alaska. How high do they grow on good ground and how long do they bloom? Are they permanent, or do they die away, or must they be divided every year? G. F.

Marigolds should not be pinched back. They do not break out as many other plants do.

It is all right to pick fading flowers from petunias, or, in fact, from any other plants.

There is no special advantage in planting out geraniums with the pots buried. If you want to take up the plants for stock, the plan is all right. Some growers imagine the plants bloom better if the roots are somewhat restricted, but if you are careful not to have the soil in the bed too rich they will be much better planted out.

The following are a few good perennials to sow now for wintering over in a coldframe or in the open, but you cannot rely on any one kind blooming all summer: Digitalis, or foxglove; Aquilegia chrysantha and A. cærulea; Delphinium formosum and D. formosum cælestinum; Chrysanthemum maximum King Edward VII; Lychnis Vis- caria splendens; Lupinus polyphyllus, blue and white; Papaver orientale; Pyrethrum roseum; Dianthus barbatus, or sweet william.

Shasta daisy Alaska grows three to five feet high, according to the soil and location. It is not so permanent as some perennials. They need dividing ever second year. Early September is a good time to do this. C. W.

HOW ABOUT TESTIMONIALS?

Do you believe that the best indication of the value of a thing to you is the value it has proved to others? If you believe in testimonials and have not advertised in The Review, you will be interested in the following letters, which, it should be noted, come from all parts of the country:

We are sold out and have had to return several checks, thank you.—E. Borowski, Roslindale, Mass., June 18, 1913.

Results have been good, thanks.—Tidewater Plant Co., Franklin, Va., June 18, 1913.

I would gladly continue my ad, but orders from it are coming so fast I fear I will have to return some money, and you know that is bad business.—John G. Witt, Chicago, Ill., June 18, 1913.

Please omit Asparagus plumosus from our ad, as we are sold out and are tired sending back checks.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash., June 6, 1913.

Please make the enclosed change in our advertisement and continue until further orders. As to the general merit of The Review, we concede it to be incomparably the best trade journal published today—and we have had some experience with other trade papers, too. As an advertising medium we have never received less than $10 worth of business for every $1 worth of advertising in The Review.—C. G. James & Son, Hornell, N. Y., June 17, 1913.

The purpose of publishing these letters is to interest in advertising some of those who have not yet realized the possibilities of increasing their business through the use of The Review.

WINTERING PANSIES.

My pansies have frozen out badly the last two winters. They are planted where the water does not stand, in clay soil. Would they do better in raised beds? How would it be to set up a frame around the beds and cover with burlap in the winter? V. R. F.

It would be a good plan to raise your beds a little and also an excellent idea to set up a frame around the beds and cover them either with sashes or burlap. The latter would answer, but sashes would make surer of the plants all coming through in prime condition. C. W.

ROSES

THE HARTFORD ROSE GARDENS.

The coöperation of the American Rose Society with the park department at Hartford, Conn., last season resulted in the planting of forty-four varieties of roses in a test garden at Elizabeth park. These roses were planted under number, the label showing neither the name of the rose nor that of the exhibitor.

It was considered that the test plants would be in the best shape for a first judging about June 21 and on that date the judges appointed by the American Rose Society, W. R. Pierson, Eber Holmes and John F. Huss, pointed each variety that was in condition to be judged. Twenty-one varieties were scored on all points. Awards were made to the following:

Robin Hood, disseminated 1912 by E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; parentage, Rhea Reid x Richmond; scored 89 points. Certificate of merit.

Seedling No. 510, exhibited by E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; parentage, Rhea Reid x Chateau de Clos Vougeot; scored 80 points. Certificate of merit.

Seedling No. 525, exhibited by E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; parentage, Rhea Reid x Richmond; scored 87 points. Silver medal.

Milady, disseminated 1913, by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; parentage, Richmond x J. B. Clark; scored 88 points. Certificate of merit.

American Pillar, disseminated 1909, by Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.; scored 85 points. Certificate of merit.

Dr. Van Fleet, disseminated 1910, by Peter Henderson & Co., New York; scored 80 points. Certificate of merit.

Shatemue, disseminated 1911, by Shatemue Nurseries, Barrytown, N. Y.; hybrid of multiflora nana; scored 83 points. Certificate of merit.

Seedling No. 411, exhibited by John Cook, Baltimore, Md.; parentage, Etoile de France x seedling; scored 83 points. Certificate of merit.

Seedling No. 425, exhibited by John Cook, Baltimore, Md.; parentage, Frau Karl Druschki x pink seedling; scored 86 points. Silver medal.

Radiance, disseminated by John Cook, Baltimore, Md.; parentage, Cardinal x pink seedling; scored 86 points. Certificate of merit.

Climbing American Beauty, exhibited by Hooper Bros. & Thomas, West Chester, Pa.; parentage, Wichuraiana x Marion Dingee x American Beauty; disseminated 1911; scored 84 points. Certificate of merit.

Lady Hillingdon, exhibited by Lowe & Shawyer, England; scored 83 points. Certificate of merit.

THE BOSTON ROSE SHOW.

The annual rose and strawberry show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, held June 21 and 22, was an excellent one. The exhibits filled the main and small halls to overflowing and the quality was much above the average. Hardy herbaceous perennials were largely shown and seemed to be just as interesting to visitors as the roses.

For a collection of named roses, not less than twenty varieties, first prize went to J. O. Christensen, gardener to W. J. Clemson. D. F. Roy, gardener to H. E. Converse, was second and T. N. Cook third.

For twelve named varieties, three blooms of each, W. J. Clemson won with fine blooms of Baroness Rothschild, Prince Camille de Rohan, Margaret Dickson, Ulrich Brunner, Mme. Gabriel Luizet, Clio, Louis Van Houtte, Mrs. Sharman-Crawford, Magna Charta, Frau Karl Druschki, Lady Dufferin and Captain Hayward. E. L. Lewis, gardener to Col. F. Mason, was second.

For twelve varieties, single bloom of each, Duncan Finlayson, gardener to Larz Anderson, led with good blooms of Mrs. J. Laing, Ulrich Brunner, Magna Charta, John Hopper, Anna Wood, Captain Hayward, Baroness Rothschild, Duke of Edinburgh, Frau Karl Druschki, Margaret Dickson, Mrs. Sharman-Crawford and Charles Lamb. The same exhibitor was first for the most artistic decoration of roses covering fifty square feet.

Hybrid tea roses were more largely shown than ever before. The leading prize winners in these classes were James Werner, gardener to Albert Geiger, Jr.; H. E. Converse, Thomas N. Cook, Robert Seaver, J. L. Smith, gardener to A. W. Preston, and Wm. Thatcher, gardener to Mrs. J. L. Gardner.

Robert Seaver had the most artistically arranged basket of roses, and Mrs. Gustav Peterson the best table decoration, laid for eight covers, using Killarneys.

For 100 bottles of named hardy roses W. J. Clemson was first, Geo. Page, gardener to Mrs. Frederick Ayer, second, and Col. F. Mason third.

Robert Seaver was the most successful exhibitor in the amateur classes, having many of the best flowers in the entire exhibition.

Mrs. Frederick Ayer had a large display of hardy roses not in competition. Mrs. E. M. Gill, now in her eighty-third year, was on hand and put up a nice exhibit. Mrs. James Farquhar had a fine display of hybrid teas. R. & J. Farquhar & Co. had a collection of seedling roses. The Eastern Nurseries had a collection of rambler roses raised by Jackson Dawson, including such fine varie-

peonies

POPULAR TASTE IN PEONIES.

At the peony show of the Horticultural Society of Chicago, June 12 and 13, a vote was taken in an effort to ascertain the popular taste in peonies. The experiment was the first attempt of this kind in regard to peonies and, consequently, was not well understood by the majority of the visitors. Only a small percentage of those who attended the exhibition voted at all, and many of those who did vote marked the ballots either incorrectly or incompletely. The results, however, are interesting as far as they show the preferences of the public and the possibilities of such a ballot another time.

Ballots were given to the visitors, on which they were asked to signify their choice of varieties under the following heads: White, light pink, dark pink, red, and any other color. Out of the 200 ballots cast, many were marked with the name of the exhibitor, the class, or some other symbol, all equally worthless in classifying the result. A further number, even larger, merely checked the color. It is interesting to note here, however, that the choice was close and only signified a distaste for dark pink. The figures were as follows:

White	27
Light pink	27
Dark pink	35
Red	28

A further number only signified their preference for one bloom, instead of one of each color, as the society intended they should.

Even those who followed the plan of the society found, it would seem, great difficulty in distinguishing colors. There seems to have been a decided difference of opinion whether Alexandriana, Perfection, and Triomphe de l'Exposition de Lille were light or dark pink. A similar difficulty arose in discriminating between dark pink and red. The large majority used the classification, "Any other color," merely to denote a second choice in one of the previous groups. No flower received more than three votes in this last division.

The votes under each color were divided among from eight to ten varieties. The largest number of votes was cast in the light pink group and a variety in this group, Eugene Verdier, obtained the greatest number cast for any one variety. The leaders in each division were as follows:

White:
Mme. de Verneville	27
Festiva Maxima	26
Duchesse de Nemours	3
Light pink:
Eugene Verdier	39
Therese	12
Perfection	3
Alexandriana	2
Triomphe de l'Exposition de Lille	2
Dark pink:
Modeste Guerin	29
Triomphe de l'Exposition de Lille	4
M. Jules Elie	3

Red:

CONSERVING THE PLANTS.

As the peonies pass out of flower, remove all seed pods, cutting off none of the foliage in doing so. The less foliage you cut away, the stronger will be your plants the following year. You can still considerably improve the plants by giving them a top-dressing of dried blood, fine bone, or even some good general fertilizer rich in nitrogen and potash. Some growers have found that a potato fertilizer answers well. Do not neglect the plants because they have flowered, but keep the ground about them well cultivated and clear of weeds.

It may be noted that there is no diminution in the enthusiasm for peonies. They continue, without question, the most popular of all our herbaceous perennials, and no florist can go far wrong in stocking up liberally with the really good varieties which have pleasing colors. Of these, white, soft pink and rose seem to lead. In Europe there is a yellow variety which should prove a welcome novelty when we get it here.

WORK OF THE PEONY SOCIETY.

President Farr's Review.

In his address to the American Peony Society at Cleveland last week, President B. H. Farr commented somewhat at length on the unfavorable season and the excellent show. Reviewing the society's work for the year, he said in part:

"I would state that the most important work was the disposal of the large plantings of peonies at Cornell University. All of the old collection in the test plot was sold to Doubleday, Page & Co., and the private collections were sold to various individuals, with the result that the society shows a net increase in its treasury balance, after covering all expenses, of over $700. This amount, added to our previous balance, Bertrand H. Farr, President American Peony Society.

Peony Manual Coming Out Soon.

"The next and most important work of the society during the year was to arrange with Doubleday, Page & Co., subject to the ratification of the society, for the publishing of a complete peony manual, comprising all of the material in the present bulletins, after they have been edited, revised and corrected, together with such added material as can be gotten together and will make the book valuable for everyone interested in peonies. It is the expectation that this work will be ready for publication during the coming autumn.

"The committee feels that every peony grower and every member of the society should assist in every way possible toward making this final work as complete and as free from errors as possible. The members are requested to make a special study of the bulletins, making comparisons with their own experience and their plants in the field, and are earnestly requested to assist the committee by sending in any suggestions which may make the work more valuable, or their criticisms of any of the descriptions to be found in the present bulletins.

"Information is especially desired along the following lines:

(1) A list of all varieties that are authentic that are not yet included in the bulletins which it would be desirable to include.

(2) Any information which will be of permanent value in the bulletins concerning the diseases of the peony and remedies for the same.

(3) Methods of propagation and cultivation.

(4) Information regarding the methods of handling the cut blooms for commercial purposes, including cold storage, etc.

(5) A list of the best 100 varieties in the writer's opinion, for all purposes.

(6) A list of the best fifty varieties for landscape or ornamental work.

"All correspondence on this subject should be forwarded to Prof. A. P. Saunders, Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., secretary.

The Test Plots.

"While the old planting at Cornell has been abandoned, it must be borne in mind that the permanent planting of all the varieties that have been passed upon by the various bulletins has been carried out, and samples, consisting of three plants of each variety, have been planted in a permanent position, where they will remain at all times open to the inspection of members and others interested.

"At the last meeting of the society the desirability of establishing other similar selections in different parts of the country was considered. The desirability of establishing such a collection at Arlington farms, under the protection of the United States government, was discussed, and it was voted unanimously by the society that steps be taken to bring about such a planting.

Those in charge of the Arlington farms and the bureau of plant industry, at Washington, have assured us of their hearty coöperation in this matter.

"The suggestion has been made that when the time arrives for the division of the plants at Arlington the increase should be sent to various other experimental farms under the care of the government, in different parts of the country, notably such as the one at Bellingham, Wash. In this way the society would finally have typical collections established in various parts of the country under the protection of the government, where they would be easily accessible to almost everyone."

The Peony Blight.

Mr. Farr closed with a tribute to the late Prof. Craig, of Cornell, and congratulated the society that the work with peonies there had fallen into such good hands as those of Prof. Beal. "The department is carrying on an active study of the fungous disease which, in various localities, has attacked the peony. My own opinion of this disease is that it is transient and due largely to conditions prevalent during certain seasons, notably during the season just passed. It is a question whether the blight of the buds that is sometimes noticed is caused by the fungus, or whether the blight is caused by weather conditions, such as freezing, etc., which weakens the plant to such an extent that the fungus follows the injury. At any rate, it is the opinion among a large number of growers that, while the disease should be stopped, and a remedy found to combat it, it is not of sufficient importance to warrant any public agitation on the subject."

SOME ST. LOUIS WORKERS.

The accompanying illustration was prepared from a photograph made Saturday afternoon, June 21, just as the working force of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., St. Louis, was leaving the store for the first Saturday half holiday of the season. Reading from left to right are J. W. Patton, Joseph Zunz, S. Vogel, W. H. Ossick, W. C. Smith, Ed Schneider, A. Rolls and Oscar Kuehn. And we must not forget Jack and Bob, who are always on hand when something of importance is going on.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Freelias.

The bulbs of those popular winter-flowering plants, the freelias, will soon arrive, and, if an early batch is desired to come in for the Christmas holidays, they should go into pans or flats before the middle of July. As a general rule, I prefer pans to either flats or pots. They can be stood on shelves, and in a carnation temperature a fair proportion can be had for Christmas. For compost, use three parts well decayed loam, one part rotted cow manure and plenty of sharp sand. If the soil is moist, water need not be given for a few days after planting. The pans or flats do well if kept in a coldframe or pit, where they can be covered with board shutters to prevent drying out until leaves appear, when the plants can be gradually inured to the light. They will do much better in coldframes than in greenhouses until October 1. Of the several varieties of freelias, the true Fischer's Purity is easily the best on the market, but some dealers are claiming to have improved strains of this fine variety.

Asters.

A last sowing of asters should be made at once. They will not produce quite as fancy flowers as the early or midseason sowings, but will come into crop, barring an early, sharp frost, at a season when carnations are scarce and other flowers none too plentiful, and for this reason they will prove especially valuable. Sow in a coldframe for best results. Shade the seed bed well and keep it well watered. For best results, transplant into frames and later to the open ground. Be sure to have a good ball on each when planting out and be quite sure it is moist.

The early asters are not yet making much of a show outdoors. Keep the cultivator going constantly among them, especially when the weather is dry. They will advance fast when genial rains arrive, and we are sure to get these sooner or later. One or two benches of asters under glass are making great growth and promise a fine crop of flowers at an early date. These will be useful for funeral work at a time when carnations are at their poorest.

Show Pelargoniums.

As show pelargoniums pass out of flower, stand them outdoors in the full sun. Gradually reduce the water supply and, when the wood has lost its soft appearance, lay them on their sides. After that has been done, do not afford any water, except to give the plants a spraying over occasionally. Usually about the last of July they will have a well ripened appearance and can be pruned back, watered only lightly until they start into growth and then shaken out; the long roots should be cut back and the plants placed in much smaller pots than they were formerly in.

Gladioli.

The indoor plantings of the large-flowered gladioli will soon run out with the advent of such temperatures as 90 degrees in the shade, but the earliest outdoor batch should, by this time, have some spikes ready to cut. Be sure not to make the mistake, all too common still with many growers, of allowing half a dozen or more flowers to open before cutting the spikes. The proper time to cut them is when the first flowers open. Allow the balance to open in cold water and you will have flowers which will possess more substance, and which will be far less liable to become bruised than if they were well expanded before being cut.

It is time now to make the final planting of gladioli. If the bulbs have been kept in a cold cellar they will still be quite plump, although probably starting to sprout a little. Plant to a depth of six or seven inches, and, if the soil is quite dry when you plant, soak the bench with the hose before covering the bulbs. This will wonderfully assist their growth.

Callas.

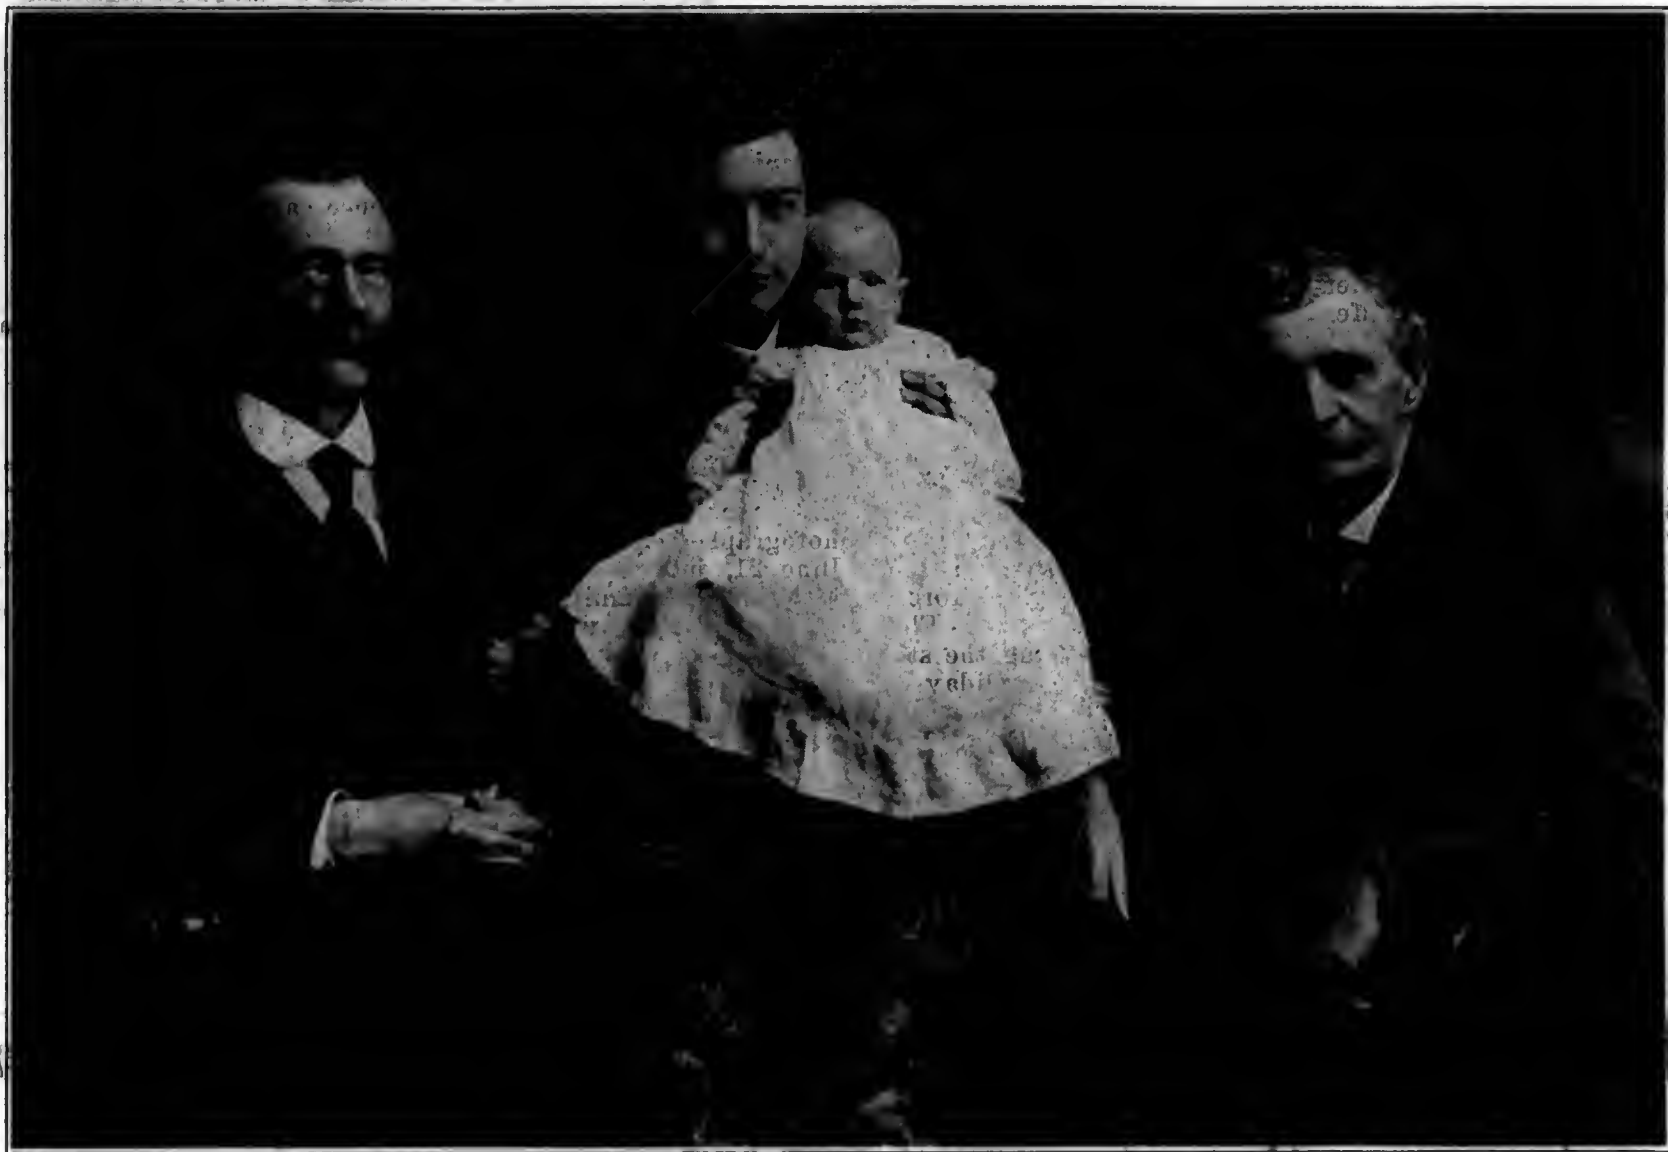

Calla flowers after this time are of little value and the pots should now be outdoors on their sides, where they can be rested for a few weeks. Small plants, such as offsets, do better if planted out in rich soil, where they can be occasionally watered and frequently cultivated. Treated thus, they will make much stronger plants than can be produced in pots. They can be lifted and potted toward the end of August.

Hard-wooded Plants.

All kinds of hard-wooded plants, including acacias, ericas, genistas, azaleas, camellias, boronias, etc., no matter whether plunged to the brims in ashes or some other material, or planted out, Store Force of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., St. Louis.

enjoy frequent syringings during hot weather. There is an old but exploded fallacy about spraying plants over when the sun shines. As a matter of fact, there are few plants which are not greatly refreshed, no matter whether growing under glass or outdoors, by a wetting overhead when the sun shines with tropical intensity. Hard-wooded plants, particularly, like several hosiings overhead on hot days and should have a good syringing late in the afternoon. If they have been firmly planted in suitable soil, and are not allowed to become dry, they will make splendid growth and will flower as well as any that can be imported, if not better. This holds particularly true of such ericas as melanthera, Mediterranea and Caffra densa, of acacias like armata, all the Indian azaleas and camellias and some few other varieties.

FOUR GENERATIONS OF FLORISTS.

The two elder members of the group in the accompanying illustration, T. C. Joy, Sr. and Jr., moved to Nashville, Tenn., from Michigan and entered a partnership market garden and florists' business in 1878, clearing $3,000 on cabbage alone the first year. Four years later they moved to the present site and built two greenhouses, each 15x60 feet and heated by flues.

The business prospered from the first, although the vegetable end was the larger for some time. The family has never entirely forsaken market gardening, growing several hundred barrels of potatoes each season. At present there is over 200,000 feet under glass, besides the large area of hotbeds and coldframes. About eighty acres of land are used for outdoor crops, most of which are flowers.

The company grows a general line of flowers and plants, and disposes of most of the output at retail in the local market. During the month of May, 1913, a careful record was kept of the roses cut and marketed and it was found the total was 57,800. The cuts of carnations and of sweet peas were correspondingly heavy. The company has planted 2,500 plants of its new double pink Killarney rose and means to show it widely the coming season and to introduce it in 1915. The raisers believe that there is no pink rose in the market today that will approach it as a money-maker.

The elder Mr. Joy retired from active connection with the business six years ago, although he is still in the best of health.

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The hot, dry weather last week had a bad effect on the wholesale markets and the bulk of the stock was of poor quality. There was plenty of this poor grade, but first-class stock was hard to obtain. There was an abundance of roses, but they came wide open unless cut in tight buds. Some good Beauties were to be had daily, and plenty of short-stem Killarneys. Sweet peas are short-stemmed and of poor quality. The market was overstocked with them all of last week. Carnations, too, are plentiful and are considerably smaller in flower and stem. The demand for these has been good at the wholesale houses. Large, fine Shasta daisies are coming in daily and meet with a big call. The large cut of gladioli that was expected by this time has not come as yet. The dry weather has kept them back. The few that come look poor, with burned tips. Asters, too, are of poor quality. The demand for white has been good. Easter lilies, when good, sell well. Valley was in good demand all the week, as there were a great many weddings.

The big rain storm of Sunday, June 22, will do a world of good to the stock in the field. The week opened as though the summer dullness had set in to stay.

Various Notes.

Carl Whiting, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and Sam Freund, representing A. A. Arnold, Chicago, were callers last week. Both reported good trade.

The Foley Mfg. Co., Chicago, will furnish the building material for the new range of rose houses for Werner Bros., at Clayton, which will be built this summer. The Werners have had great success this season with roses. Their specialties were Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond. They also grow valley, carnations and lilies.

The trustees of the Florists' Club held a meeting at Smith's wholesale house, Friday, June 20, to arrange the program for the twentieth annual picnic at Romona park, July 17. A number of special prizes have already been offered, and Chairman Ossick says that any in the trade who wish to offer a prize for any of the events should make it known to one of the trustees. Prof. H. C. Irish, chairman of the flower show committee, has called a meeting of his committee for this week, to confer with Manager Robinson and the officials of the Coliseum company. The proceedings of this meeting will be reported at the next club meeting.

George Angermueller, W. C. Smith, D. Bova, A. Meyer, Jr., Alex Siegel and Harry Schlechter took a day off last week, fishing at Spanish lake. The trip was made in a big automobile. The catch was not large, but they spent a pleasant day.

Jules Bourdet, head of the Bourdet Floral Co., contemplates a trip to France this summer. Mr. Bourdet came here in charge of the floral display of the French exhibit during the world's fair in 1904, and has made his home here ever since and carries on a successful business.

Albert Scheidegger, of Kirkwood, stepped last week on a rusty nail, which caused him a lot of trouble. Paul Scheider, of Clayton, also came in contact with a rusty nail with his left hand and was thus kept from work for a few days. Both are on the mend, according to the latest reports.

It is almost assured that the He No tea garden will be built in Auburndale park. William Bouche, the local landscape architect, is the originator of this famous garden, having built it in the exposition building some years back. Only the consent of Martin Gelllette & Sons, owners of the He No tea of Baltimore, is necessary to complete the plans.

W. J. Pilcher, of Kirkwood, who has a large field of gladioli, is happy over the fact that he has installed the Skinner system of irrigation, as the long dry spell would surely have killed the crop.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, on a recent visit contracted for twenty-five reservations for a boat trip up the river for his southern Illinois party who will attend the S. A. F. convention at Minneapolis. Mr. Ammann is state vice-president of the S. A. F. for southern Illinois. The prospects are good for the St. Louis party joining him in this trip.

Herman Gross, son of Gus Gross, the Kirkwood grower, was elected marshal of North Glendale, Kirkwood, last week. Young Gross is a splendidly built man and should make a good official.

Henry Meyer, one of our many Kirkwood growers, is sporting a new Ford car to bring in his products to the cut flower market. A majority of the county growers now own cars. They say two hours is saved each morning coming and going.

The Retail Florists' Association held a special meeting on Monday night, June 23, at Anschuetz garden, Magnolia and Grand avenues. Business of special importance was transacted. The meeting was well attended.

"Billy" Smith says he is going to take up aeroplaning, as the autos are becoming too slow for him. He is going to make Paddy Patton his pilot. Paddy says, if he does, he can see where he and the boss are going to fall out over something.

There is considerable building of new greenhouses to be started soon among the Kirkwood florists. Anton Bros. will build three, 27x140; Oscar May one, 40x125; W. A. Rowe two, 34x125.

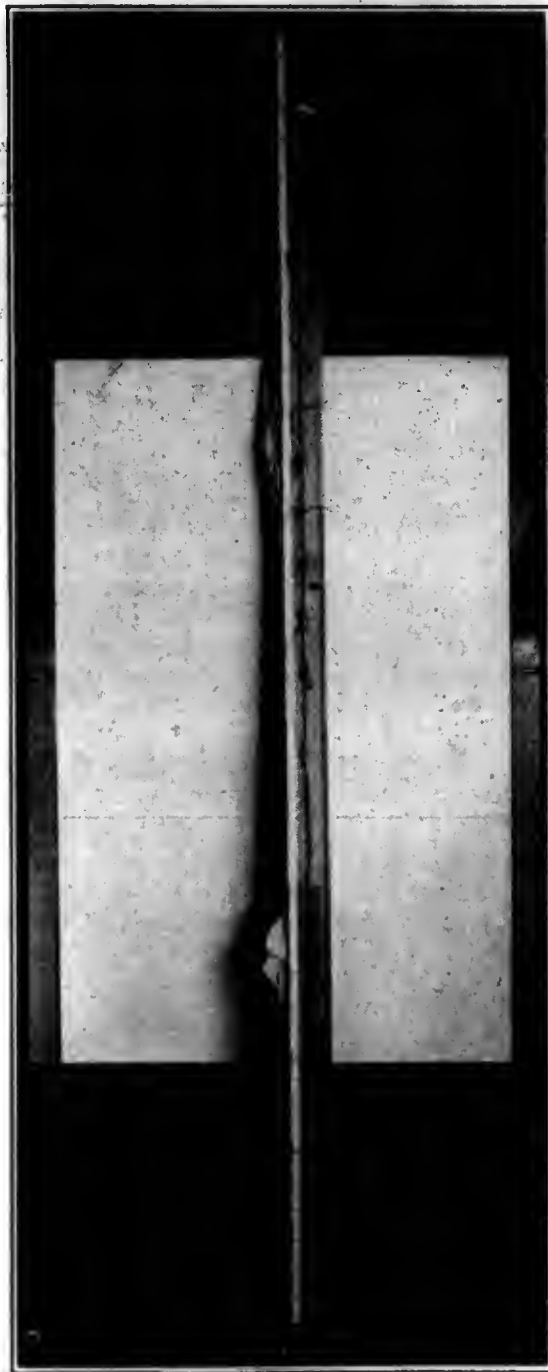

John Bubach, representing Schloss Bros., New York, and E. C. Pruner, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, were callers last week.

J. F. Ammann has invited the Florists' Club to hold its July meeting at his place in Edwardsville. The officers have accepted the invitation.

The St. Louis County Plant and Flower Growers' Association will hold its regular monthly meeting July 2, in Niesen's hall, Woodlawn avenue and Manchester road, at 8 o'clock. President Vennemann has appointed W. J. Pilcher and William Winter as the publicity committee. Secretary Joseph Deutschmann says a large attendance is assured.

Grimm & Gorly have leased the second floor above their store at 706 Washington avenue for six and one-half years at an annual rental of $600. In 1910 the company had a small store on Cass avenue and paid $25 a month rent. The increase in the business compelled the addition of another floor to the present space.

Danbury, Conn.—E. E. Mathewson has awarded a contract to Lord & Burnham Co., New York, for the erection of another greenhouse at 63 North street. The new house will be 40x200 feet and of iron frame construction on a concrete foundation.

THE RECORD STEM.

One day in May John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., Chicago, visited Richmond, Ind., and was shown, at the establishment of the E. G. Hill Co., a shoot on a plant of Carnation Gloriosa that had gone far above others on the bench without having set a bud. There was so much talk about it that when the flower had developed the Hill people made a special box to contain the extended stem and shipped the flower to Chicago, where Mr. Michelsen had it photographed. The illustration shows the box quite nicely, but the stem was so long and thin that it would not show up strongly except for the rule that was placed beside it. From this it can be seen that the flower was on a straight stem of ordinary strength but ninety inches long. It is a freak and nothing more, but it probably sets the record for carnation stems.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Last week the weather was of the kind that burns up everything under glass, but it brought the much-needed rain and we are now enjoying delightful weather. The plantsmen are about through for this season and there seems to be a feeling that the season was not as good as in the last few years. The small trade was as good and possibly better, but those who do big planting have not done much of anything. One grower says he finds that many of those who have failed to do the usual amount of large planting are men who are most interested in the retention of the present tariff and they feel disposed to reduce expenses until they see the results of tariff reductions.

Among the wholesale cut flower dealers trade has been fairly good. There has been a steady demand for stock and the volume of business has been heavy, but the prices on much of the stock were just what the buyers wanted to pay and there were huge quantities of stock left, to be disposed of by way of the garbage man. It is conceded that the flowers in general, and roses in particular, are the finest that were ever offered in June and the decorators had as fine roses for their June weddings as they get at any season of the year. Beauties have been "punk," but there are plenty of them and the wholesalers are satisfied with business.

Retail people who have weddings to attend to are exceedingly busy. The counter trade was dull during the extremely hot weather, but, all things considered, it was fair June business. The really active people were the fakers, the fellows who buy a wagon load for almost nothing and sell it—nobody knows where. They have been a blessing during the last month, getting stock out of sight and distributing it, as they generally do, among people who ordinarily are not flower buyers.

Various Notes.

The wholesale houses will close at 5 p. m. every day during the summer.

John Walker, of Youngstown, O., stopped over on his way home from the east. He says there has been a good season's trade in Youngstown.

A. W. Smith, Jr., and W. A. Clark spent last Wednesday in Wheeling, W. Va., acting as judges of the floral automobile parade. Their decisions evidently were satisfactory, as they got home safe and have heard of no trouble since. Arthur Langhans, of Wheeling, was chairman of the decoration committee and had charge of the floral parade.

Henry Meuschke, of Castle Shannon, Pa., leaves this week for a trip to Germany and his old home.

Miss E. B. Maxwell, of Wilkinsburg, has invested in a Cadillac and will spend her spare time this summer making short auto tours with a few friends.

Neil McCallum, president of the Florists' Club, has just brought in his first single cactus flower. He says the subject of the next meeting will be "Wild Flowers and the Herbaceous Garden Flowers that Bloom in July."

There has been complaint that the Oriental plane tree, so highly recommended for this section, has a bad habit of splitting, at least around Pittsburgh, and it is suggested that if smaller trees are planted the trouble may be avoided.

John Sisley and Jack Martin, of the McCallum Co., have launched their new motor launch, the "Sis Martin," in which they expect to spend the summer evenings with their friends, exploring the waters of the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio rivers. Clarke.

Silver Pink Snapdragon Grown from Seed by G. S. Ramsburg.

ANTIRRHINUMS FROM SEED.

G. S. Ramsburg, of Somersworth, N. H., who originated the Silver Pink snapdragon, is a warm advocate of growing it from seed. With the older varieties seedlings were not dependable, but Mr. Ramsburg has found Silver Pink to reproduce in kind and color except for an occasional golden sport. He grows stock both from seeds and from cuttings, but he gets his best results from the seedlings. A bench of seedling plants is shown in the accompanying illustration. It is from a photograph taken three days before Memorial day. He had previously cut several armfuls of spikes. The bed was well stripped for Memorial day, but he says that ten days later it would have made another good picture. The taller stalks shown in the illustration are the late shoots from the first crop. The other end of the same bench is planted with stock from cuttings and there is a marked difference in the growth and quality of the two sections.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Another week of abnormally low prices has passed, making a record for June never before equaled. It seems as though the months had been pushed ahead and midsummer were already here. There was a slight improvement on Saturday, a lessening of shipments and some retail buying for over Sunday. There is little to add to the printed quotations. Possibly the rest of the June weddings, the school closings, and the abundance of floral bon voyages sent to the outgoing ships may make this last week of the month better than its predecessors.

Peonies no longer are interfering with the sale of roses and carnations. Most of the American Beauties arriving are far from high grade. The same may be said of all the roses, with the possible exception of Double White Killarneys.

Apart from the ramblers, outdoor roses have made their farewell for the season. Only the selected stock of Beauties and teas commands even respectable prices. When the demand for the best has been covered, what remains goes at any price the retailer sees fit to offer.

The best carnations coming to the market realize $1.50 per hundred. Most of the fine varieties sell in quantities at $1 per hundred; anything off color or asleep goes at $2.50 to $5 per thousand. There is no diminution in the lily supply; 50,000 would be a low estimate of the stock unsold on Saturday night, and $20 per thousand was gladly accepted for such as were wanted. Valley is down to $2.50 and $2 for the best; there is a lighter call for it than was expected.

Gardenias have followed the peonies. There is no market of any account for sweet peas, daisies, coreopsis, sweet-williams or Crimson Ramblers. Orchids continue excellent in quality, low in price, but unappreciated, even at the low figures now prevailing.

Various Notes.

Do not forget the outing of the New York Florists' Club July 1, 10 a. m., on the steamer Isabel. Lunch and dinner will be at Wetzel's grove, College Point.

The agreement by the wholesalers to close their stores on Sundays lacked only three signatures last Saturday evening, and there seems no good reason why these should not join the majority.

Samuel Redstone, for several years superintendent of the Rowayton Greenhouses, Rowayton, Conn., will join the sales department of the New York office of Hitchings & Co. July 1. This is another of the many notable examples of the greenhouse concerns recruiting their salesmen from the fields of the growers and gardeners. Mr. Redstone has had wide experience in commercial establishments, both here and in England.

P. J. Smith says he received 32,000 lilies last week.

The Henry M. Robinson Co. will continue at the present headquarters until the middle of August.

The large store at 104 West Twenty-eighth street is being remodeled and prepared for a wholesale florists' store. This is next door to the veteran J. K. Allen and a most desirable location.

The report that the New York Cut Flower Co. had leased the entire Coogan building for a term of years, as was stated in many of the metropolitan dailies, was entirely without foundation.

Moore, Hentz & Nash have their new offices at 55 West Twenty-sixth street nearly ready for occupancy.

Mr. Hart, formerly with Woodrow & Marketos, was visiting his friends on Twenty-eighth street last week. He has been recuperating in the mountains for two months and returns there early in July.

Frank Millang and family have moved for the summer to their farm at Yorktown Heights, Westchester county.

One of Charles Thorley's automobiles caught fire last week near Poughkeepsie and was completely destroyed.

Al. Ferdeman, with Gunther Bros., is spending his week-ends at Averne, with his family.

Joseph Levy and family are in the mountains.

John Gunther, Samuel Woodrow and William P. Ford were doing jury duty last week in the Supreme Court.

Alfred Whittley, of Max Schling's force, will sail on the S. S. Kronprinz Wilhelm July 1, to enjoy his vacation with his wife, visiting Germany, Sweden and Norway. They will return at the end of August.

Max Schling says that since the National Flower Show he has opened accounts with fifty-three retail florists. June 18 he received thirty-four orders from out-of-town florists for delivery to the steamers America and Berlin.

Not many of the New York seedsmen will attend the convention at Cleveland this week.

The auctions are over for the season. Both houses declare this to have been their most profitable year.

The new store and offices of the F. R. Pierson Co., at Tarrytown, are approaching completion. The firm should be comfortably settled in them by September 1.

Scott Bros., of Elmsford, N. Y., have added a new automobile to their conveniences.

William Sheehan, formerly with Thomas Young in his wholesale enterprise, is now in the employ of W. P. Ford.

C. C. Trepel has been seriously ill.

Wadley & Smythe, A. T. Bunyard and Ralph Armstrong have opened their branch stores at Newport, R. I.

The Market.

Trade was quiet last week. The weather has been extremely hot for this time of the year and vacations are in order a little earlier than usual.

Good stock is not available in large quantities. Roses and carnations are showing the effects of the hot weather. Lilies are scarce; Shasta daisies are arriving in quantities and find a ready market. Orchids and valley have not much call. Sweet peas are not abundant enough to meet the demand.

Wedding decorations are not so plentiful as heretofore. Competition is so keen that one of the leading florists agrees to do the work for ten per cent less than his nearest competitor.

Various Notes.

Harry Balsley, of the Detroit Flower Pot Co., spent a couple of days with the trade last week.

The Smith & Young Co. will refinish the interior of the store soon. Herman Junge says that the yellow pine, which was put in last spring, will be replaced with golden oak. It seems a shame to cast aside such fine fixtures, but such is prosperity.

Sidney Smith is getting his place cleaned up so that it will not be long before he can forget the worries of a florist.

John Bubach, of Schloss Bros., New York, called on the trade one day last week.

The A. Wiegand's Sons Co. has a show window which is attracting much attention. While in Florida last winter, George Wiegand conceived the idea that a fountain in the window for some live alligators would be interesting. The number of people daily attracted to the window shows he was right.

Alfred Brandt had a narrow escape with his delivery auto recently when he skidded into the curbstone, just missing a telegraph pole. The damage to the car was slight.

H. L. W.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, WIS.

Frank Weigand, the 21-year-old son of F. S. Weigand, was drowned June 23 in Dead Lake near Durand. With several other graduates of St. Charles school who were on a week's outing at the lake, he went in swimming. When a younger member of the party ventured out farther than the rest and disappeared, Frank Weigand and a companion went to his rescue and they, too,

The Senate's Tariff Rates

THE REVIEW is able to give herewith the trade's paragraphs of the new tariff bill as agreed upon by the Democratic majority of the Senate committee on finance. The bill, after being in the hands of the committee for several weeks, now is in the hands of a caucus, but will be reported to the Senate within a few days. While the caucus no doubt will make more or less changes in the parts of the bill that have importance politically, it is thought that the paragraphs covering bulbs, seeds, greenhouse and nursery stock will not be further changed. There is every indication that the paragraphs as printed below will be the law as it finally gets onto the statute books.

The Senate changes correct the errors that crept in when the bill was amended on the floor of the House, as reported in The Review. Greenhouse plants are removed from paragraph 215 at twenty-five per cent and included with nursery stock at fifteen per cent in paragraph 216, making all plants not specially provided for pay the same rate of duty and obviating the conflicts which would have been sure to result under the House bill.

Of special interest to nurserymen is the addition of the words "4 years old or less" as qualifying coniferous evergreen seedlings, which are to be admitted free.

There are two important changes in the paragraphs covering seeds. Peas are reduced to 10 cents per bushel, as against 40 cents in the present law and 15 cents in the House bill. Also the specific principle is retained as applying to all seeds, as seeds not specially provided for are dutiable under the Senate amendment at 5 cents per pound. In the present law it is 10 cents per pound, and in the House bill ten per cent ad valorem.

The following are the paragraphs as they appeared in the bill passed by the House May 8, showing the Senate amendments. The words omitted are surrounded by brackets and the words added are printed in black-face type:

214. Peas, green or dried, in bulk or in barrels, sacks, or similar packages, [15] 10 cents per bushel of sixty pounds; split peas, [25] 20 cents per bushel of sixty pounds; peas in cartons, papers, or other similar packages, including the weight of the immediate covering, [1½] ½ cent per pound.

215. Orchids, palms, azalea indica, and [all other decorative greenhouse plants and] cut flowers, preserved or fresh, 25 per centum ad valorem; lily of the valley pips, tulips, narcissus, begonia, and gloxinia bulbs, $1 per thousand; hyacinth bulbs, astilbe, dielytra, and lily of the valley clumps, $2.50 per thousand; lily bulbs and calla bulbs or corms, $5 per thousand; herbaceous peony, Iris Kaempferri or Germanica, canna, dahlia, and amaryllis bulbs, $10 per thousand; all other bulbs, roots, root stocks, corms, and tubers, which are cultivated for their flowers or foliage, 50 cents per thousand.

216. Stocks, cuttings, or seedlings of Myrobalan plum, Mahaleb or Mazzard cherry, Manetti multiflora and briar rose, Rosa Rugosa, three years old or less, $1 per thousand plants; stocks, cuttings, or seedlings of pear, apple, quince, and the Saint Julien plum, three years old or less, $1 per thousand plants; rose plants, budded, grafted, or grown on their own roots, 4 cents each; stocks, cuttings, and seedlings, of all fruit and ornamental trees, deciduous and evergreen shrubs and vines, and all trees, shrubs, plants, and vines commonly known as nursery or greenhouse stock, not specially provided for in this section, 15 per centum ad valorem.

217. Seeds: Castor beans or seeds, 15 cents per bushel of fifty pounds; flaxseed or linseed and other oil seeds not specially provided for in this section, [20] 15 cents per bushel of fifty-six pounds; poppy seed, 15 cents per bushel of forty-seven pounds; mushroom spawn, and spinach seed, 1 cent per pound; canary seed, ½ cent per pound; caraway seed, 1 cent per pound; anise seed, 2 cents per pound; beet (except sugar beet), carrot, corn salad, parsley, parsnip, radish, turnip, and rutabaga seed, 3 cents per pound; cabbage, collard, kale, and kohlrabi seed, 6 cents per pound; egg plant and pepper seed, 10 cents per pound; seeds of all kinds not specially provided for in this section, [10 per centum ad valorem] 5 cents per pound: Provided, That no allowance shall be made for dirt or other impurities in seeds provided for in this paragraph.

FREE LIST.

599. Seeds: Cardamom, cauliflower, celery, coriander, cotton, cummin, fennel, fenugreek, hemp, hoarhound, mangewurzel, mustard, rape, Saint John's bread or bean, sorghum, sugar beet, and sugar cane for seed; bulbs and bulbous roots, not edible and not otherwise provided for in this section; all flower and grass seeds; coniferous evergreen seedlings four years old or less; all the foregoing not specially provided for in this section.

disappeared. The bodies of all three were recovered the following day. Frank Weigand had been assisting his father, who is the proprietor of the Chippewa Falls Greenhouses.

NATIONAL GARDENERS.

Owing to the change of date of the annual show of the American Sweet Pea Society, which will occur in Boston on July 12 and 13, the summer meeting of the National Association of Gardeners has been postponed from July 5 to July 12 and will be held in Horticultural hall on that day at 2 p. m. A meeting of trustees and directors of the association will take place at 1:30 p. m.

Members attending the meeting going by way of New York, will leave over the outside line of the Metropolitan Steamship Co., Pier 19, North River, at 5 p. m. Friday, July 11. This is the all water route direct to Boston.

SCHIZANTHUS FROM SEED.

When is the proper time to sow seed of schizanthus? What is the best variety, the right treatment of it and the temperature required? F. F.

Schizanthus may be had in flower from December until May. It is at its best in February, March and April. For an early batch, sow seed in a shallow flat early in August. Pot off singly. Grow as cool as possible. Pinch to make the plants branch. Keep potting on before the plants have any chance to become matted at the roots. Use a compost such as suits mums or roses. Feed the plants liberally when established in the pots they are to flower in. Grow them cool and airy at all times. A night temperature of 45 degrees is better than one 5 degrees higher.

Later sowings of schizanthus can be made in September and November. The secret of success with this beautiful plant is to keep it growing without any check, to give it abundance of water and plenty of liquid food when needed, to grow it in a cool, light house, well ventilated, and never to attempt any forcing tactics, as this would surely spoil the plants. The best schizanthus for pots is S. Wisetonensis. There are several grandiflora forms and so-called improvements of this now on the market. C. W.

OBITUARY.Thomas Harrison.

Word has been received of the sudden death of Thomas Harrison, of Bernardsville, N. J., which occurred June 19 at a physician's office in Brooklyn. Mr. Harrison was well known. He was formerly superintendent of Elsinore, the Ladew estate, and later of Meudon, the Guthrie estate, at Glen Cove, L. I., but was best known as the father of the Nassau County Horticultural Society, which he organized, and of which he was the first president. For the last few years he had been superintendent of Ellis Court Farm, at Bernardsville. Mr. Harrison was 52 years old. The funeral was held at Rhinebeck, N. Y., June 22.

F. W. Brookes.

Frederick William Brookes, one of the oldest residents of Chicago and generally conceded to be the first to embark in the florists' trade in that city, died June 22 at his home in Morgan Park, Ill., at the age of 86 years. He was born in London, England, in 1827, and came to New York in 1832. In the following year the family started by ox team for Chicago, arriving there after a journey of thirty-five days.

Mr. Brookes showed the spirit of a pioneer in other lines of industry as well as in the florists' field. He was a charter member of the first printers' union in Chicago and worked as a compositor in Chicago newspaper offices. In 1849 he left the printers' trade and became a cattle buyer, traveling through Iowa and Illinois. In 1857 he established himself in the flour and feed business, in which he remained until after the Civil war. In 1865 he and his father, Samuel Brookes, built what is believed to have been the first greenhouse in Chicago. They conducted a florists' store, which the son carried on until 1893, when he retired. He is survived by three sons.

Amos Perry.

Amos Perry, the well-known English hardy plantsman whose place has been visited by a large number of American specialists and whose illness was reported in a recent issue of The Review, died at his home at Enfield June 10. He had not enjoyed good health for two years, and death resulted from heart failure, following Bright's disease and dropsy. Mr. Perry was born September 22, 1841, and started life in the scholastic profession, but after serving his apprenticeship as teacher his health failed, and his medical adviser told him to leave the country. Instead of doing this he secured employment in the Wingfield nursery, Gloucester, adopting the profession of his forebears—his grandfather was a foreman of Messrs. Veitch's nursery, Exeter, and his father was rose grower at the Ware nursery, Tottenham. He stayed only a short time at Gloucester, later finding work under his father at the Hale Farm Nurseries. Mr. Perry remained with the firm of T. S. Ware for twenty-five years. He became a partner in the firm, which then consisted of Messrs. Ware, Fells and Perry. Mr. Perry was among the first to recognize the great value of hardy flowers. He made a collection of all the best subjects he could secure and entered a group at one of the meetings of the Royal Horticultural Society. But hardy plants were not in favor; the superintendent of the show, Mr. Eyles, was disinclined even to find space for them, but finally allotted room in an out-of-the-way corner among the exhibits of sundries. Mr. Perry continued to work among his favorite flowers, and made journeys to the Continent in search of novelties. He visited the Pyrenees in 1870 and brought home many interesting plants, including Ramondia Pyrenaica alba, Primula integrifolia alba, Gentiana verna alba, a double-flowered gentian, which, however, did not survive the journey, and Anthericum Liliastrium major. Mr. Perry severed his connection with his old firm in 1894, and commenced a business on his own account at Winchmore Hill, where he engaged in carnation growing. But the soil of the nursery was unsuited to these plants, and he turned again to his favorite hardy plants and alpiners. So successful was his business that the Winchmore nursery became too small, and he removed to thirty acres of ground at Enfield. Among the many plants which Mr. Perry introduced to commerce are those following: Echinacea purpurea Winchmore Hill var.; Phlox Canadensis Perry's var.; Spiraea rivularis gigantea, Chrysanthemum maximum grandiflorum, Achillea Perry's White, Sparaxis pulcherrima, Anchusa Italica Perry's var.; Spiraea venusta, Helenium pumilum magnificum, Aster Amellus Perry's Favorite, the first pink variety of this flower. He received numerous awards for novelties in irises, poppies, geums, heucheras, delphiniums, phloxes, asters and other hardy flowers. Mr. Perry retired from active work in the business some two years ago, and during his leisure he has raised thousands of seedling liliums, sparaxis, delphiniums and poppies in his garden. He leaves a widow, two sons and three daughters. Both sons are engaged in the business, which will be carried on under its present name. The funeral took place at Enfield cemetery June 13.

The accompanying portrait of Mr. Perry was prepared from a photograph made by J. D. Eisele, of Riverton, N. J., on one of his visits to Mr. Perry's hardy plant farm.

Yankton, S. D.—It is announced that the Gurney Seed Co., which heretofore has confined itself to the seed business, will this summer erect greenhouses and do a general cut flower and plant trade. D. B. Gurney states that a great deal of money has been going away from Yankton which he thinks may as well be kept in the town.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

ALBERT E. MAUFF, the Denver florist, is secretary of the State Board of Horticulture.

A MERCHANT might as well give away his merchandise as to "sell" it to those who do not pay.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

AT its commencement this month the Maryland Agricultural College conferred on Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, an honorary degree "for his achievements in horticulture and floriculture."

THE business done by The Review in the month of May, 1913, was the largest of any month in its history and the entire season has been the best in the paper's experience. Consequently, employees of The Review are entitled to a holiday and the office will remain closed from Thursday evening, July 3, to Monday morning, July 7.

THE guarantors of the National Flower Show have received a dividend of ten per cent on the sums paid in, five per cent on the sums for which they had obligated themselves. Secretary Young, in sending out the checks, wrote: "Chairman Totty desires me to say that after all expenses are paid there will be a nice little nucleus for a permanent flower show fund."

THE production and sale of bedding plants this season has greatly exceeded previous years. Those who were ready early and advertising early, wholesale or retail, in general have cleaned up. There are, as always, some surpluses in the hands of those who either were not ready early enough or who simply sat and waited for the buyers. There never is a season that does not see more or less stock left unsold because it was not in salable condition until after the local demand had pretty much passed.

HERE'S WHY.

Letters like the following reach The Review so frequently as to justify the statement that there is no other means of selling stock that equals The Review for effectiveness or cheapness:

We have sold all the plants advertised in The Review. Your paper certainly sells the stock.—George B. Morrell, Philadelphia, June 16, 1913.

We are all sold out. The Review did the work and we want to thank you for it.—W. Bezdek, Cedar Rapids, Ia., June 17, 1913.

And here is the other side—the reason why:

In renewing my subscription I want to say we have made several times the price of it in the last season by sending for stock to brother florists we never would have heard of but for their ads in The Review.—L. M. Strader, Maryville, Mo., June 17, 1913.

PASTE AS AN INSECTICIDE.

A recent circular from the bureau of entomology of the U. S. Department of Agriculture has some interesting information as to the effect of ordinary wheat flour on insects. The writer found that wheat flour made into paste and added to certain insecticides immensely increased their effectiveness, especially against red spider. From this he was induced to try its effect alone and found that it was completely successful against spider without injury to the most delicate foliage. A mixture of four pounds of flour made into paste and dissolved in four gallons of water, and then added to 100 gallons of ordinary lime-sulphur wash, was tried on hops affected with red spider, and was found to have killed ninety-nine per cent. It was also found to add to the effectiveness of nicotine washes.

For using the flour paste only against spider the recipe is as follows: Mix cheap wheat flour with cold water to a thin paste, then dilute further until a gallon of paste contains one pound of flour. Heat until the mixture becomes pasty, stirring well to avoid burning; then add water sufficient to make up for loss by evaporation, so as to bring it to the original volume.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

A pronounced change has taken place since last report, for, with the continued heat of the last two weeks, the crops have just about worked off. Roses of good quality are exceedingly hard to obtain and the demand, while not unusually heavy, exceeds the supply. Although it was to be expected that the crops would suffer from the warm weather, the change was rather sudden and the wholesalers were caused some trouble as a consequence. Hardly enough of the best can be obtained to fill all of the shipping orders and the local demand is also for the better grade of stock. Prices have naturally advanced.

Carnations are not only plentiful in the less desirable grades, but there is more good stock than can be sold to advantage. The receipts of carnations average unusually good quality for this time of year, but the demand has fallen off, as it always does when hot weather arrives. It is possible that with the passing of the peony carnations will strengthen. There is hardly any outlet for poor stock, as the local retailers show no desire to handle carnations in quantity at any price and unless sold to the street men for whatever price they will pay it is necessary for the wholesaler to consign them to the ash heap.

In Beauties the cut has fallen off sharply. The sun has been at work on these and those that have not been affected by the excess heat are bringing a better price than has been noted for some time. The buds on most of those coming on the market are small and bleached and the wholesalers are glad to move them at most any price. Some are affected more than others. Killarneys show fairly good quality, but the supply of the first grade is limited. The same can be said of Richmonds and the yellows. Most of the cut this week is from young stock and is short in stem. Marylands and Mrs. Taft are

Special Notice to Buyers of

ROSES

FIRST-CLASS STOCK OFFERED HERE IN QUANTITY.

WE ARE ready with a special crop of high quality summer roses. Good roses have become so scarce that medium and long stems carrying quality flowers sell on sight, but we aim never to be without some good roses in the ice-box to go out on late shipping orders. We have large supplies of Killarney, White Killarney and Bulgarie, an especially large lot of Mrs. Ward and soon will have a big crop of Radiance. You will find us rose headquarters now and all summer.

more in evidence than for some time and during the next two months will assume an important place on the local market. These are always popular summer roses.

Sweet peas have not been so plentiful as heretofore and the last of the indoor crops are now being picked. Outdoor peas will soon be here in quantity. For the last few weeks the market has been heavily supplied with the indoor Spencers and the first few hot days brought on an unusually large number that forced prices down. Peonies of the best grade have not been overplentiful at any time during the last week, but of the seconds there still are enough to supply everyone, although there is no sign of a glut such as was in effect a year ago. The quantity in cold storage is small and they will pass off the list shortly. Lilies are obtainable in fair quantities but good stock is commanding better prices than a week ago. Gladioli are gradually becoming more plentiful, but there are not enough as yet to supply all the demands of the local retailers. Valley is in only fair supply after a big June run and prices are holding firm. Cattleyas are equal to every demand. Daisies have passed their season of best sale and the supply is diminishing. There are reports of excellent outlet for good gailardias and coreopsis.

Ferns are more abundant and prices falling slowly, but other greens are on the scarce side. Galax is short this year. Asparagus sprays from Florida have lost quality. Asparagus strings and smilax have become minor items; not many growers ship them now.

Retailers Organizing.

To feel out the sentiment of the trade H. Dieu Schiller, as secretary, recently sent a letter to 300 retailers, stating that "for the purpose of advancing and bettering conditions for the retail florists of Chicago a meeting of said florists will be called by the Retail Florists' Association of Chicago, which was lately organized for the purpose of enacting laws, etc., to protect the interests of the florists' business." A reply postal was enclosed for the use of those who want to be advised of the

ALL KINDS OF GOOD SUMMER CUT FLOWERS

You can keep right on with business through the summer months if you show your customers the right grade of stock. It is a mistaken notion that people will not buy flowers in summer. All the florist has to do is to keep some good flowers in his window, and some more good flowers in his ice-box, and the people will keep right on buying them—perhaps not so many as in winter, but enough to make the florist a nice little business all summer. You can look to Randall now, and at any time this summer, for good flowers. We have arranged with our growers to keep us supplied steadily with the grade of stock that will keep the trade on the move. Right now supplies are shortening up, but we have large quantities of good stock of everything in season.

BEFORE putting our house brand on this hose, we tested the hose in comparison with every good brand used in greenhouses to make sure that there was nothing manufactured anywhere in this country at anything like the same price that was the equal of Rando. We are sure that Rando hose will stand the test of comparison with any other hose in use today. Our motto is "Better goods for the same money, or the same goods at less money," and Rando hose backs up our motto. We believe it is a better hose than you can buy anywhere else at the same price:—17c per foot; 16c per foot in reel lots.

The Eastern Market.

The time has come when Philadelphia stands first in the floral world among the cities east of the Ohio river. She no longer aspires to the lead; she has attained it. No other city in the east distributes such vast quantities of cut flowers over so large a territory. When the plants and florists' supplies are added, her position becomes even stronger.

A change has come over the situation with the week ending June 25. The supply of flowers has diminished. This is due in part to the extremely hot weather of mid-June, which brought in crops rapidly and sent the tired plants downhill with a rush, and in part to the anxiety of the growers to finish the season's planting before the Glorious Fourth.

Beauties from Newport and from Wyndmoor have been selling well. Kaiserin is coming forward as a summer rose, and so is My Maryland, while there still are some Richmond of good quality and a few of both the Killarneys. Mrs. C. W. Ward and some of the white, notably Alma Ward, White Perfection and White Wonder, can still be had in good form when carnations are wanted. Some Victory, too, add color. Most of the carnations are unfit to offer, so that those mentioned, when well grown, are eagerly sought. Easter lilies are more plentiful and are selling well at better prices, owing to the prevalence of funeral work. Valley is just a little short of demand, as the growers shorten production about June 20. Peonies are coming out of cold storage in good shape. All the colors can be had for some time to come. Cattleyas are plentiful, but lack support. Sweet peas are a trifle less plentiful and generally are fine, since the rains, though in some sections the extremely dry weather of last week has told against them. The odds and ends of outdoor flowers sell slowly; there always are more of them than anybody wants, or at least it seems so. Greens are not in demand and some of the growers have been requested to discontinue cutting for the present.

The Club Outing.

The second annual picnic of the Florists' Club, held Thursday, June 19, was a glorious success. About 225 members with their better halves, present or to be, and the children enjoyed to the utmost a sail on the Delaware, the baseball and the sports at Washington park. It was a jolly crowd, with everyone in the spirit of the day. The baseball game was one of the best ever witnessed on such an occasion. Seeds went down before Flowers by a score of 3 to 6, thanks to the fine pitching of Sharp, the catching of Swan and the all-round play of Brunswick and McIntyre. Benedict Gibbs was umpire.

While the baseball game was in progress the sports were run off in front of the grand stand. Mrs. James W. Heacock and Mrs. Stewart H. Miller covered themselves with glory in the ladies' events. Francis Stokes won the sack Waretown.

The annual commencement of the Waretown Rod and Gun Club was held Friday, June 20, and two succeeding days. Commodore John Westcott was host at the famous clubhouse at Barnegat bay and so hearty was his welcome and so happy the surroundings that the gathering was the most delightful in the club's history. Sailing was the principal amusement. The fish would not bite those days, but that did not matter, everybody said, as there were so many other things to do. The choice spirits gathered by the Commodore were Sydney H. Bayersdorfer has been given an interest in the firm of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., commencing July 1. Mr. Bayersdorfer, who is the son of the senior member of the firm, has for several years held a responsible position that has enabled him to become thoroughly familiar with all the details of the business. His advancement is popular. The firm of H. Bayersdorfer & Co. has for many years been composed of Harry Bayersdorfer and Paul Berkowitz.

The houses of Reid and Heacock captured four prizes each in the sporting events, so says Carl Corts.

The Market.

Weddings, class days, school graduations, etc., made business extra good for retailers last week and all were kept on the jump. The wholesale market, however, had a rather heavy week and, outside of calls for red roses, choice pink and white peonies, valley and sweet peas, business was at a comparatively low ebb. Harvard class days made a good demand for red roses and other colored flowers. The outdoor hybrid perperuals are now at their best, and Peonies will be finished this week. A comparatively small number have made profitable prices. Marguerites are getting poor. Lilies and callas are little called for. Herbaceous flowers are now used considerably in window decorations. Gardenias are a slow sale. Cattleyas are moving better and valley of good quality is in demand.

Club Meeting.

Ladies' night at the Gardeners' and Florists' Club attracted an attendance of 350 June 25. Several new members were elected. The executive committee reported on the club picnic to be held in July at Cunningham park, East Milton, also on transportation arrangements being made in coöperation with the Horticultural Club for the coming Minneapolis convention. Resolutions on the death of William Robb were presented and adopted, the committee on the same being Geo. M. Anderson, W. C. Rust and James Nicol.

NOTICE

This is to inform everybody that on and after July 1 we have given Sydney H. Bayersdorfer an interest in our business.

We want to thank our friends for the loyal patronage they have given us and hope it will continue under the new partnership.

A letter was received from W. F. Gude, asking the coöperation of the club in securing subscriptions to the W. R. Smith memorial to be erected in Washington, one from John Barr expressing appreciation of the club's kindness during his recent illness, and one from John Young asking the club's aid in making the spring show of 1914 in the Grand Central Palace, New York, a success. Arrangements were made for suitable entertainment for members of the Sweet Pea Society at the coming show and convention July 12 and 13.

M. Steinert & Sons Co. loaned a large Victrola, on which selections from Caruso, Homer, Gluck, Lauder, Farrar and others were rendered at intervals. A buffet lunch was served by a well-known caterer and dancing was later enjoyed until early morning. There was a good display of sweet peas, roses and other flowers available for the ladies, who were out in force. One pleasant feature of the evening was the formation of a ladies' auxiliary, with Mrs. W. H. Elliott and other staunch workers on the roll, which should be of great benefit to the club.

Visit to Clifftondale.

The garden committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society visited Clifftondale June 20 on invitation of William Sim. Included in the party were President J. K. M. L. Farquhar, T. J. Grey, D. W. Craig, A. H. Fewkes, Wm. Nicholson, A. E. Thatcher, Thos. Roland, W. P. Rich, Wilfrid Wheeler and Charles Sander. The greenhouses and outdoor grounds were found in splendid condition. One large greenhouse was planted with English melons, three with White Spine cucumbers, two large ones with Spencer sweet peas, which were in grand shape, and six with tomatoes, mostly Comet, which were bearing a tremendous crop of fruit.

Outdoors seven acres were devoted to Princess of Wales violets, which are used to follow the summer crops. These could hardly have looked better. A large field of early Cory sweet corn, started in pots under glass, will yield an early picking. Quite a few sweet peas are grown outside, but not so many as a year ago. All the best novelties are included. Zvolanek's new winter-flowering Spencers are being tried outside and Mr. Sim thinks they are going to equal, or even surpass, the other Spencers. A substantial start has been made here in gladiolus culture, a new industry for Clifftondale, and 50,000 bulbs have been planted, including all the choicest sorts obtainable.

What interested the visitors was the excellent Skinner irrigating system installed here. The supply is from driven wells and is so abundant that five acres can be watered at one time. The grounds around Mr. Sim's own residence are beautifully laid out and a lot of choice material has been used. The committee was generously entertained by Mr. Sim before leaving and the members felt that they had spent a profitable afternoon. A gold medal for gen-

The Market.

The extremely warm weather did not seem to have much effect on last week's business, for trade kept up surprisingly well. There was more than enough funeral work to consume the under-grade stock, as well as a great quantity of the first-class kind. There were several weddings every day, some of which called for home and church decorations, while others only called for bouquets; this kept the lily of the valley, roses, sweet peas and daisies on the move. Palms and ferns were in such steady demand that they paid well for their keeping. Great quantities of flowers were also used for commencement purposes. So, taking all things into consideration, last week was a busy one for the florists, and this week promises to be just as good.

Various Notes.

Jos. I. Schaefer still has a few bedding plants on hand, but reports that he has no trouble in disposing of them. He tells us that his bedding plant season has been better this year than ever before.

The Heiss Co. says there is doubt as to which department of the business was the better last week, funeral work or wedding orders; the firm had a liberal share of each.

Miss Catherine Young says that business with her was gratifying in all lines last week.

A. Dietsch, of the A. Dietsch Co., Chicago, was in Dayton June 23 to draw Chicago, spent a few days of last week among the Dayton florists.

Mrs. Ray G. Bartholomew is suffering with a broken collar bone as the result of a fall downstairs last week. Besides being disabled by the broken bone, she is badly bruised.

Mrs. Bertha Hendrichs, who fell on the slippery pavement a few weeks ago, and for some time after was confined to bed, is now able to be around, although she is still obliged to walk with crutches.

William Johnson, of Kansas City, Mo., has returned home, after a pleasant visit with his brother, L. D. Johnson.

Arno Hendrichs will leave July 3 to spend a few weeks with friends at Erie, Pa.

Ross Adgate, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., was a Dayton visitor last week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Phebus is busy planting her chrysanthemums. She had excellent success with her mums last season, so this year she intends to double the extent of her crop.

W. J. Engle is busy planting out his vines in the field.

C. W. Hoffman is bringing some excellent Shasta daisies to the market. These flowers sell remarkably well for the June weddings.

W. G. Matthews put in another big week in wedding decorations.

George Bartholomew says his new crop of Spencer sweet peas is selling fast. Besides his local orders he has had several out-of-town calls for them.

Mrs. L. D. Johnson reports that her old stand at 808 East Fifth street is being rebuilt and that as soon as it is habitable she will go back and reopen for business.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Not for a number of years has there been so much activity on wedding decorations and bouquets as this season. June has proved itself truly a month of brides, and from all sides come reports of busy times. Funeral work has also held up remarkably well. Last week there was a falling off in the supply of good carnations, especially whites. Otherwise there was a good supply of about everything in the market. There has been a constantly growing demand for sweet peas.

Graduation Flowers.

In former years the practice of sending flowers in baskets and bouquets to the members of the graduating classes of the public schools was general and afforded the florists a considerable income. Two years ago the school authorities issued a notice that no flowers for graduates would be received at the schools, and in several instances flowers sent by friends of the children were refused and considerable annoyance was experienced. this matter was introduced at a meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island and a committee consisting of Robert Johnston, William E. Chappell and Eugene Appleton was appointed to confer with the school authorities. A partial victory was the result. The committee agreed to allow flowers to be sent to the schools, but would not allow them to be handed to the pupils during the exercises. The flowers were retained in a side room and distributed after the exercises were over.

shade half the week and rain every day, the desires of prospective buyers soon vanished. The untimely weather conditions also rushed on the indoor crops, making them soft, and, in some cases, unsalable.

It is surprising how the demand for Enchantress carnations has fallen off lately; any other pink will move, but this will not. Valley, sweet peas and the local grown peonies reigned supreme all last week. Good greens are not in oversupply.

Various Notes.

The great wind and hail storm which swept over Oconomowoc, Wis., June 16, did much damage to florists of that city. The Otto Sylvester Co. lost about 1,000 lights. Had they not practically completed their bedding work, of which they make a specialty, the damage to stock might have been worse.

Building operations in this vicinity are well under way. The Mueller Greenhouse Co., at Brown Deer, is adding three 300-foot houses for carnations; the Schroeder Floral Co., on Twenty-fourth and Pease streets, one house 28x150 feet for carnations, and Manke Bros., of North Milwaukee, are also enlarging their plant for the cultivation of carnations. After July 1 the A. F. Kellner Co. will erect two houses 28x150 feet on newly acquired property on Auer avenue, across from Gustav Pohl's establishment, to house decorative stock and material. About August 1 the Helton & Hunkel Co. will add four large houses, to be utilized for the growing of roses.

The A. F. Kellner Co., which does landscape work on a large scale, claims that this season the call for Beaute Poitevine geranium was so great that the S. A. Nutt had to play second fiddle.

At the plant of the C. C. Pollworth Co. the carnations were so abundant that it did not pay to cut all of them last week.

Nic Zweifel's carnations are still of fine quality for this time of the year.

The Heitman-Oestreicher Co. is cutting some choice Victory carnations, with stems ranging from thirty to thirty-six inches.

The peonies at the nursery of the Currie Bros. Co. will be just in for the graduation exercises this week, thus proving to be a valuable asset.

Wm. Edlefsen, of Lorane, Ore., and formerly of Milwaukee, paid us a three days' visit before going on to Pittsburgh to visit relatives. After a brief visit there, he intends to spend some time here, looking after business interests and renewing old acquaintances.

NEWS OF THE SEED TRADE

THE Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., of Sioux City, Ia., was awarded 6 cents by the court at Alpena, Mich., in its case against the Detroit & Mackinac railway. The company sued for $10,000 damage done to its property by the closing of Saginaw street when the railroad built its new depot.

THE paragraph covering seeds in the new tariff bill as it has been agreed to by the Senate committee on finance will be found on page 16. The principal change is that seeds not specially provided for are to pay 5 cents per pound, instead of ten per cent ad valorem as in the House bill, thus adhering throughout to the principle of specific duties. Peas are reduced to 10 cents per bushel.

THE BULB CROPS.

Louis Berger, manager of the Philadelphia office of Gt. van Waveren & Kruijff, Sassenheim, Holland, reports having received the following advices from the home office under date of May 19:

"We wish to give you the general conditions of the bulb crops, up until the present date, which is as follows:

"The crop of white Roman hyacinths is expected to be bad; consequently prices are running up daily, nor can we accept orders for large quantities.

"As to Dutch hyacinths, the bulbs will be small. The weather was unfavorable and made them die early. The fields do not look in the same condition as they did the same time last year. Prices will be a trifle higher, especially on blue varieties.

"By the crops that were planted last fall it was the general opinion of the Dutch bulb growers that prices of tulips this year would run low, but owing to the prospects of the crop at the present time being not at all favorable it seems that the demand will surpass by far the quantity which will be offered on the market this coming fall.

"Golden Spur and Double Von Sion narcissi will be higher in price, but all other varieties we expect to be the same as last year."

FIRE AT DUNKIRK.

The building of the Lake Shore Seed Co., in East Second street, Dunkirk, N. Y., with its contents, was destroyed by fire June 18. The loss is at least $100,000 and may run as high as $150,000. The loss is largely covered by insurance. The fire started in the cellar. It was evidently caused by an explosion, as immediately following a sharp report, smoke, quickly followed by flames, came belching from the outside cellar windows and up the stairways leading to the first floor. There were twenty girls and six or eight men at work in the building, all on the first floor. The girls were panic-stricken for a moment, but Manager J. H. F. Kauffman soon quieted them and got them all out of the building. The building was heavily stocked with seed, drugs, cough medicines, boxes and paper packages. The value of the paper packages alone was about $14,000, while the other stock was valued at $60,000 or more. Everything was destroyed. The machinery, which was valuable, is probably ruined. The head of the company, R. W. Wright, was at the time on the ocean en route for home from a European tour.

SEED TRADE CONVENTION.

In Session at Cleveland.

The American Seed Trade Association is holding its thirty-first annual convention this week at the Hotel Statler, Cleveland, O. As last year, the sessions are executive, but, while press representatives are not admitted, there are plenty of avenues to second-hand information.

The hotel began filling up with seedsmen Monday morning, for the grass seed dealers meet one day ahead of the general body, and at the hour of the opening session there was about the usual showing of members and salesmen present. The grass seed dealers, as usual, appear to be the dominating factor, many of the leading garden seed houses not being represented.

The opening session was addressed by Mayor Baker, who talked street railway. The later hours were given over to routine matters. President Charles N. Page delivered the annual address from the chair and appointed the usual convention committees, such as those on obituary and auditing.

Committee Reports.

The order of business after the reports of officers is the reports of standing committees. These committees, with the chairmen, are as follows:

Delegates to National Board of Trade—Albert McCullough, Cincinnati, chairman.

Seed legislation—Charles D. Boyles, Chicago, chairman.

Postal laws—W. Atlee Burpee, Philadelphia, chairman.

Customs and tariff—J. C. Vaughan, chairman, (absent in Europe).

Transportation—D. I. Bushnell, St. Louis, chairman.

Experiment stations—Alfred J. Brown, Grand Rapids, Mich., chairman.

Cost and overhead expense—L. B. McCausland, Wichita, Kan., chairman.

The Parcel Post.

The discussion in the lobby early showed that the subject of largest general interest is the parcel post. There is no agreement. Some want seeds and plants to take the present zone rates, the same as other merchandise, a few want the existing arrangement continued, while the majority, perhaps, want some other scheme adopted. There appears to be every prospect that the trade can get in under the present system any time it wants to, as it was only because of the determined opposition of its committee headed by W. Atlee Burpee that seeds and plants were left as at present when the law was passed, but that the trade can get anything different seems doubtful. It will take a good deal of threshing out to get the convention on record by anything like unanimous vote. It was the special subject for Wednesday's session.

Seed Laws.

The subject of seed legislation was brought up by the address of George S. Green at Tuesday's session. The question he was called on to answer was "Are Standards of Purity Practicable in State Seed Laws?" He summed it up by saying they are not, because of the ever changing quality of seeds. The discussion made it apparent that the trade is getting around to the point where a federal seed law on right lines will be welcomed if it takes the place of the multitudinous and divergent state laws, the compliance with which is becoming an ever more difficult matter. It must soon come to the point where a national law must supplant the state laws or a means must be found to get the state laws made uniform. It is the same problem that confronts the nursery trade on inspection matters, and the railroads on rate control.

Papers and Discussions.

Secretary Kendel announced the following addresses and discussions as the prearranged program:

"Are Standards of Purity Practicable in State Seed Laws?" by George S. Green, president of the Illinois Seed Co., Chicago.

"Seeds Grown Under Irrigation," a discussion, led by J. C. Robinson, president of the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb.

 "Cost and Overhead Expense," by L. B. McCausland, of Ross Bros., Wichita, Kan.
 "Intensified Farming," by James J. Hill, formerly president Great Northern Ry., St. Paul, Minn.

The paper by Mr. Hill was read at the session Tuesday, June 24, but the distinguished author was not able to attend. It was the man rather than his paper that was of interest to the members and his non-appearance was a keen disappointment to many.

The paper by J. C. Robinson also was presented at Tuesday's session, and by its author. It was followed by an animated discussion.

The Officers.

The present officers of the American Seed Trade Association are:

President—Chas. N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.

First vice-president—Harry L. Holmes, Harrisburg, Pa.

Second vice-president—Arthur B. Clark, Milford, Conn.

Grass Seed Dealers Meet.

The Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association has learned by experience that it is difficult to get together during the Seed Trade convention, so holds its annual meetings one day ahead of the general body. The fifth annual session at the Statler, Cleveland, June 23, is said to have been devoted principally to the consideration of prices and freight rates. The secretary announces that officers were re-elected, as follows:

President—A. E. Reynolds, Crawfordsville, Ind.

Vice-president—Chas. C. Massie, Minneapolis, Minn.

Secretary-treasurer—John A. Smith, Toledo.

Directors—A. E. Reynolds, J. A. Smith and Marshall Duryea, of New York, for three-year terms.

Social Features.

Tuesday afternoon, June 24, fifty automobiles were required to show the visitors the city, a visit being paid to Forest Hill, the Rockefeller estate, the owner having only arrived home that day.

Tuesday evening a reception was given in the parlors of the Hotel Statler, in honor of President Page. There were music and refreshments.

Wednesday morning, June 25, Mrs. C. E. Kendel, wife of the secretary, had the ladies as guests at her home, 3310 Carnegie avenue, S. E.

Wednesday evening, June 25, the annual banquet was held in the banquet room of the Statler. An illustrated lecture by Miss Louise K. Miller, curator of the Cleveland school gardens, also was on the program, subject "Education and Civic Influence of School Garden Work."

After the convention closes, with the election of officers Thursday noon, the value, and realized you have gained nothing in your quality or price and you pay 60% and often 100% for such charges, before you have the privilege of even looking at your goods? It is well worth thinking about, but better to act on. Florists work too hard for their money to overlook the money leaks. It takes an Importer to import, and a pretty keen one at that, and it usually pays the Florist to buy through an importer. I have learned where the big leaks come in, after having for nine years charge of shipments through from points in Europe to Cincinnati. The knowledge was not easily gained but it is certainly well worth having.It is getting a little late for some of the above items, and putting off or forgetting usually brings disappointment.M. M. CARROLL*NORWOOD, OHIO (near Cincinnati)

SEEDS UNDER IRRIGATION.

[The remarks of J. C. Robinson, of Waterloo, Neb., introducing the subject for discussion at the Cleveland meeting of the American Seed Trade Association.]

A paper on a special subject is supposed to present more than average knowledge of the subject treated. In writing of the merits of seed growing under irrigation, or under the more common method, which might be called dry farming, I must disclaim any special knowledge or having conducted any experiments to attain such knowledge. The purpose, therefore, of this paper is only to introduce the subject for discussion.

Twenty-five years ago, when the writer first entered the arena as a seed grower, irrigation was practically in its infancy. Application of water through various means to growing crops, while old as the history of man, has only been worked out scientifically in comparatively recent years. Some countries have so agreeable a climate, both as regards heat and cold, rain and sunshine, that crops grow nearly to perfection and short crops and failures are more nearly the exception than the rule; but a large part of our country is not so favored and must depend largely on intelligent application of irrigation water at the necessary time.

No question can be raised as to the results obtained, surpassing by far the best crops obtained by dry farming. All who have made a study of the subject admit these wonderful crop results both in quantity and quality. We are therefore more interested in the effect of irrigation on the seed product, and the crops that this seed will produce on non-irrigated land, than in the results of irrigation itself.

Good Stocks Produced.

We give much attention at present to heredity and environment in the results of animal breeding. We already know that the law of heredity is just as effective in the vegetable kingdom as in the animal. Therefore, the effect of irrigation on seed stocks must be one of environment only. When the growth of the plant is the most nearly ideal the resulting seed must be of strong vitality and be able to produce a strong, robust seed plant. That strong seed will produce strong plants can be exemplified in, say, a hill of cucumbers, when ten seeds may grow and all start off under conditions that are equal, yet some plants will come up stronger, make more rapid growth and give better results than others, and we can only conclude in such a case that the seed itself contains the strength or elements that cause one plant to outclass the other. The irrigated plant is produced under almost cloudless sky, and the up-to-date, intelligent grower never allows the plant to falter for an instant in its forward march to perfection. The result must be a high state of perfection in the product. If this reasoning is correct, it would seem that nothing better in the seed line can be produced than can be grown under irrigation. Climate and soil affect some seed when taken to another zone or soil, but this is a matter of acclimation rather than of irrigation.

It seems to me that there is a broad field for experiment along this line. Few individual firms are in position to is irrigated seed, and the large part so produced makes knowledge as to the value of the seed so much the more important. [That many of the states are working more or less along these lines was shown by the speaker by extracts from reports by agrostologists of a number of the western states.—Ed.]

From the reports it will be noted that little attention is given to any prejudice against seed grown under irrigation, although Dr. Parsons holds that for dry farming seed grown under dry farming conditions is the best.

It was not my desire to make this paper of much length, but a few thoughts have been presented regarding irrigated seed by our assistant manager at Rocky Ford, Colo., H. D. Clute, who has had considerable experience in growing under irrigation, both in Colorado and California. These ideas may be of interest to some, and I present them with some minor changes and omissions. They apply more especially to vine seeds, such as cucumbers and melons; than to field seeds.

Mr. Clute's Conclusions.

“Every intelligent farmer knows that the results of his operations as a farmer depend largely upon the selection of the best variety and best quality of seed for his local conditions. He may use seed that has been produced in either the rain belt or the irrigated regions, but it has been claimed, and it is a fact beyond doubt, that the quality of seed produced in irrigated regions is more reliable than seed grown in the rain belt.

“An experienced seed grower under irrigation has an advantage over the seed grower in the rain belt, for the reason that he has entire control of the amount of moisture applied to the land where the plant is growing, and he can apply the moisture when his judgment and experience show him that the plant needs it to produce the best results.

“All kinds of plants do not require the same amount of moisture. The different stages of their growth may require different amounts of water. This applies to a stalky plant as well as to a creeping plant or vine. And it is true that at a time when one plant family requires a considerable amount of moisture, another plant family should have but little to produce the best results.

“The intelligent and experienced irrigation seed grower has this matter of moisture under his own control and applies the water to the various crops as they require it. He also has the advantage of being able to plant his seed at the proper season, and if the ground is not moist enough he immediately makes small furrows close to the seed rows and turns the water into the furrows, letting it run until the ground is moist enough to germinate the seed and bring the plant up. After this early irrigation the soft soil is thoroughly cultivated to keep down the weeds as well as to prevent the evaporation of the

Silver Pink News

FOR A YEAR OR MORE I have been telling the virtues of my Original Silver Pink Snapdragon from seed. Many have accepted our story, some have doubted, and a few (mostly competitors) have knocked us good and hard. We had our reputation at stake, knew our business and attended strictly to it. Today our patrons do the talking, and the sailing is plain and easy for SILVER PINK—the one great Snapdragon of the age.

Washington, D. C., June 13, 1913.

G. S. Ramsburg, Somersworth, N. H.

Dear Sir: Replying to yours of June 10 in reference to Silver Pink Snapdragon seed to advise that we have had very satisfactory results from seeds. First: With the exception of a few golden sports, the color is uniform and perfect. Second: Second crop on the plants has beaten anything that we have seen. Third: In reference to disbudding, they grew so fast and blossomed so profusely that there was positively no need for disbudding.

We remain, very truly yours,
Gude Bros. Co.

Dover, N. H., June 20, 1913.

Mr. Ramsburg: Kindly duplicate my last year's order for 500 Silver Pink Snapdragon from seed. Never had so many blooms from Snapdragon before, and it gives me pleasure to tell others of your fine stock.

Very truly,
C. L. Howe.

Mr. G. S. Ramsburg. Kennebunk, Me., June 19, 1913.

Dear Sir: Will say in reply to your inquiry about Silver Pink Snapdragon from seed that it was very satisfactory. The flowers were very nice, with only a few golden sports in the lot. I wish to reorder 200 plants.

Very truly yours,
J. O. Elwell.

Most anyone will say that a thing is beautiful, but it requires a multiple of good qualities to attract the attention and receive the indorsement of such men as the above, who are sound, hard-headed business men who are not growing plants wholly for pleasure, but who would justify their time by the largest increase of dollars. Note that their reorders are for plants from seed, while they could have made countless thousands of cuttings from the plants they grew.

I would have you note the character and standing of the men who so enthusiastically indorse this great Snapdragon. Gude Bros., Washington, D. C., are among our leading business florists and have to do with many of the greatest business and social functions in our country at the National Capital. They grew Silver Pink from seed last season and have bought seed for another big lot this season. C. L. Howe, Dover, N. H., owns and conducts the largest wholesale and retail flower business in all New England, with stores in several principal cities. J. O. Elwell is a prosperous and up-to-date grower, with a strong list of high-class trade, at Kennebunk, Me., a fashionable seaside resort. Many more could be added—but what's the use? Silver Pink from seed is the greatest money-maker of the lot, producing twice as many blossoms as any variety from cuttings. We put the price low and mean to keep it there. You don't have to mortgage a house to have a bed of Snapdragon. From one to three packets of seed will fill most requirements. The price is $1.00 per pkt. of over 500 seeds; 3 pkts., $2.50, delivered.

If you want plants from cuttings, we have them at $4.00 per 100, by express. Will have plants from seed later at same price. If fall blossoms are wanted, order plants. Sow seed from July on for late winter and spring flowers.

NOTE.—Full cultural directions free to new and former customers. To others, 25c in stamps.

The above 14 sorts mixed in equal proportions if required.

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance: many of the immense flowers are from 3 1/2 to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention.

KENILWORTH SHOW—An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance, a beautiful collection of colors and markings.

KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER STRAIN—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance; its large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems, and its ability to stand the hot, dry weather makes it a great favorite for cut flowers.

ORCHID FLOWERED, Mixed—A dwarf free bloomer with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other pansies, a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, blush mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamois.

BRONZE—A fine mixture of velvety brown bronze, Havana brown, copper and other shades.

ZEBRA—Very showy striped on lilac, bronze and other ground colors.

moisture. A thorough knowledge of the needs of the crop enables the grower to watch closely the condition of the soil and the plant and give it moisture enough to keep the plant in a healthy growing condition. Excessive moisture is more detrimental to many plants grown for seed than a slight lack of moisture. Plants require more water when the fruit is setting and during its growth than it does at other stages of its life. At this time the long days of sunshine play an important part in forcing the plant as well as the fruit to perfection.

"As the season advances and the seed begins to mature it depends upon the knowledge of the seed grower to secure the best conditions for the perfect development of the seed by furnishing just the right amount of water for the plant to grow a plump seed of strong vitality. Excessive moisture at this time is serious and will cause the seed to shrivel when cured and have weak germinating power.

"After the seed is matured and harvest completed, we find again that our cloudless skies play an important part in curing seed to perfection. It is important in thoroughly curing seed with its natural color, to have the curing process regular and not disturbed by wet weather, which often injures the seed and has a tendency to change its color and injure its germinating quality.

"But to go back again to the irrigation of the growing plant: When the necessary moisture for the proper growth of the plant is furnished by irrigation, the water percolates through the soil to the roots of the plant and does not touch the stem or foliage. In arid regions, where irrigation is the method of furnishing moisture, there has not been much trouble from the plant pest called aphid, and in some irrigated sections the aphid is entirely unknown. I do not claim that the aphid is unknown in all irrigated sections, as they are known in some of the lower districts along the coast, where they have excessive fogs, but in the higher altitudes, such as the Arkansas valley in Colorado, where fog is unknown and the air dry, the aphid is almost unknown, as it is impossible for it to breed.

tricts costs more money per given quantity to produce than seed from some other districts, but as the result of our farming operations depends so largely upon the quality of the seed furnished, and the quality and germinating power of irrigation-grown seed are so manifestly superior, I believe it is always a good investment to get the seed, even at a much higher price."

The above extracts represent the opinion of a practical man, who has grown seed under irrigation for a long time, and without doubt his conclusions are correct for some seasons, and yet, practical experience has shown the writer that the very highest quality of seed can be produced in the rain districts as well as under irrigation. The chief advantage of irrigation, in my judgment, is its more uniform and dependable results, failures occurring less often than in the rain districts, the seed being of equal quality.

YOUNG STOCK

THE POEHLMANN STANDARD QUALITY

The young stock offered in this list is not what is commonly called "surplus stock"—it is young stock grown by us expressly to meet the demand of those who want the best—and who know that Poehlmann's is the place to get the best. Our cut flowers have a national reputation (we took first prize on Beauties, and several other first prizes, at the National Flower Show in New York in the strongest competition ever seen in the United States; our flowers were 1000 miles from home and thirty-six hours in the boxes, but they won). Naturally the success of Poehlmann cut flowers has resulted in a nation-wide demand for young stock of the Poehlmann standard quality. The stock we offer in this list is grown specially to meet this demand and is the Poehlmann standard. To avoid delay, send your order direct to box 127, Morton Grove, Ill.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

THE trade on the coast will be specially interested in the illustration on page 8, since it shows two well-known Oakland florists standing beside some of their handiwork seen in the floral parade at Portland, June 11.

San Jose, Cal.—A. & E. Schlaudt, proprietor of the business conducted under the name of the San Jose Florist, at 638 to 644 North Second street, have opened a branch store at 144 South Second street.

The Dalles, Ore.—M. C. Jewell & Son say that business has been increasing rapidly in the last year; although the people complain of the high cost of living, it does not appear to affect the florists here.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Frank Wilhelm says he has had an exceptionally busy season. He has done a large shipping business in chrysanthemum cuttings through an advertisement in The Review and is preparing to go extensively into carnation cuttings for next season.

San Diego, Cal.—Harry N. Daniel, who sold his interest in the Crittenden & Daniel greenhouses, at Waterloo, Ia., last November, on account of poor health, has come to this city to get well. He intends to engage again in the florists' business as soon as he recovers.

San Diego, Cal.—At the annual meeting of the San Diego Floral Association, June 13, the following board of directors was elected: L. A. Blochman, Miss Kate O. Sessions, Miss Alice M. Rainford, Guy T. Keene, George W. Marston, Julius Wangenheim and John Morley.

Clarkston, Wash.—Mrs. J. H. Clear says her business has increased fifty per cent this year and that the future looks bright. Mrs. Clear conducts her affairs as the Clarkston Greenhouse, while Mr. Clear does business as the Walnut Grove Poultry Yard. They use a combination letter-head.

South Bend, Wash.—Smith Bros., proprietors of the Riverview Greenhouses, are planning the erection of a new greenhouse, 40x200 feet. They started in the florists' business about five years ago with one house and found business so plentiful that they have since built two larger houses and made several additions.

VICTORIA, B. C.

The Market.

Trade is generally satisfactory. It is a great deal less than last year, but last year was a boom year and could not be expected to repeat itself. Indoor cut flowers are not overplentiful. This is partly explained by the fact that a greater proportion of the glass here this year was devoted to vegetables.

Good outdoor flowers are plentiful, Iris Hispanica especially so. Sweet peas are just coming in and will about fill the bill after the roses are disposed of. Peonies are sufficient for all demands and are excellent in quality.

Owing to the late spring, the bedding season did not start as early as usual and even now there is a weathering demand for this material. The trade is just about cleaned up. Geraniums and plants in pots generally held up in price, but the demand for sunnys was much below what it was expected to be. These were grown this year in large quantities in the many small new places springing up around the city. They were peddled at low prices, some of the oriental vegetable peddlers selling three dozen for 25 cents.

The prices of indoor vegetables kept up well early in the season, while the supply was light, but as soon as the supply increased the prices fell rapidly.

Various Notes

Referring to the local labor question, at present there are a great many gardeners and florists in the city who are finding it hard to get employment in any line, and more are arriving every day. Most of these are from Great Britain, but there are quite a few from eastern points. I would strongly advise anyone who thinks of coming to the coast just now, with the intention of finding a position in the trade, to go carefully. A great deal of glowing literature is spread broadcast, but I am afraid the actual conditions in some cases are not what they are represented to be.

We are to have three good flower shows this summer: The annual rose show under the auspices of the Daughters of the Empire, the summer show held by the Victoria Carnival committee August 4 to 7, and the fall show held in conjunction with the British Columbia Agricultural Society exhibition.

Funeral Work

The Market

Funeral work was heavy last week and cleared up a lot of stock. There is still too much. Wedding orders and orders for openings and school graduations have also helped out, these taking a choice grade of stock. Carnations are still scarce, but there is plenty of the other kind. All other flowers are about as last reported, with the exception of sweet peas, which have become more plentiful. A newcomer last week was the African agapanthus in white and blue. These flowers are lasting and are extremely attractive as a window decoration.

Society Meeting

The special meeting called June 17 by the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was a dismal failure from a "get-together" point of view. The attendance was all that could be desired and many good suggestions were made as to the holding of a show during 1915. It appeared to be the consensus of opinion that a large tract of land should be obtained and planted with a representative collection of native and exotic trees and shrubs, to be maintained for at least six months. Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, J. Reeves, of Beverley Hills, J. Dieterich, Theodore Payne and others all spoke in favor of this plan. It was suggested that hortiocultural shows be held at intervals and other attractions provided to draw the general public and the exposition crowds, but the discussion was such as to seem to preclude all possibility of concerted action, which was what the meeting was primarily called for. After a scrambling argument as to the form of motion to be voted on, Mr. Ford, of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., suggested that the chair appoint a committee to wait on the Chamber of Commerce and secure its aid. A strong committee was named by President Winsel. Should the nurserymen and others carry their scheme to a successful issue, either with or without the aid of the society, they will have done a good work which all will give them credit for. If I may be allowed a personal expression of feeling in this matter, I should like to thank all the florists, wholesale and retail, who attended this meeting at my own request and to express my regret that they were so cavalierly treated by an element that I feel does not represent the true feeling of the majority of the members of the society.

Various Notes.

The opening of the new quarters of the German-American bank, June 16, was the occasion of the use of quite a number of presentation pieces. The largest of all was an immense floral eagle put up by the Roserie. This must have been at least ten feet high and ten feet across the wings and was made of sweet peas, yellow centaureas, carnations and a number of choice orchids.

Among the improvements at the store of the Los Angeles Flower Market is a new stock room, 20x35 feet, enclosed with glass and equipped with all necessary shelving, tables and boxes. The ice-box has been moved to a lighter position and new lighting fixtures have been put in, greatly improving the appearance of the store and facilitating business.

Polder & Groen are cutting heavily on the better varieties of Spencer sweet peas; their lavender and pink are especially good. John Polder now has two of his brothers associated with him; the Polders and Mr. Groen all are workers. They have made great progress in the short time they have been in business. Among the latest additions is a lath house 50x250 feet, planted partly to asparagus and Boston ferns. A cellar also has been excavated for use in handling the cut flowers.

C. Lewis, of the Freeman-Lewis Co., arranged some decorations at a dinner-dance last week that were quite novel. An artificial garden was made with greens, oak leaves, bay trees and about 1,000 Easter lilies.

O. C. Saakes is handling a large number of wedding orders and turning out the work in his usual fine style.

H. Reeve Darling, of the Hayward Floral Co., figures his early June business as sixty-five per cent better than that of last year. His window displays are well kept up and fine stock in plenty is always on hand. Several large decorations have helped out here of late.

To one unacquainted with the big business done at Wright's Flower Shop, it would seem impossible to clean up the immense cuts of roses, carnations and other choice stock arriving daily from the Gardena greenhouses, but it goes somewhere and one never sees stale stock shown.

Two weeks from the beginning of the construction the framework of the large

The Market.

Business conditions last week were quite satisfactory. The call was varied; weddings, funerals and graduations, as well as a good store trade, kept things moving. Stock was plentiful. Carnations are gradually getting scarce, but Enchantress is more plentiful. Roses are also becoming scarce, except Kaisers and Carnots, which are producing good cuts. Sweet peas are coming in well from outside; the Spencer varieties are extensively grown. There is a scarcity of blooming plants; ramblers and hydrangeas are about all that are available.

Various Notes.

For the last fortnight the nurserymen's conventions were the principal subject of trade discussion here. The full reports appeared in the Nursery Department last week and this week. Among those who exhibited were the Mastodon Pansy Gardens, which made a nice showing, and Zimmerman Bros., who staged cut blooms of perennials.

Fred Young, of Walla Walla, Wash., has recently taken in a partner. The firm is to be known as Young & Lester.

John Olsen, the local woodsman, is being congratulated on the arrival of a baby girl. There seems to be no race suicide among the local florists.

Paul Riegelmann is sending some choice sweet peas to the local markets.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The weather continues rather warm, with no abatement in the quantities of stock being sent into town. Work for school commencements forms the bulk of the retail trade. There has also been a fair amount of wedding work, which has been well distributed among the various stores. Funeral orders, on the other hand, have not been numerous for the last few weeks. It is still useless to attempt to give wholesalers' quotations, as there seems to be no fixed price for anything. Sweet peas are not as plentiful as they usually are at this time and the chances are that they will be still scarcer in the near future. Irises are over for the season. Gladioli are about in their prime and they move fairly well, but at lower prices than last year. Dahlias are commencing to put in an appearance, but it will be several weeks before they will be plentiful.

Various Notes.

Leo Dederichs, well known to the retail trade here, is on a few weeks' visit to the northern part of the state.

George Fitzgerald is at present with the C. C. Navlet Co., at the firm's San Jose nurseries.

the top leaves dry up altogether. I have sprayed with Paris green twice, but without effect. D. H.

Poisonous sprays, such as Paris green, are of no value in combating winged insects, such as you send a sample of. This particular fly I am not acquainted with, but if you would spray with kerosene emulsion, whale oil soap, Aphine, Ivory soap, or one of the nicotine extracts at advertised strength, you should be easily able to control this pest. A contact spray is necessary to destroy this type of insect. Poisons are only of value where worms or caterpillars are at work on the foliage, or when it is made up in the form of poisoned bait.

Peonies were again shown in large numbers. R. & J. Farquhar & Co. showed some thousands of fine flowers. T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. had a fine collection of named varieties. G. W. Page had a display of good seedlings. Breck-Robinson Co. had a fine collection. W. C. Rust, gardener to Mrs. C. G. Weld, had two large vases and E. J. Shaylor his usual stand of good things. Some of Mr. Shaylor's best flowers were Gloire de Chenonceaux, Eugene Verdier, La Tendresse, Mme. Emile Lemoine, Rosa Bonheur, Milton Hill, Claire Dubois, Marie Lemoine, Mme. de Galhau, Henry Murger and some excellent seedlings.

Duncan Finlayson was first for twenty-five varieties hardy perennials in the private gardeners' class, and T. D. Hatfield, gardener to Walter Hunnewell, was second. In the commercial classes M. P. Haendler, proprietor of the Old Town Nurseries, won the silver medal, the bronze medal going to Eastern Nurseries, each having splendid displays. The Mount Desert Nurseries had an imposing bank of herbaceous flowers. Saxifragas, Incarvillea Delavayi and German iris in large variety were fine here.

Robert Cameron, of the Harvard Botanical Gardens, had a couple of large, well arranged tanks of nymphæas and other aquatics, also a large display of fuchsias with a groundwork of Panicum virgatum. Mrs. Frederick Ayer had the best tables of Campanula Medium and Mrs. J. L. Gardner of sweet williams. Donald McKenzie, gardener to E. B. Dane, had a display of Gladiolus nanus. William Sim had a stand of superb Spencer sweet peas.

J. T. Butterworth had some fine specimen plants of Miltonia vexillaria, also cattleya hybrids. F. J. Dolansky had a collection of cattleyas, including a huge mass of C. Mossie carrying nearly 100 flowers. Walter Hunnewell secured a first-class certificate for Lælio-cattleya Rex (Lælio-Cattleya Amanda x Cattleya Rex), and E. B. Dane a similar award for a well bloomed plant of the new Dendrobium Sander, color pure white with violet lines in the lip.

William Anderson, gardener to Bayard Thayer, secured a silver medal for a fine collection of named varieties and seedlings of philadelphus. Some of the best sorts were Avalanche, Coquette de Blanche, Etoile Rose, Rosaie, Boule d'Argent, Virginale, Candelabre, Pavillon Blanc and Bouquet Blanc.

Strawberries were exceptionally fine. Marshall once more proved to be easily the champion variety, Golden Gate being its nearest competitor. Vegetables made a great showing, the peas, tomatoes, lettuce and cucumbers being superb.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

Henry B. Chase, Vice-President.

J. B. Pilkington, President.

Peter Youngers, Treasurer.

New Officers of the American Association of Nurserymen Elected at the Portland Convention.

THE Interstate Commerce Commission has denied the application of E. H. Hinton, railroad agent, on the ground that not sufficient reason was shown, to establish a rate of 30 cents per hundred pounds on carload shipments of nursery stock, valued at not to exceed 3 cents per pound, from Chase and Huntsville, Ala., to points in Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois.

STRINGENT regulations intended to prevent the spread of gypsy and brown-tail moths were adopted at the annual meeting of the State Board of Agriculture of Rhode Island a few days ago. The regulations authorize the state entomologist to prevent the shipment of lumber, trees or nursery products from affected sections of the state into unaffected sections, and permit him, if in his judgment it appears necessary, to order a quarantine of the affected localities. The state entomologist also was authorized to revoke the license of any nurseryman whenever he deemed it necessary for the prevention of the spread of the pests.

EVERGREENS IN DEMAND.

D. Hill is enthusiastic over the business in evergreens, in marked contrast to the nurserymen who specialize in fruit trees, and especially apples. Mr. Hill's business at Dundee, Ill., was established in 1855 and was incorporated in 1910. In view of his fifty-eight years in the line and the fact that the company claims to be the largest grower of evergreens in America, Mr. Hill's optimism is infectious.

"The season just past has been a most satisfactory one in every respect," he said to The Review June 3; "sales have been pleasing and planting conditions favorable.

"Prospects look good for fall trade.

NURSERYMEN'S CONVENTION.

[For a comprehensive account of the proceedings of the first days, committee reports, papers read, election of the Pacific Coast Association, etc., see full report published exclusively in last week's issue of The Review.]

Officers Elected.

At the closing session of the thirty-eighth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, held at the Hotel Multnomah, Portland, Ore., June 20, the following officers were elected:

President, J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; vice-president, Henry B. Chase, Huntsville, Ala.; secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.; executive committee, Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; P. A. Dix, Roy, Utah.

Location of 1914 meeting, Cleveland, Ohio.

Date of 1914 meeting, June 24 to 26.

Denounce Free Stock.

The free distribution of seeds and seedlings by the U. S. forest service, Congress and the state experiment stations has reached a point where it has aroused the nursery trade in opposition. It was denounced by many speakers at the convention and President Meehan, in his annual address, said: "We still have the activities of the national nurseries to consider and contend with. These nurseries advertise to ship for cost. This is to the detriment of our business, and it seems that there should be no more reason for such competition in our lines than in any other business or industry."

The Laws the Theme.

The principal subject of discussion this year was the laws which are so hampering the trade. The law in one form or another was the subject of more than half the papers, addresses and reports. For years the trade has been suffering from the multiplicity of laws, and from unwise interpretation, but of late it has become so much worse as to be the one thing the nurserymen think and talk about.

The federal quarantine law came in for condemnation as an unnecessary burden on the nursery trade and as of no compensatory value to any other interest. J. McHutchison presented an exhaustive paper, in addition to the report of the legislative committee, in which he showed where several of the provisions of the act, which had been modified in many particulars through the united efforts of the nurserymen and florists, were almost ruinous to the industry. He showed where, under the act, the trade in this country suffered, but that it also hit the growers, and exporters abroad, that in quite a number of instances the law, through its drastic quarantine provisions had greatly increased the cost of imported stock, all of which fell on the ultimate consumer. He called attention to the fact that the growers and nurserymen abroad were a unit, almost, in declaring the law was of little or no value as a protective measure, because of the rigid inspection laws of the foreign countries.

Mr. McHutchison told how the original regulations had been modified, five out of nine suggestions for changes having been accepted, but said: "There are still other features that work the most serious hardships on our trade. The problem is one of international character and the act serves to fence us in from the rest of the world. The members of the board have been reasonable with us and have listened to protests, but at the same time the hard and fast provisions of the law are still such as to put us under a serious handicap. Inspection is all right, but it should be done fairly and not be too rigid. Entomologists have discovered pests the nurserymen never heard of, and quarantine is placed against nursery stock because of pests that never affect it."

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

Henry B. Chase, Vice-President.

J. B. Pilkington, President.

Peter Youngers, Treasurer.

New Officers of the American Association of Nurserymen Elected at the Portland Convention.

THE Interstate Commerce Commission has denied the application of E. H. Hinton, railroad agent, on the ground that not sufficient reason was shown, to establish a rate of 30 cents per hundred pounds on carload shipments of nursery stock, valued at not to exceed 3 cents per pound, from Chase and Huntsville, Ala., to points in Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois.

STRINGENT regulations intended to prevent the spread of gypsy and brown-tail moths were adopted at the annual meeting of the State Board of Agriculture of Rhode Island a few days ago. The regulations authorize the state entomologist to prevent the shipment of lumber, trees or nursery products from affected sections of the state into unaffected sections, and permit him, if in his judgment it appears necessary, to order a quarantine of the affected localities. The state entomologist also was authorized to revoke the license of any nurseryman whenever he deemed it necessary for the prevention of the spread of the pests.

EVERGREENS IN DEMAND.

D. Hill is enthusiastic over the business in evergreens, in marked contrast to the nurserymen who specialize in fruit trees, and especially apples. Mr. Hill's business at Dundee, Ill., was established in 1855 and was incorporated in 1910. In view of his fifty-eight years in the line and the fact that the company claims to be the largest grower of evergreens in America, Mr. Hill's optimism is infectious.

"The season just past has been a most satisfactory one in every respect," he said to The Review June 3; "sales have been pleasing and planting conditions favorable.

"Prospects look good for fall trade.

NURSERYMEN'S CONVENTION.

[For a comprehensive account of the proceedings of the first days, committee reports, papers read, election of the Pacific Coast Association, etc., see full report published exclusively in last week's issue of The Review.]

Officers Elected.

At the closing session of the thirty-eighth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, held at the Hotel Multnomah, Portland, Ore., June 20, the following officers were elected:

President, J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; vice president, Henry B. Chase, Huntsville, Ala.; secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.; executive committee, Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; P. A. Dix, Roy, Utah.

Location of 1914 meeting, Cleveland, Ohio.

Date of 1914 meeting, June 21 to 26.

Denounce Free Stock.

The free distribution of seeds and seedlings by the U. S. forest service, Congress and the state experiment stations has reached a point where it has aroused the nursery trade in opposition. It was denounced by many speakers at the convention and President Meehan, in his annual address, said: "We still have the activities of the national nurseries to consider and contend with. These nurseries advertise to ship for cost. This is to the detriment of our business, and it seems that there should be no more reason for such competition in our lines than in any other business or industry."

The Laws the Theme.

The principal subject of discussion this year was the laws which are so hampering the trade. The law in one form or another was the subject of more than half the papers, addresses and reports. For years the trade has been suffering from the multiplicity of laws, and from unwise interpretation, but of late it has become so much worse as to be the one thing the nurserymen think and talk about.

The federal quarantine law came in for condemnation as an unnecessary burden on the nursery trade and as of no compensatory value to any other interest. J. McClutchison presented an exhaustive paper, in addition to the report of the legislative committee, in which he showed where several of the provisions of the act, which had been modified in many particulars through the united efforts of the nurserymen and florists, were almost ruinous to the industry. He showed where, under the act, the trade in this country suffered, but that it also hit the growers, and exporters abroad, that in quite a number of instances the law, through its drastic quarantine provisions had greatly increased the cost of imported stock, all of which fell on the ultimate consumer. He called attention to the fact that the growers and nurserymen abroad were a unit, almost, in declaring the law was of little or no value as a protective measure, because of the rigid inspection laws of the foreign countries.

Mr. McClutchison told how the original regulations had been modified, five it was found impossible to form any definite plan on such short notice and the incoming president was authorized to appoint a committee to secure copies of all horticultural laws now in force in all states and territories and to make a digest thereof so that a law may be evolved which shall "develop, foster, conserve and protect all the interests of horticulture in all its several divisions." The committee is to consist of one member from the Pacific coast district, one from the Mississippi valley and one from the Atlantic coast states.

The Attendance.

Judged by attendance it cannot be said that the A. A. N. was justified in going to the Pacific coast. The attendance of members of the national body was only about sixty-five, most of whom were western men. The Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association had the largest attendance in its history, there being about 125 present, but the national organization gained only fifteen new members during the week.

The attendance was the principal factor in the decision to hold the 1914 convention at a central city. Milwaukee, San Francisco, Niagara Falls, New Orleans and Cedar Rapids, Iowa, were after the convention, but San Francisco's invitation was withdrawn so as to center fire on the meeting place for 1915, the world's fair year. Cleveland had a large plurality.

Suggestions that the association select a permanent convention city and national headquarters gained some strength, but not sufficient to reach the floor of the convention.

Date of Meeting.

Some minor changes in the constitution and by-laws were made on recommendation of President Meehan, but "What's the constitution among friends?" was the argument when it came to considering the date. The laws provide for calling the convention to order on the third Wednesday in June, but the majority considered the date too early, especially in the event of a late season like that of this year, and it was voted to meet in Cleveland June 24 to 26, 1914.

Hospitalities.

The A. A. N. never has been so hospitably received as at Portland. The

The HIT of the Season

In the past season every first-class flower store the country over had calls for bouquets made up with a certain small pink rose. In some stores it was sold under the name of and we believe we supplied all the cut buds except for one lot grown in the east from plants obtained from us last year. We shipped cut buds to New York, Chicago and many other cities. The rose was the hit of Fifth avenue and its fame spread throughout the country, resulting in a demand for the buds in every store that caters to the good trade. It is in great request for corsage bouquets, Colonial bouquets, boutonnieres, etc. Appreciating that because of our distance from the largest markets we can not handle the demand for cut buds, we have prepared to supply young plants to growers who know a money-making novelty when they see it.

Various Notes.

The consensus of opinion was that the season of 1913 has not been an especially good one, due to a variety of causes not likely to prove permanent.

The oldest nurseryman present was A. Miller, of Milton, Ore., who is 83 years of age. The man farthest from home was M. Lavavasseur, of Orleans, France, who is on a tour of the United States.

The Market.

While there are more than enough flowers of every variety to meet all demands, the stock is not quite so plentiful as it has been. There is still an oversupply of greens and of lily of the valley. Some good carnations are to be had at from 50 cents to $2 per hundred, but they are not selling. A large quantity of these are going to the street men to be sold at "slaughtered" prices. The supply of Easter lilies has shortened materially and the asking price is now between $6 and $8 per hundred, as against $2 per hundred last week. Cattleyas are in little demand at from $4 to $6 per dozen. The season's glut is about over, but they are still plentiful. Asters are the latest addition to the market, but these are not as yet arriving in swamping quantities.

According to one of the large dealers, the bottom has about dropped out

The Gateway to the South.

Last week's business proved to be fairly good. There was an active demand the entire week, that kept the wholesalers busy. Because of the large supply, prices were low; in fact, buyers' prices generally ruled. Shipping business is good.

The rose supply continues large. The roses, too, are meeting with the best demand. The strictly summer roses sell easily, mostly at fair prices. Others are generally jobbed at any reasonable offer. The supply of Beauties is equal to the demand. The carnation supply is also large and the best of them sell only at low prices. The white and lighter shades find a fair call, while the darker colors, unless extra good, find no market at all. The gladiolus cut is increasing in size and some fine specimens are offered. Excellent peonies meet with only an ordinary demand. Valley has an unsteady market. Some fine sweet peas are coming to the wholesale houses. Pond lilies, though good, sell only fairly well. To the supply of green goods has been added huckleberry from the south, in the place of wild smilax.

Various Notes.

Mrs. O. Hetch, of Leesburg, Fla., is spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Windram.

C. E. Critchell has received a lot of huckleberry from the south.

Herman Ullrich, of the Ullrich Greenhouses, Tiffin, O., was in the city last week. Other visitors were A. Miller, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, and Ross E. Adgate, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh and Cleveland. C. H. H.

LANCASTER, PA.

The Market.

Last week business kept up in good shape, in spite of the intensely hot and dry weather. Golden Gate, Richmond, Bride, My Maryland, Sunburst and Killarney roses are of almost as good quality as one would get in high season, but carnations are getting smaller and smaller every day. The outdoor flowers keep the market well filled; the hardy varieties, sweet peas and snapdragons are ready sellers.

There has been a lot of funeral work in circulation. Some large weddings took place last week and June 19 the annual commencement exercises of the nurses' school of the Lancaster General hospital drew a large attendance and created some demand for flowers.

Club Meeting.

The Lancaster Florists' Club held its regular monthly meeting with an attendance of about thirty members. One of the finest collections of hardy flowers ever brought together in Lancaster county was shown at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, where the meeting was held. The exhibitors were H. D. Rohrer, B. F. Barr, A. M. Herr, Rudolph Nagel, Fritz Spinner, J. P. Siebold and H. B. Weaver. A paper on hardy flowers of commercial value for cutting for Memorial day was read by H. K. Rohrer.

The H. F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, had a fine exhibit of their new geranium, Helen Michell, and a talk regarding its qualities was given by D. J. Keohane, representing the firm. The club voted a substantial contribution toward erecting a memorial to W. R. Smith.

The annual picnic will be held at Hershey, Pa., Tuesday, July 15, when the florists will be the guests of Milton S. Hershey. The next meeting will be held in August, and asters and gladioli will be discussed.

Visitors last week were L. F. Strassheim, of the Botanical Decorating Co., Chicago; Mr. Meyer, representing Neuer & Hoffmann, New York; John H. Tasker, manager of the Walton Floral Co., Rice's Landing, Pa., and D. J. Keohane, of H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to look us up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

JOSEPH HEACOCK CO., Wyncote, Pa., Railway Station, Jenkintown.

AMHERST, MASS.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, which is composed largely of members of the floricultural classes, held an exhibition of cut flowers during Monday and Tuesday of commencement week, June 16 and 17. This exhibition was largely attended by townspeople and commencement visitors and proved an attractive feature of the week. A large number of named varieties of peonies were on exhibition from the trial plots at the college; also many of the herbaceous perennials which are in flower at this season. The college also exhibited varieties of carnations, roses and sweet peas.

This exhibition was supplemented through the generosity of many of the commercial and private growers of the vicinity. A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., sent splendid vases of Dark Pink Killarney, White Killarney and Lady Hillingdon roses. W. H. Elliott, of Madbury, N. H., and Brighton, Mass., sent vases of American Beauty, Christine Miller, Mrs. Taft and Lady Hillingdon roses. Patten & Co., of Tewksbury, sent a vase of Princess Dagmar carnations. O. D. Allyn, a rose enthusiast of Holyoke, Mass., showed thirty-six varieties of hybrid perpetual and hybrid tea roses. S. A. Wilde, of Taunton, Mass., sent forty varieties of outdoor roses, and sixty types and varieties were received from Elizabeth park, at Hartford, Conn.

The last year has been a progressive one for the department of floriculture. There were eight members in the graduating class and all of these have secured desirable positions. E. A. W.

GERANIUMS

THE report comes from all sections that Geraniums are more in demand this season than ever and that all good stock will be cleaned up. We have an excellent lot of young stock ready to ship but, if you wish to grow your own stock for another season, but why bother with it, as we make it our business to provide your stock for you, to be shipped any time in the fall or winter you have the room, after Chrysanthemums or other crops have been removed? Our stock houses of Standard sorts alone, as now planted, contain 300,000 plants, as pretty as you ever saw. Then we have Novelty stock, Ivy-leaved sorts, Scented and Variegated varieties to the extent that we are confident we can take care of any order you may place with us. Think it over. Can you afford to bother with the stock yourself for $18.50 per 1000 for 2-inch plants?

SCARLET BEDDER

We have bought of Elmer D. Smith & Co. stock of this superior Scarlet Geranium and offer good, strong plants from 3-inch pots, for immediate shipment, at $1.50 per doz., $10.00 per 100.

The Market.

Summer is here, and with it an abundance of summer flowers, such as Spanish iris, peonies, gaillardias, sweet williams, Canterbury bells, coreopsis, etc. Sweet peas are quite plentiful. They are mostly of the Spencer variety and excellent in quality. The price has dropped. Valley is rather scarce. Roses are nearing the end of the season, deteriorating in quality. There are no Taft roses at this writing. Outdoor roses are fairly good. White Killarney, Ulrich Brunner, Frau Karl Drusehki, Paul Neyron and Mrs. J. Laing are among the best sellers. Attractive baskets of Spanish iris arranged in water are finding favor with the summer flower buyers.

Peonies have not been good this year and the season seems short because of the warm spell, which seems to have made them drop their petals or curl. Carnations continue to arrive in splendid condition and they bring a fair price. Harrisii lilies are scarce and so are callas. The new crop of ferns has come and they are crisp and firm and of good color. Asparagus and cut adiantum are plentiful. Nearly all bedding work is done, but veranda boxes and vases are still being filled.

Various Notes.

N. F. Higgins is repairing the benches at his greenhouses and is turning out some of his winter plants and potted stock.

Meecham & Hassell had an attractive landscape effect in their window last week—a miniature pond with mossy banks, background of palms and peonies, and groups of sweet peas.

Mark Aitken did some high class work for the Means funeral at Brookfield, June 9.

The Springfield Horticultural Society held its annual rose show in the Science building June 17 and 18, both afternoon and evening. Entries were divided into six classes. J. W. Adams had a display of larkspurs. G. R. Davis, florist for Forest park, had a varied display of seasonable flowers. Joseph Aumer had a collection of thirty different kinds of roses. C. W. Johnson had a collection of hand-colored photos of various flowers.

Visitors: Mr. Hall, of Wertheimer Bros., New York; L. D. Bryant, of A. H. Hews & Co., Cambridge, Mass.

E. C. A.

Sedalia, Mo.—The Archias Floral Co. is adding two greenhouses, each 30x86½. The improvements also include a new display conservatory and palm house, 30x56, at the rear of the office department.

Annual Outing.

The twenty-seventh annual outing of the New Orleans Horticultural Society was held June 19, at Spanish Fort. The popular restaurant Over the Rhine was selected for the festivities, and every chair at the large table stretching over the full length of the banquet hall was occupied. The monthly business meeting, which was to be held preceding the banquet and at which the nomination of officers for the coming term should have taken place, was dispensed with. It was a record-breaking gathering that enjoyed the splendid menu, and mirth and good fellowship reigned supreme. A male quartette rendered many popular selections, thereby adding considerably to the general pleasure. Secretary C. R. Panter served in his unique style as toastmaster, and during the evening called on everyone present to make some remarks. The responses came cheerfully and pledges of coöperation in the future uplifting of the trade and the constant beautifying of the city were renewed. At a late hour the banquet came to a close and the committee in charge received the heartiest congratulations from everyone on its great success.

The following members were in attendance: F. Dormoy, P. Ackermann, H. Kraak, B. M. Wichers, Otto Abele, P. A. Chopin, C. L. Ory, A. Alost, H. Scheuermann, F. J. Reyes, J. F. Bollwinkle, E. A. Farley, Th. Betz, F. E. Brooker, R. P. Steckler, J. Bernard, J. Reck, M. J. Gurtler, H. C. Doescher, C. R. Panter, M. Scheinuk, D. Newsham, P. Abele, R. Eichling, H. Rehfeld, H. E. Dressel, H. Papworth, R. E. Simons, G. Thomas and E. Baker.

The arrangements committee consisted of P. Abele, chairman; D. Newsham, C. R. Panter and H. C. Doescher, ex-officio. The flowers and Asparagus plumosus for the table decorations, likewise the boutonnieres for each plate, were donated by U. J. Virgin. The color scheme was red and white. Phlox decussata, Canna King Humbert and Alaska daisies were used for the vases, and cactus dahlias in various shades of red for the boutonnieres. Richard Eichling, foreman on Mr. Virgin's nursery, carried out the decoration and was highly praised for its effective style. R. E.

PEONIES.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

...NEWS NOTES...

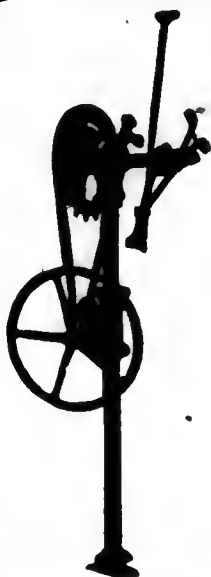

Norwalk, O.—Arthur Doebel, who styles himself a "new beginner" in the business, says he can not complain of spring trade, although there has been some price cutting to contend with.

Valatie, N. Y.—F. H. Berlin, of Wm. J. Cramer's greenhouses, reports that ground has been broken for several new houses. He also states that plans are being made to grow lilies for the market and that a fine crop of Horseshoe Brand giganteum is already in evidence.

La Porte, Ind.—The stone wall surrounding the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Crawford is an attraction now for the whole city. From one end of the wall to the other, the top is covered with mountain pinks, which have climbed up and over the wall from the inside and drop from the top on the outside, making a pretty blanket of pink for the wall.

Milford, N. H.—James Day, the dealer in greens, says that western orders have not been quite as heavy this year as last, but he thinks this slight decrease in demand is easily accounted for, since many of his customers had a good stock of moss on hand and the unusually mild winter made it possible for many of them to go out and help themselves to a nearby supply. Still, he has nearly sold out, having only about enough stock on hand for the coming holidays.

DO YOU KNOW

that we are universally acknowledged as the leading manufacturers of ventilating apparatus and greenhouse fittings? Did you ever stop to reason why this is? There are older manufacturers than we, in fact we are practically the youngest in the field. Don't you think that we must have lots of things a lot better? It will be worth your time to thoroughly investigate. Let us send you a catalogue; drop us a card now.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

COKE AS FUEL.

Will burning coke in a cast-iron hot water boiler do any harm to the boiler? The draft in my boiler is not strong enough to burn soft coal. I have tried using soft coal and coke together in the early spring, but do not know how it would act in really cold weather. I have just heard that the use of coke injures stoves. I can purchase coke at a reasonable price now, but should like to get a little information before putting in any great quantity. A. L. S.

Coke makes an extremely hot fire and might crack the sections in boilers having large surfaces, owing to unequal expansion. This would be especially likely to happen in boilers with horizontal sections. In small boilers this would be less likely to occur, and there would be far less danger of such injury in burning coke in a hot water boiler than there would be in burning it in a stove.

In burning coke the draft should be opened until a bright fire is obtained. Then the draft should be closed, as otherwise the coke would quickly burn out. The fire should be banked with ashes at night.

been running the boiler with steam, but when I get a pressure of fifteen pounds on, it leaks. Would the boiler answer for hot water, or do you think it would probably continue to leak? Is there any way in which it could be repaired?
C. A.

In case the boiler only leaks when under pressure, it is not likely to leak when used for hot water unless the expansion tank is considerably elevated. A small crack can often be stopped by means of litharge. Make it into a paste with linseed oil and, after filling the crack as well as possible, burn it off with a torch. Repeat the application several times.

HEATING SYSTEM A FAILURE.

Will you please give me some enlightenment in regard to my heating troubles? I have one greenhouse, 16x50, nine feet high to the ridge and four feet high at the sides. The walls are double boarded, with paper between. There is glass in one end and the boiler shed adjoins the other end. I have a Lord & Burnham hot water boiler, No. 418 W, in a pit six feet deep. The highest temperature that I can obtain is 35 degrees when the outside temperature is 6 degrees above zero.

One 3-inch feed pipe rises from the boiler to the level of the greenhouse floor, where it is connected by a manifold to three 2-inch pipes going all the way around the house to the highest point, two feet above the level of the floor. Connection is there made by a manifold to two 2-inch pipes which return to the boiler pit and enter a 3-inch pipe leading to the boiler. There is a drop of five feet from the floor to the boiler. The expansion tank is connected to the manifold and is two feet above it. There is an air valve at the highest point and one on the 3-inch pipe over the boiler. The smokestack is six and one-half inches in diameter and about ten feet high. Have I too many pipes in the system or too small a boiler?
C. H. W.

The unsatisfactory working of the heating plant is probably due to the length of the circuit, nearly 250 feet, in small pipe carried but a short distance above the top of the boiler. The cheapest way to improve the circulation would be to attach a mercury circulator to the system, but it will probably be more satisfactory in the end if some slight changes are made in the piping. I would suggest carrying the flow pipe to a point about two feet below the ridge of the greenhouse. Connect the expansion tank at the highest point and then run the main to the farther end of the house, giving it a slight fall—about one inch in ten feet. There take off two 2½-inch pipes. Drop these down and connect each with a coil of four 2-inch pipes, which should run along the end of the house and then along the side back to the boiler.

Still another way, and one which would utilize the present piping to the best advantage, would be to carry the 3-inch flow pipe into the greenhouse

COAL CALL MEANS PROSPERITY.

Business men, when talking about the possibility of hard times, have three particular themes which attract their attention and stir their imagination. One is that steel is the barometer of industry and hence, as steel goes up or down, so goes the rest of the country. The steel trade, they say, just now is dull, and new orders are not coming in. This, they claim, is a forerunner of a let-down in business. Another indicator of possible trouble ahead is the shortage of money. When the banks begin a contraction of credit the alarmists look for the failure of a few so-called representative houses in New York, the spread of terror throughout the country and the automatic cessation of business, as a result of lack of confidence in the stability of people in nowise connected with the sales concern. Now that the bankers are inclined not to lend money for speculative purposes, the alarmists see ahead another period of oppression. There are also those who believe that a reduction in the tariff always has caused financial depression, and, therefore, always will. Now that we are about to have a revision of the tariff, these are preaching that the restriction in steel and the shortage of money are but the efforts on the part of shrewd persons to discount the surest results of tariff revision.

Regardless of all these so-called sure indications of trouble, the testimony of the coal trade does not travel in that direction. From every part of the market comes practically the same statement, namely, that already the larger operators are sold upon contracts to as great an extent as they dare sell, seeing ahead a likelihood of labor trouble and a shortage of cars. Coal operators, knowing that the railways lack 27,000 cars of being in as good position as they were this time last year, are far from relieved on the question of an abundant car supply this fall. In fact, they say, if the railroads are beginning now to be pushed for equipment, there is no hope of escaping from a serious car shortage in September, October and November.

As to labor trouble, the situation is far from either clear or comfortable. To be sure, the major coal-producing states are tied up for another nine months on contract with the United Mine Workers of America. They may expect more or less freedom from strikes and annoyance during those nine months, but it is out of the question to expect complete immunity from strike troubles regardless of an anti-strike clause. However, there are some states outside of the union zone which are not expected to be free from trouble, West Virginia and eastern Kentucky being almost sure of having some disagreeable times with the miners before this year is over. Some of the buyers, of course, are discounting that interruption, in the coal they are now putting in storage. Certainly some of the operators are discounting that interruption in the coal they are now trying to sell for storage purposes. Thus a small volume of business now moving represents

For a number of years we have furnished our customers with piping plans. Please remember that the plans we design are not "trust to luck" or "rule of thumb" plans, but are based on scientific engineering principles, combined with a practical experience of over a quarter of a century in heating engineering.

Our heating plans are far ahead of ordinary piping systems, and we claim that no one in this trade has had the wide and varied experience of our Heating Engineer, in this direction.

Any size pipe can be used with the Kroeschell System—1½-inch, 1½-inch, 2-inch or 4-inch pipe. No deep boiler pits required.

The Kroeschell Threaded Tube Piping System is being installed for many modern greenhouse establishments, for which we furnish plans and tools.

This system of piping is ahead of all others—Every customer has ordered again—Investigate it—Best and cheapest for commercial ranges and private conservatories.

Small Valve Control

Kroeschell System

The conservatories of Mr. Charles P. Limbert, of Grand Rapids, Mich., are built of the latest type of trussed iron frame construction, furnished by the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago. The Heating System was designed by the Kroeschell Greenhouse Engineering Department, and the equipment includes a No. 7 Kroeschell Boiler and Threaded Tube Piping System.

Each greenhouse is divided into two sections with continuous piping, arranged so that the same, or different temperatures can be secured in each section. Very small valves are used to control the radiation (distinctly a Kroeschell feature).

The central heating system is operated by hot water gravity circulation and is used to heat the following:

Residence of Mr. Charles P. Limbert, supplied with 1800 sq. ft. of radiation, 220 ft. from boiler. Conservatories at residence, the greenhouses, also gardener's apartments (with 1200 sq. ft. of radiation), work rooms, carriage rooms and garage.

Residence and Conservatory

220 ft. from Boiler

"VERY SATISFACTORY IN EVERY RESPECT."

"Enclosed please find nineteen pictures taken from different positions of buildings and greenhouse, heated by central heating plant equipped with one of your boilers, which has proven very satisfactory in every respect.

"The gardener likes the Boiler, Piping System, and the valve control which was installed according to your plans and specifications.

"This is the first winter the central heating plant has been in operation and we find it economical and more satisfactory in every way than the former arrangement of separate heating plants for the different buildings.

"We have about 1800 feet of radiation in the residence, which is located 220 feet from the boiler and we only lose 2 degrees of heat in running the water from the boiler to the residence."

purchases of a precautionary character. A large percentage of the buying, however, is due entirely to desire of, or to current needs for steam making, which in itself reflects intensified activity of business.

The clear indication in the sale of coal, both for immediate shipment and on contract, is that this is going to be a year of extraordinary business activity, influenced only by the crop market reports.

devised by him for use on railroad trains, on which he is seeking a patent.

Florists and others located in Anacostia are receiving their water bills for the coming year, due July 1. The old minimum rate has been raised from $4.50 to $5. Water meters are soon to be supplied to this section of the city and this will probably result in a higher cost to the florists.

William F. Gude spent several days last week at Barnegat Bay, N. Y., as the guest of John Westcott.

Washington merchants are again facing an eight-hour work day for women, a bill having been introduced into the House. There is little doubt that some such bill will be passed eventually. Florists employ but few girls and they will be replaced by men.

A movement is now on foot to secure the closing of all business houses from the evening of July 3 to the following Monday morning. It is hardly probable that the florists will join in the movement, because of the nature of their business. C. L. L.

Camden, N. Y.—Brown Bros., who purchased the florists' and nursery business of Harvey B. Snow last month, have already made a name for themselves in this town. Their decorations at the Klossner-Paddock wedding, one of the largest affairs of the season, won much praise.

The Market.

Business last week was better than expected. The cut flower market had a good run. Funeral work was heavier than usual. Decorations for weddings are still holding out well; in fact, June decorations this year show a large increase over last year. Outdoor cut flowers are coming in more plentifully, but are poorer than usual for this time of year, on account of the unusually dry weather. The quality of the indoor cut flowers is also showing the effect of the hot, dry summer days, though the quantity is abundant. Roses are in heaviest demand and Killarneys are the leaders. Easter lilies are selling fast, especially for funerals, and are cleaned up rapidly. Carnations bring fair prices for so late in the season, but they are small. Sweet peas and gladioli are arriving more heavily than last week. Asters are on the market and are good for this early date.

Various Notes.

E. H. Frandsen & Co., on the Spring Branch road, met with some trouble last week; it seems that luck is against them at least once a year. The delivery boy laid a cigarette on the desk in the office and set fire to the building, also burning from one-third to one-half of six greenhouses and all the boiler fixtures. The damage is estimated at $2,500. Mr. Frandsen was severely burned.

Patrick Larkin, who started business on East Twelfth street, has been appointed clerk of the police commissioners. This position nets him a salary of $2,400 a year.

Ed Ellsworth reports that his spring business was immense and that he sold out everything in the bedding line. Funeral work has been keeping him exceedingly busy of late.

L. G. Brown has finished planting his mums, which look quite promising. He has been kept exceptionally busy decorating.

Nelson Jarrett is through with his spring work and is now busy in his cherry orchard. He says that cherries are easy to sell, but it is difficult to get pickers.

Chas. E. Heite is anxiously awaiting the finishing of the planting in the greenhouses, so he can start on his fishing trips, and he has all the good fishing places spotted.

Jacob Tobler has had a fine business this year, with a large increase over

A. F. Barbe has all of his mums planted and they look exceptionally fine. His stock is hard to beat.

Charles Laundry says his spring business exceeded his expectations. He sold out clean in everything. His place is surrounded by a fine residence district, which is highly favorable to his business.

The Market.

Since the commencement exercises are at an end and all the schools closed, business will, no doubt, be quiet for a time, although last week it was brisk. Stock of every description is plentiful and some kinds too abundant. Carnations are small and sweet peas not of as good quality as is desired. There are still a few large wedding orders booked for June and these will keep some of the retailers busy.

Various Notes.

W. B. Brown is contemplating the purchase of a piece of property in the vicinity of his present location, upon which to erect a store and conservatory. The lease on his present place expires April, 1914.

J. F. Sullivan had a special sale of valley at 25 cents per dozen June 18. While many were disposed of by this sale, it is doubtful if it proved at all profitable to Mr. Sullivan. Still the grower of the valley realized something at least, through Mr. Sullivan's efforts.

Albert Pochelon, of the Bemb Floral Co., is the proud owner of a handsome new seven-passenger touring car. Mr. Pochelon can use a seven-passenger car quite readily, as there are just five little ones in the family.

Otto Blatt, foreman for Gus. Taepke, left for his old home in Germany June 11 on the steamer President Lincoln. He will remain away until fall. S.

GREENWICH, CONN.

The Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting at Doran's hall June 13. The second annual summer show will be held June 20 and 21 in the town hall of this city and the third annual fall exhibition October 31 and November 1 in the armory at Stamford, Conn. It has been decided to hold the third annual outing at Rye Beach in the first part of August, the date to be given later.

The exhibits at the June meeting were all of a high standard; the awards were as follows:

Mr. McAllister, honorable mention for vase of Conrad F. Meyer roses and Goudy strawberries.

Thomas Ryan, honorable mention for vase of sweet peas.

James Tierney, honorable mention for collection of sweet peas.

Oscar Addor, cultural certificate for well flowered specimen Cattleya Mendellii.

D. D. Maternowski, highly commended for Begonia Lloydii.

W. H. Guermansprey, highly commended for collection of peonies.

Dan Pastori, vote of thanks for vase of sweet-williams.

TANKAGE

PRACTICALLY every grower now finds that one of his chief problems is an adequate supply of first-class Fertilizer—the available quantity of barnyard manures is inadequate and street and stable manures are poor, impure and of uncertain value, though expensive. Large growers are meeting the need of a safe, sure, well-balanced fertilizer of unlimited supply by using

Range Recently Completed for Seattle Park

FROM our factory at Elizabeth, New Jersey, to Seattle, Washington, is a long way to ship materials for an iron frame range the size of this one. Think of what the freight alone must be on a job of such magnitude. The American people, and especially the Western ones, are noted for their willingness to pay the price necessary to secure a good thing; provided that thing is backed up by the sterling reputation of the firm that manufactures it.

So, in the case of Seattle Park, as our friend, Mr. Post of Postum, says: "There's a reason."

Whether it is a magnificent layout proposition like Bronx Park Conservatories, New York, or one of our splendid little $250 houses, matters not. The same high grade material and thoroughness of workmanship go into any and all of them. You can depend on depending on Hitchings' work, whatever or wherever it is. Send for catalogue.

Canton, O.—Charles Brown, of the Brown Floral Co., his wife and nephew, Ray Charleson, have left for a four months' tour of Europe. The first few weeks will be spent in Sweden, at the home of Mr. Brown's brother.

CYPRESS FOR STAKES AND LABELS

Small matters, of course, just as you say, Mr. Greenhouse Man and Mr. Nursery Man, but they cost money. It costs you no more to get these labels and stakes of CYPRESS, a wood that will not rot the first year, than of an ephemeral wood that never was born to last. Both labels and stakes are made of CYPRESS and you may get them if you insist on using the "Wood Eternal."

Don't let anybody "put one over on you," even in so small a matter as a tree label or a plant stake. Stand for your rights, which means to demand the best and most enduring wood for these uses.

JUST ONE TESTIMONIAL

C. E. Robbins, 4 Vanden Bosch Avenue, Auburn, N. Y., writes: "My attention was first drawn to Cypress several years ago by using some of it for dahlia stakes, along with some pine, etc., and after the pine had rotted away the Cypress showed no sign of decay. Since then I have used it for boats and canoes and it has been very satisfactory." This is a small matter, but it is worth while to listen to the experience of others.

HELP YOURSELF TO THE BOOKS

Vol. 3 is the greenhouse story. Vols. 4 and 20 are for farmers, containing plans for all sorts of farm out-buildings. There are 36 volumes in the CYPRESS Pocket Library and they are 36 free booklets. Write for one before you forget it.
